HISTORY OF LENA WEE COUNTY, MICHIGAN.

In writing a history of this now populous and thriving County, it is not expected that mention can be made of all that has transpired which is really worthy of commendation. Furthermore, the County Records having been burned, it is almost impossible to get the exact data of the organization and early history of the County. Having in great measure to depend upon the memory of old settlers, we have found in many cases a conflict of opinion, in which contingency we have been guided by that which we judged to be the most reliable.

The early settlers who left their New York and New England homes to hew their way through the forests of Michigan and map out a country for future generations, have gone to their resting-place, and need no monument to mark or historian to inscribe their heroic deeds. Empty-handed and alone they encountered the trials incident to the settlement and development of a country inhabited by wild beasts and roaming bands of Indians, that their sons and daughters might luxuriate in the rich fruit of that early planting. Desire and expectation ripened through years of suffering into hope, and as one by one they passed the portals of eternity, the land they left lay smiling in rich and fertile fields.

A new generation has risen, who cherish in holy memories the fathers and mothers who now sleep in honored graves. The old pioneers! peace to their ashes!

Michigan once formed one of the principal branches in the old Northwestern Territorial Tree of the United States, to which the Norwegians and Danes clung by right of discovery, and who ceded it to the State of Virginia, from which commonwealth it came into the possession of the United States in 1805. In 1830 it was one vast wilderness; the whole number of inhabitants being less than 30,000. In 1836 it was admitted into the Union. According to the census of 1870, the population was 1,185,000, with 97 organized counties. Inexhaustible mountains of iron ore, and beds of copper and silver, are of untold wealth to the State, while the central and southern portions abound in fruit and cereals. The rich Valley of the Raisin constitutes a great storehouse, receiving its deposits from the lake regions, and sending back its fruits to the denuded rocks.

The history of the early settlers of Lenawee County will be found in the biographical sketches of this work,—space only being given here to those whose history is interwoven with that of the County.

Lenawee County was laid out in 1822, and attached to Monroe. Musgrove Evans, a native of Pennsylvania, and a member of the Society of Friends, in company with his wife and five children, General J. W. Brown, his brother-in-law, E. F. Blood*, Turner Stetson, Nathan Rathbone, and Peter Lowry, chartered the famous schooner "Erie," which subsequently went over the Falls of Niagara, and arrived in Detroit in April, 1824. There the men left their families, and, having chartered a Frenchman and pony to carry their baggage, took an Indian trail to Ypsilanti, thence to Saline, and still on, until they reached the river Raisin, some little distance above where now stands the village of Clinton. Here they discharged their voyageur, and, taking their provisions upon their backs, marched to Evans's Creek, which they descended to the point of land on which "Globe Mill" now stands; here they went into camp, and explored the surrounding country. Mr. Evans entered the lands adjacent to the junction of Evans's Creek and the river Raisin, and moved immediately upon the land-office at Monroe. There he met a Mr. Wing, whereupon Messrs. Wing, Evans, and Brown entered into a co-partnership and took up the north half of Section 34. The adjacent lands were soon entered by adventurers, and steps were taken to secure the County-seat. It was finally located at Tecumseh by the Legislature, on the last of June, 1824. In the same month Mr. Evans left Monroe for Tecumseh, where he built a log house, twenty feet square, without any floor, and roofed it with bark peeled from elm trees. Mrs. Evans, like other heroines of her day, used the baking-kettle and the old-fashioned fireplace minus the chimney. During the winter of 1824-5 this house furnished shelter for sixteen souls. During the following summer Mr. Evans laid out the plot of the village of Tecumseh. The first frame house in Lenawee County was erected by Joseph W. Brown, in the summer of 1825; it was the first and only public house in the Territory west of Monroe. The same year a Mr. Knaggs built a store, which proved of great value to the settlers. In 1826 Mr. Evans built a house which accommodated his family and travelers; ague shook the very walls, and the scorching fever assailed its inmates, yet the house still stands in honor of those who sheltered and cared for the unfortunate. In 1824 Messrs. Wing, Evans, and Brown threw a dam across the Raisin; as the waters rose along its banks, machinery for a saw-mill was put in order, the gates opened, the first saw-log in Lenawee County was rolled on, and business commenced in earnest.

Time wore on; the population increased; seed-time and harvest came. On the 4th of July, 1825, while loud cannon were reminding the New England States of the dying requiem of British misrule and tyranny, the first grist was being ground in Lenawee County; this grist belonged to Mr. Osborn, and the mill to Wing, Evans & Co. Mrs. Evans made cake from this flour, some one else furnished the whisky, and thus was provided the first Fourth of July feast in Lenawee.

Abner Spafford was a genius in his way: he constructed a saw-mill and blacksmith shop combined, and a grist-mill adjoining, in a beautiful little valley near Tecumseh. He contrived to keep all these in operation at the same time, and that without any help except his signal bells. This remarkable man electrified the community for about eight years, and then moved to Illinois.

The Tecumseh grist-mill was completed in 1832, was built by Wing, Evans, and Brown, and had four run of stone. It was burned in 1867.

But while Mr. Evans and his followers were putting shoulder to the car of progress in Tecumseh and vicinity, other men in other localities were not idle. On the 7th of September, 1825, Addison J. Comstock purchased of the United States four hundred and eighty acres of land, on which the city of Adrian now stands. He returned to New York, was married to Miss Sarah L. Dean February 14, 1826, and the same spring returned with his wife and stopped at the valley until he could erect a log house, which now stands on the bank of the river. He also built a house for his hired man, Mr. Gifford, whose wife was the first female resident of Adrian. Mr. Comstock built a saw-mill in 1826. November 22, 1826, the County was detached from Monroe, divided into two towns, Tecumseh and Logan, and given a civil jurisdiction. J. W. Brown was appointed Chief Justice; S. Blanchard was Brown's successor. On the 28th of May, 1827, the following persons were elected for Township officers of Logan: Elias Dennis, Moderator; A. J. Comstock, Town Clerk; Darius Comstock, Supervisor; Noah Norton, Warner Eylsworth, and Cornelius A. Stout, Commissioners of Highways; Patrick Hamilton and Abram West, Overseers of the Poor. We herewith give the legislative enactment organizing Lenawee County:

"An Act to organize the County of Lenawee, approved December 20, 1826.

"Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the Legislative Council of the Territory of Michigan, that the County of Lenawee shall be organized from and after the taking effect of this Act, and the inhabitants thereof entitled to all the rights and privileges to which by law the inhabitants of the other counties of this territory are entitled.

"Sec. 2. That the County Court of the County of Lenawee shall be held on the first Monday of June and the first Monday of January in each year.

"Sec. 3. That all suits, prosecutions, and other matters now depending before the County Court of Monroe County, or before any justice of the peace of said County of Monroe, shall be prosecuted to final judgment and execution; and all taxes heretofore levied and now due shall be collected in the same manner as though the said County of Lenawee had not been organized.

"Sec. 4. That all the country within this territory to which the Indian title was extinguished at the treaty of Chicago shall be attached to and compose a part of the County of Lenawee.

"Sec. 5. That this Act shall take effect and be in force from and after the thirty-first day of December, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-six."

The first deed recorded in Lenawee County was made by John S. Schnall and his wife Catherine, to Ammon Sperry, January 31, 1827, and recorded February 1, 1827, comprising lands in the southwest quarter of Section 6, town 5, range 4, east.

Hillsdale County was laid out and attached to Lenawee in 1829, but detached in 1835.

The first child born in Adrian was Leander Comstock, son of Addison J. and Sarah L. Comstock, born August 9, 1827. In October of this year, James Whitney purchased four hundred acres of land west of the river. March 31, 1828, A. J. Comstock laid out and recorded the original plot of the village of Adrian, which then contained forty-nine village lots, commencing near the river and running east as far as lot 34, on which William A. Whitney, Esq., now resides.

The Fourth of July was formally celebrated for the first time in 1828, A. J. Comstock reading the Declaration and Dr. Ormsby delivering the oration. Dinner was served at the house of Mr. Comstock. From thirty to forty persons were present, and if the theory be true that "nothing is lost," the music of that day must still echo through the valleys and over the hills of Lenawee. In 1828 the first school-house in the County was built at Adrian. In 1829 Mr. Comstock and his father-in-law, Isaac Dean, built the "Red Mill." Prior to this, settlers had to go to Tecumseh, Saline, or Monroe to get their grists ground. A post-office was established this year, with Mr. Comstock as postmaster.

In the emancipation between the Territory of Michigan and the State of Ohio regarding their boundary line, and known in local annals as the "Toledo War," H. N. Baldwin (then Deputy Sheriff of Lenawee County) and other pioneers of this County took an active part. The result of the controversy was that Michigan, in exchange for the territory she claimed on the south, received the large district in the north on Lake Superior, then chiefly noted for Indians and furs, but now the world-renowned copper regions.

In November, 1829, Governor Lewis Cass and General Charles Larned came to Tecumseh, escorted by Dr. M. A. Patterson, in order to organize the militia of the County and form it into a regiment. J. W. Brown was commissioned Colonel of the Eighth Regiment, and took an active part in the Black Hawk War.

In 1834 R. W. Ingalls commenced the publication of the Lenawee Republican and Adrian Gazette (afterwards known as the Watchtower). This, without doubt, was the pioneer newspaper of the County, though, if the annals of Tecumseh be correct, the Tecumseh Democrat, printed by Beriah Brown, was not many days behind its Adrian rival.

The County-seat being first established at Tecumseh was the cause of much strife between the people of that place and those of Adrian. It was removed to Adrian in 1835.

In 1833 an act was obtained to construct a railroad from Toledo to Lake Michigan, through Adrian. It was so far completed in 1836 that a horse-car was put upon it, but it had to be run without iron. This wooden railroad was the first one west of Albany, and the only railroad in the country, except the one from Albany to Schenectady. It was built without capital, except as men worked out their subscription,—furnishing also materials and provisions. This enterprise, small as it may now appear, was what awoke the entire Northwest to this system of improvement; and the people of Lenawee owe much to the indomitable energy of A. J. Comstock for initiating and pushing forward this great work to its final completion. The County has now completed and projected the following

RAILROADS.

The Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad ("Main Line"). Direct communication east and west with Toledo and Chicago.

The Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad ("Detroit Division"). Running to Monroe and Detroit.

The Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad ("Jackson Branch"). To Jackson; there connecting with lines to Lansing, Saginaw, etc.

The above roads are all in full operation, affording direct communication to all points of the compass. There are also the following proposed lines:

The Adrian and Detroit and Adrian and State Line Railroads. These are parts of connecting lines between the Grand Trunk Junction and Kokomo, and when completed will (with the Grand Trunk Railway and the line from Jackson) form an unbroken line from the seaboard to the Mississippi. The road from Kokomo to Grand Trunk Junction is organized, and some thirty miles of the road east from Adrian graded and partially bridged.

The Canada Southern Railroad runs about 5½ miles south of Adrian. It is now contemplated to build a branch from Adrian to intersect this line. With its completed and projected roads, the County-seat of Lenawee will in a short time become a railroad centre of great importance, having three competing lines of through trunk roads.

SOIL, CLIMATE, AND SCENERY.

It is also fortunate for the County that, with all these facilities for intercommunication, it is not in want of natural advantages in soil, climate, or scenery. A rich sandy loam, carpeted with green grass or golden grain, where the dairyman's cow, with sleek sides and overflowing udder, responds to the call of her keeper; where the sharp sickle clatters through the waving fields, and where magnificent forests furnish delightful shade for summer's heat and fuel for winter's cold, all combine to make it a "land of promise." Delightful lakes in the northwestern portion of the County furnish her sons and daughters with many an excuse to while away the happy hours in gliding o'er their silvery waters. Here, too, in her multitude of happy homes, amid beauteous surroundings, the honeymoon of life and the decline of old age are laden,—the one with real present joy, the other with memories of other days made sacred by the touch of friendship and love.

POPULATION AND NATIVITY

Relying for data upon the census returns of 1870, the population of Lenawee County numbers 45,595, consisting mainly of citizens born in the State of Michigan; a large preponderance of the remainder came from New York and Ohio. Of foreigners, the German element predominates (1657), with about equal numbers of English (1272) and Irish (1344). Nearly 800 claim nativity in the British possessions, 48 in Switzerland, 27 in Holland, 10 in Bohemia, 11 in Sweden and Denmark, while 43 Frenchmen politely move among the giants of old Lenawee. All are industrious, being chiefly occupied in the cultivation of the soil. The population of the County for the last four decades shows the following healthy increase: 1830, 1,491; 1840, 17,889; 1850, 26,372; 1860, 38,112; 1870, 45,595.

AGRICULTURAL AND CIVIL STATISTICS.

Lenawee County embraces 248,751 acres of improved land, the value of which (with farming implements) is set down at $20,439,365, beside live stock valued at $2,718,386. Her productions aggregate $4,504,164; and in 1870 the yield of wheat was 659,556 bushels. Lenawee ranks second only to Oakland County in corn and butter, and to St. Clair County only in cheese, while it stands third in the State in the items of hay and wool.

The true value of real estate in 1870 was $32,961,867, and there was no County indebtedness.

Under the new apportionment, Lenawee County is in the 2d Congressional District, comprises the 6th Senatorial District, and embraces four Representative Districts, as follows, viz.: 1st, the towns of Adrian, Raisin, Ridgeway, Macon, Tecumseh, Clinton, and Franklin; 2d, Cambridge, Woodstock, Rollin, Rome, Hudson, and Dover; 3d, Medina, Seneca, Fairfield, Ogden, Riga, Blissfield and Deerfield; 4th, Madison, Palmyra, and the city of Adrian. It is also in the 1st Judicial Circuit. Its representation (1873) in the State Legislature is as follows: In the House by J. Watson, Legrand J. Smith, Arthur D. Gilmore, and Charles M. Crosswell; and in the Senate by Charles E. Mickley. The names of the County officers, as well as the supervisors of the several towns, will be found in the tabular matter appended hereto.

CHURCHES AND CHURCH BUILDINGS.

Nearly every religious persuasion is represented. In an early day the state of society prevented organization into sects,—all met in some convenient place for devotion, without regard to denomination. Ministers were few; and the entire congregation assisted in the simplest forms of worship. Men worshiped God in those days, and, whether beneath the stately elm or in the log hut, perhaps with much greater sincerity than we usually see manifested to-day in our stately edifices. The Rev. Noah M. Wells, of Detroit, preached the first sermon in Lenawee County, in the summer of 1825, at Tecumseh; and, what is remarkable, every adult person in the settlement was present except one,—a woman confined to her bed by sickness. In 1832 the Presbyterian Society built the first

* Ezra F. Blood, who settled in Lenawee in 1824, and who now resides on Section 24, Tecumseh Township, is the oldest living settler in the County.

Adrian. On the 10th of October, 1833, the corner-stone of the Protestant Episcopal Church (known as St. Peter's) was laid at Tecumseh. The first church in Clinton was built by the Presbyterians in 1835, and Rev. E. N. Nichols was its first permanent pastor. In the southern part of the County religious influences were at work and organizations effected at an early day. The Methodists there, as elsewhere, were pioneers in that direction. On Sunday, November 15, 1835, Rev. E. Warner, from Lewiston, New York, preached in Noah Cressy's log house, and organized a class, with Lorenzo L. Brown as leader, to whom he preached regularly, and also traveled largely through the surrounding country.

It is a tradition of the early settlers that John Scotford and Allen Staples, on their way to Conference in 1836, came through the Bean Creek country, and preached to the settlers as they traveled; and, as a consequence of their report at Conference, Bean Creek Mission was organized. If there is no mistake in the tradition they were then traveling as local preachers, for at that very session, 1836, Allen Staples was received on trial and received an appointment, but John Scotford was not received on trial until the next year. But whether as a result of a report by them or not, Bean Creek Mission was formed at that session of the Conference, and Lorenzo Davis appointed Missionary. Its boundaries are not defined, but something of an idea of the field may be formed by looking at its surroundings. Tecumseh was the nearest appointment on the east, Coldwater on the west, Spring Arbor on the north, and on the south it had no boundary—the Missionary traveled through Medina to Morenci, and across the border into Ohio. It was a pretty extensive territory for one man to travel over, and that almost unbroken wilderness.

It does not appear where the mission headquarters was, but no doubt it was in the saddle; the village of Lanesville had scarcely begun to be. He had one appointment at Ames's Corners, then called Keene, and another in the Brown settlement. At the latter place the preaching was alternately at the houses of Father Elieha Brown, Noah Cressy, and Michael Dillon. Mr. Dillon was then a communicant of the Church of Rome, but his wife was a Methodist, and he opened his house for Methodist preaching. Mr. Davis served his large mission as well as its extent permitted, and at the Conference of 1837 was succeeded by John Scotford and Allen Staples. Mr. Staples had been received the year previous from the Adrian appointment of the Tecumseh Circuit, and appointed to Salem. Mr. Scotford was received on trial at this Conference (1837), and, although a year the junior of Mr. Staples, was placed in charge of the mission.

In the winter of 1838, Mr. Augustus Finney, then keeping the pioneer hotel of the future Hudson, organized a class. At the Conference of 1838, Bean Creek Mission, reported to have five hundred and twenty-seven members, was erected into Jonesville Circuit, and attached to the Marshall District, E. H. Pitcher, presiding elder. From some recently-published reminiscences we give the following:

"These preachers, like their predecessors on circuit and mission, saw pretty hard times, both for bodily comfort and the facilities for inaugurating denominational work. The settlement was new; the people lived in small, inconvenient log tenements. Where school-houses existed at all they were of the same material, but in the village of Lanesville there was not even a school-house in 1839 and 1840, the old log school-house having been burned. But these Methodist preachers, on their monthly rounds, preached in a log house standing in the vicinity of Witherell's barn, on North Market Street.

"The house had been used for a dwelling. It was the pioneer house of the town, the foundations of which were laid by Reuben Davis in 1834. It was about sixteen feet square, and had a hole about ten feet square underneath for a cellar. The floor was made of planks split out of bass-wood logs, sized on the under side, where they rested on the sleepers. This split flooring was about eight feet long, and met in a continuous joint on the middle sleeper. One Sunday in midsummer, in 1840, the people had gathered here for divine service, and were calmly listening to the word from the lips of the Rev. Mr. Sabin, when all at once the floor gave way in the middle, letting the central portion of the audience into the cellar. The preacher, leaning on the back of the chair which served him for a pulpit, waited patiently until the people had scrambled out, and then proceeded as though nothing had happened.

"At the Conference of 1840, held at Marshall, Mr. Scotford was returned to Jonesville Circuit, now attached to Monroe District, with the Rev. Jonathan Jones for a colleague. This year there was a dividing up of religious influence and support, and denominationalism established. The religious condition of the people was somewhat peculiar. The country had recently been settled by people from the East, every one of whom had brought with them early religious impressions; and, in this sparsely-settled country, among the part that are religious at all were to be found adherents of all the prominent religious bodies of the East.

"Religious privileges were so rare that all who cared about them at all had hitherto united in sustaining them. In the village of Lanesville and vicinity the Congregationalists and Presbyterians were the more numerous, but were unable to support continuous services of their own, and so sat under the droppings of the Methodist sanctuary on preaching days; but in the social meetings, in the Sunday-school, and in society, they carried the sway and were the ruling power. Indeed, so late as 1840 the Methodists of the Lanesville Class were completely subject to their neighbors, and denominationally without influence.

"About that time some Methodists moved into the community who had not been used to wearing the yoke of ecclesiastical inferiority, and by earnest effort induced the Methodists to move independently; and very soon, with the help of the Brown Class, they had a Sunday-school of their own started, and general independence followed. This in time stimulated the others, and very soon they had a Congregational minister settled here."

From these small beginnings churches have arisen on every hand, keeping pace with the on-rushing tide of population. There are now seventy-eight church-organizations in the County, as follows:

Presbyterian.....	8	Congregational.....	6
Episcopal.....	6	Friends.....	6
Christian.....	3	Roman Catholic.....	3
Universalist.....	2	Lutheran.....	2

There are 71 church-edifices, capable of seating 22,295 persons. Valuation of church-property, $337,350.

INSTITUTIONS OF LEARNING.

Adrian College, under the direction of the "Methodist Church of America," has eight teachers and one hundred and thirty-six students. Rev. G. B. McElroy, President; Hon. Norman Geddes, President of the Board of Trustees. It is the only college in the United States belonging to this denomination.

The Raisin Valley Seminary, controlled by the Society of Friends, and located in Raisin Township.

Medina Academy, situated at Medina.

There are two hundred and thirty-one public schools in the County (of which number fifty-three have brick and eight have stone edifices), beside the incorporated schools of Hudson and Adrian City. There are only two log school-houses in the County. Several country school-houses are heated with furnaces, and furnished with all modern improvements. According to the report of ex-County Superintendent W. Stearns, to whom we are indebted for these figures, there are 345 teachers and 14,661 pupils; district libraries embracing 5,757 volumes, and township libraries numbering 7,569 volumes, an aggregate of 13,326 volumes. The school taxes for 1872 were $87,781. Total expenditures for school purposes, $119,280. Thus it will be readily seen that the interest in school matters in Lenawee County assumes proportions approaching that excellency sought by the best counties of the foremost States in the land. Men came here without that early culture so desirable, and, after suffering the hardships and privations through long years of toil, they are determined that their sons and daughters shall receive thorough mental discipline.

High schools are being established in the villages of Clinton, Tecumseh, Hudson, and Morenci, of the first order, where the graduates of the primary schools may obtain a knowledge of the higher branches; while in the City of Adrian is a high school of such character and reputation as to prepare students for the State University in scientific and classical courses. This excellent school, now under charge of Professor W. J. Cocker as Principal, has the best chemical laboratory of any high school in the State, also a reading-room, furnished with all the first-class dailies. Many of the rooms are hung with paintings, which of themselves are teachers of no mean order. The district has a library of four hundred volumes, which have accumulated within five years, the old library having been burned with the old high school building. Superintendent Payne has had charge of all the schools of Adrian for four years, and is universally honored. Professor Franklin Hubbard was the founder of the public schools of the city, having organized and put into successful operation, with proper courses of study, the entire schools of Adrian, and of which he was the Superintendent for eleven years.

THE PRESS.

In conclusion, we would refer the reader to the County and Township maps for much valuable information best shown in that connection. The physical geography of the County is there plainly seen, as also every farm, orchard, house, wagon-road, railroad, church, school-house, post-office, mill, manufactory, stone-quarry, cemetery, park, etc. The maps of Adrian, Hudson, Tecumseh, and other villages, show the additions in colors, the lots, blocks, streets, etc. The directory informs of the location and business of the leading men of the County. The lithographic views portray their homes, the portraits recall the lineaments, and the biographical sketches recount the deeds of the old settlers and representative men of the County—events fast fading from the memories of the living; and when these personages shall have passed away, this volume will be all the more cherished by their sons and daughters for its many remembrances of "home," which in Lenawee, as the world over, is the dearest spot on earth.

In the Township histories, which follow this, many interesting facts may be found of early settlements and of local annals.

We are under obligations to Captain G. W. Westerman, who has served the County so long and well, for many facts connected with the early history of the County; also to Colonel Robbins, Colonel S. B. Smith, W. A. Whitney, Hon. F. S. Snow, W. V. Fisk, C. R. Miller, Samuel Gregg, Thomas Applegate, G. W. Larwell, W. Stearns, Dr. M. A. Patterson, Noah K. Green, Perley Bills, Judge Stacy, Rev. E. Nichols, C. H. Comstock, Captain J. R. Cairns, and a host of others. We are indebted for many favors to the artists of the County, particularly Hoag, of Adrian, who has taken especial pains to assist us in portraying the pioneers and representative men of Lenawee County. We also take this opportunity to return our sincere thanks to the press of the County, which has so universally sustained us in introducing this work to the public; and that it may meet the expectations of all is the earnest desire of the publishers.

HISTORY OF THE CITIES, VILLAGES, AND TOWNSHIPS OF LENAWEE COUNTY.

ADRIAN CITY AND TOWNSHIP.

Very many historical items pertaining to Adrian have already been given in the County history, and necessarily, for Adrian and Tecumseh were the leading and rival settlements of Lenawee County. The first settlement of what is now known as Adrian Township dates back to 1826, at which time it was but the minor part of Logan Township, which embraced nearly one-fourth of the County. Even so late as 1834 it was but sparsely settled, as is evidenced by the fact related by Samuel Gregg, Esq. (who was Collector for Logan that year), that the entire tax amounted to but $417. The first election of Logan Township was held May 28, 1827, and the following officers elected: Elias Dennis, Moderator; A. J. Comstock, Clerk; Darius Comstock, Supervisor.

Among the very earliest settlers were Anson Howell, Warner Ellsworth, James Whitney, Walter Whipple, Osmeyer Salisbury, David Wiley, A. J. Comstock, and David Bixby. The first birth and the first death in Adrian was that of Leander Comstock, son of Addison J. and Sarah Comstock, born August 9, 1827, died October 8, 1827. In 1825 A. J. Comstock purchased of the United States government the land upon which Adrian now stands, and his wife christened the town after the Roman emperor. The first house, a log one, was built in 1826, and a saw-mill the same year, by Mr. Comstock. Rev. John James preached the first sermon, at the house of Noah Norton, in 1827. The year 1827 also witnessed the advent of the first doctor (C. N. Ormsby), and the first manufacture of brick, by N. Norton. Andrew J. Webster finished the first buggy manufactured in Adrian. The "Michigan Exchange" was the pioneer hotel, in 1828, in which year also the first store was opened, by E. C. Winter. The first celebration of the Fourth of July occurred this year, and all the inhabitants far and near, to the number of forty, got together and jollified. An amusing incident is told of this affair worth relating: Turner Stetson, the tall Vulcan of the village, bored and turned his anvil into a cannon for the occasion, which was a notable one, for after several salvos the anvil burst with a tremendous crash, scattering the Indians in all directions; squaws and all whooping and shrieking as if the very Indian devil was after them.

The first school was kept by Miss Dorcas Dean; the first school-house built in 1829, and the first church erected in 1832. Orange Butler built the first brick house in Adrian. In 1833 the first lawyers settled in Adrian. Half a dozen stores and shops comprised all the business houses at that time. In 1834 the first paper in the Township (and claimed as the first in the County) was issued,—the Lenawee Republican and Adrian Gazette, afterward known as the Watchtower. Adrian had no railroad facilities until 1836, when the Erie and Kalamazoo Railroad was finished to Adrian, being the first road built in the State, or in the Northwest. Adrian was incorporated as a village March 28, 1836, and as a city January 31, 1853; became the County-seat in 1837, at which time its population was but 500. The Court-House was erected in 1839, but the County needs and deserves a new one. The post-office was established in 1829, and A. J. Comstock was the first to handle the mails. The first County fair was held in 1848, at the old Bradish warehouse. Dr. P. J. Spalding is the oldest resident physician, and W. A. and A. Whitney the oldest living residents in Adrian. Adrian College was incorporated in 1859, and buildings commenced in 1860, a fine view of which may be seen in another place. There are two churches and twelve school-houses in the Township, not including those in the City.

THE CITY OF ADRIAN is situated near the centre of the County, in the southeast and northeast corners respectively of Adrian and Madison Townships,—the north boundary-line of the latter dividing the City into two nearly equal parts. It is seventy-four miles from Detroit, and thirty-three from Toledo, and contains a population of about 11,000. The City is built on high, rolling ground; its business streets are well paved and lighted by gas, while good sidewalks and rows of ornamental shade-trees mark the City throughout. The buildings are mostly of brick, and some are very fine and costly. That both its public buildings and private residences are equal to those of any Western metropolis will not be disputed after an examination of the lithographic illustrations of the Masonic Temple, business blocks, and residences of Messrs. Wilcox, Geddes, Doctors Andrews and Kimball, Mrs. Whitney, and others, found elsewhere in this work. The leading manufactures are the car-shops of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad, the Illinois Manufacturing Company, the Adrian Paper Mill Company, the Adrian Car Manufacturing Company, the foundries of H. A. Angel, A. C. King, and James Farrar & Co., and three first-class flouring-mills, beside an organ-factory, a saw-mill, three breweries, a tannery, woolen-factory, sash, door, and blind, spoke and hub and plow-factories, etc. There are over one hundred mercantile establishments, many of whom do a wholesale business, and some of whose cards can be found in this Atlas. There are eight hotels, ten churches, three banks, four newspapers, two of which (Press and Times) issue daily editions. The City boasts also an opera-house and several fine public halls, a military company, five fire companies, and two steamers; it has also a goodly representation of the Masonic order, Odd Fellows, Good Templars, and other civic societies and associations. The schools and school-structures are second to none in the country. There are also several fine parks, upon one of which is erected the Soldiers' Monument, fifty feet in height, constructed at a cost of about $10,000. Adrian now enjoys railroad communication with all parts of the country,—with other roads still progressing. The present postmaster is Jerome H. Fee. We give a list of the successive mayors since the organization of the City government:

1853, Jas. Sword, A. J. Comstock.	1858, W. L. Greenley.
1854, P. J. Spaulding.	1859, Henry Hart.
1855, F. J. Buck.	1860, W. W. Cook.
1856, F. C. Beaman.	1861, D. A. Loomis.
1857, R. H. Whitney.	1862, C. M. Croswell.

1863, J. D. Campbell.
1864, B. Folsom.
1865, W. S. Wilcox.
1866, W. S. Sammons.
1867, John Townsend.
1868, W. S. Sammons.

The value of real and personal property of Adrian City and Township, based upon the recent equalization, aggregates $6,966,927.

MACON TOWNSHIP.

The prevailing soil of this Township is a black, sandy loam, with some clay. Crops, in quality and yield, compare favorably with any of the other townships. The railroad facilities consist of the Adrian and Saline Railroad, now in course of construction; the road-bed being graded through the whole Township. One of the earliest settlers was John Pennington, who moved into what is now Macon with his family, from Raisin, in 1831, and entered the first land. The town was named in the winter of 1833, after a creek which flows through it from the northwest to the southeast. Israel Pennington and Dr. Joseph Howell circulated a petition at that time to have the town set off from Tecumseh, the present towns of Macon, Tecumseh, and Ridgeway then being one. The first religious services were held by Joseph Bangs, a Methodist minister, in a log house near Pennington's. The first frame house was built by Dr. Howell. Mary White was the first white person to die in the Township, in the spring of 1833. James and Gabriel Mills were the first to bring a stock of goods into the town to sell. Israel Pennington was the first postmaster. Among the earliest settlers not before named were Samuel Niblack, the first justice of the peace, James Collins and his sons, Wm. Hendershott, and Peter Sones. The last named ("honest old Peter") broke the first ground in the Township. When Ira Stewart came in 1833, he had to cut his road for four miles through the woods to reach his place. Peter Miller, who settled in 1833, caught a deer by the horns while it was asleep, and in trying to hold it was dragged through the woods until his clothes were torn to shreds. Simeon Davidson, Peter Van Vleet, Daniel Clarkson, Wm. Cadmus, Abram and James Wheeler, Burtis Bird, Asa Russell, and Captain Isaac Miller may be mentioned also as early settlers of Macon. The valuation of farms, etc., of this Township is $1,066,050, and of its productions, $250,000 annually. Its school facilities are first class. There are three churches in the town, viz., Methodist, Baptist, and Reform. The eastern portion of the town is well watered by artesian or flowing wells, some of which throw their waters twelve or fourteen feet in the air. A ridge runs through Macon nearly from northeast to southwest, which has indications of having once been the shore of a large inland lake.

MACON VILLAGE is a small hamlet in the northeast corner of the Township. LAKE RIDGE POST-OFFICE is located near the centre of the town.

TECUMSEH TOWNSHIP.

The history of this Township has much to do with that of the County, and will be found under that head. Among its early settlers were Musgrove Evans, Judge Le Baron, A. E. Wing, Dr. M. A. Patterson, E. F. Blood, S. Blanchard, General J. W. Brown, D. Waring, S. Mangas, G. Griswold, E. Tindall, John J. Adam, Wm. Richard, J. G. Roberts, J. H. Waring, and the reverend gentlemen, Wells, Nichols, and Boughman. Among the prominent men of the present is Perley Bills, Esq., who came in 1837, taught the public schools for years, and has been connected with them ever since their organization. He has been a member of the State Senate and of the Constitutional Convention; is now engaged in banking, and, with Judge Stacey and son, is foremost in fostering the improvements of the day. Musgrove Evans selected the ground for a village, and was its first white inhabitant, as well as the leader of the first band of pioneers. Alonzo Darwin was the first settled minister of the gospel. The Township and Village derive their names from a famous Indian chieftain. Since Macon and Clinton were set off, Tecumseh comprises only eighteen square miles, but embraces 7934 acres of improved land. The value of farms and farming implements, $869,470; live stock, $95,294; value of all productions, $150,365; number of bushels of wheat raised in 1870 was 33,137. The surface is generally level, very fertile, and covered with finely improved farms.

In connection with the history of this Township, we cannot forbear a brief mention of the first house erected in Tecumseh. It was constructed by Mr. Evans in 1824, on the spot now occupied by the cooper-shop, a few rods north of the Brownville Mill. It was without floor, as there was no saw-mill nearer than Monroe, and was covered with bark peeled from elm-trees. During the summer it had neither chimney nor fireplace; for cooking purposes a fire was made upon the ground, the smoke escaping through a hole in the roof. A bake-kettle supplied the place of an oven. Late in the following autumn a bedroom was added to the house, and a chimney and oven built, the latter being at some distance from the house. This house sheltered comers and goers, usually from fifteen to twenty persons. In the summer of 1825 Joseph W. Brown built a frame house,—the first erected in Lenawee County. The "Tecumseh Mill," afterward known as the "Red Mill," constructed in 1831-2, was the only mill of the kind in the interior of Michigan Territory, and was patronized by all the inhabitants between that point and Lake Michigan.

TECUMSEH VILLAGE is situated in the south-central portion of the Township, and is a thriving incorporated village of 3000 inhabitants. It is on the Jackson branch of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad, ten miles northeast of Adrian and seventy-eight from Detroit. It is noted for its excellent public schools, fine churches, and first-class hotels. The Raisin River furnishes an excellent water-power, and drives a saw-mill, a paper-mill, two flouring-mills, a stove-factory, etc. It contains two thriving newspapers, and a goodly number of manufactories. Views of the carriage-factory, Temple's lumber-yard, Merchant's Block, Bidwell's Block, etc., may be seen elsewhere in this work. There are four churches,—Baptist, Presbyterian, Episcopal, and Methodist.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS OF TECUMSEH.

The public schools of Tecumseh have long been noted for their excellent teachers and high scholarship, many of the most prominent educators in the State having been connected with them; and extra efforts are still being made to keep up the high standard heretofore attained by the employment of a very thorough and competent corps of teachers. The Central School building was erected in 1856, at a cost of $16,000. Beside this, there are three ward-schools in the district, with ample accommodations. In these the studies are so graded that it requires eight years for pupils to pass through the full course to the high school here; there are four different courses of study, adopted to suit the various tastes and preferences of more advanced pupils. In this department also special attention is given to preparing pupils for the State University. The courses of study and classification of pupils are so arranged that upon the completion of either of the preparatory courses, pupils are prepared to enter the freshman class without further examination.

A view of the Presbyterian Church and also the Union School will be seen in another part of this work.

The village was incorporated in 1837. It now has a prospect of a second railroad connection in the projected Detroit and Adrian Railroad; and the residents of the place are, with commendable enterprise, carrying on the work so bravely inaugurated by the early pioneers.

CLINTON TOWNSHIP.

This Township was set off from Tecumseh in 1869. Its first settlement dates back to 1828. The first house was built by Alpheus Kies, in 1829, and the first store established in 1830, by Owen & Pomeroy, in the basement of the first frame house erected in the Township. The first land located was by John Tyrrell, in 1825. The first white child born was Benjamin W. Fisk, whose mother is still living, nearly four-score years old,—one of the pioneer mothers of Lenawee. The first church erected was the Presbyterian, in 1835, Rev. E. N. Nichols, pastor. The first school-house was built in 1830. The oldest male residents now living are W. V. Fisk and J. S. Kies. Clinton contains 8936 acres of improved land, valued at $769,770. Its live stock is valued at $76,822, and its productions aggregate $154,555.

CLINTON VILLAGE, on the Jackson branch of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad, four and a half miles north of Tecumseh, contains about 900 population. It is situated on the river Raisin, from which it derives water-power. It has a woolen-factory, an agricultural implement manufactory, and two good hotels. The shipments from this place include woolen cloths, apples, eggs, butter, live stock, grain, etc. It was incorporated in 1869. S. B. Rose, Postmaster. The present village officers are: F. S. Snow, President; A. B. Van de Mark, Clerk; B. O. Randall, Treasurer; and Daniel Brooks is the present Supervisor of the Township.

NEUBURG is a small hamlet, on the river, midway between Clinton and Tecumseh Villages.

FRANKLIN TOWNSHIP.

Among the early settlers were the Rev. Henry Tripp, Franklin Osborn, Joseph and William Camburn, James B. Wells, William Bradley, David Edwards, Eri Whelan, Joseph Slater, and Samuel Hubbard. Horace Case, it is said, made the first improvement. The town was named after the eminent American philosopher and patriot, Benjamin Franklin. This Township contains 16,752 acres of improved land, valued at $1,362,456, besides $158,000 of live stock. The value of productions of all kinds for 1870 aggregated $278,410. In the same year it raised 52,222 bushels of wheat, being second in the County; Raisin ranking as first. The Township is also noted for its wool-growing. The land is generally level, but undulating in the north. It has a number of beautiful lakes, which are becoming quite famous as places of resort during the summer.

FRANKLIN CENTRE is the only hamlet in the Township, and there is located the Soldiers' Monument, erected by the unanimous contributions of the residents of the Township, and dedicated July 4, 1866. It is thirty-three feet in height, and a tribute of honor to the heroes who fell in attempting to stem the tide of rebellion, and also reflects credit upon the patriotism of the people of Franklin. A fine view of the monument may be seen on page 30 of this Atlas. The two churches of this Township are located at the "Centre."

CAMBRIDGE TOWNSHIP.

The surface of this Township is rolling, with many picturesque lakes, giving variety to the landscape. Wolf Creek meanders through a portion of the town. Some of the first settlers were F. H. and C. H. Dewy, Thomas H. Mosher, Stephen Wheeler, Sylvester Walker, C. A. Blackmar, Peter Onstead, F. Reed, and William Geddis. Cambridge, one of the wealthiest Townships in the County, contains over 13,000 acres of improved farm lands, the value of which, with agricultural implements, is about $1,000,000. The live stock figures up a total of $141,915, while the productions net about $263,000. The average annual yield of wheat is about 45,000 bushels. The wheat raised in this Township is superior to that of most towns of the County. The soil is a sandy loam,—occasionally gravelly. The dairy interests of Cambridge are considerable, and rapidly growing. The Lake Mills, owned by Thomas H. Mosher, supply the surrounding country with every facility in the flour and feed line. The educational facilities are first class, and the school-buildings mostly substantial brick structures. Isaac Powers built the first frame house in Cambridge. Dr. Moulton was the first physician. George R. Allis is the present supervisor, a view of whose residence, as well as those of many of his fellow-townsmen, will be found on these pages.

SPRINGVILLE, a village of 200 inhabitants, is situated on Wolf Creek, a branch of the Raisin, and contains a flouring- and grist-mill, a hotel, several stores and shops. The principal shipments are flour, wheat, and wool. The country around consists of oak-openings, with a soil admirably suited for grain and grass.

WOODSTOCK TOWNSHIP.

Named after the village of that name in Vermont, by Charles McKenzie. About one-fourth of its area is covered with timber; a portion is also very broken and rugged. It contains also a dozen or more of picturesque little lakes, the largest of which are entitled Devil's, Goose, and Silver Lakes. "Prospect Hill," near the eastern boundary-line of the Township, is one of the highest elevations in the State. The number of acres under improvement, though not large (viz., 11,851), exceeds that of six other townships in the County, while it leads nine in the yield of wheat; the figures for 1870, according to the census tables, being 36,427 bushels. The valuation of its farms and live stock exceeds $1,000,000. Among the early settlers we may name Jesse Osborn, Charles McKenzie, and John Talbot.

ADDISON VILLAGE, situated in the southwestern corner of the Township, and northwestern part of the County, contains about 400 inhabitants. It is about twenty miles from the County-seat, and commands the traffic of a large area of fine farming country. Its chief exports are wheat, pork, and wool. The post-office bears the same name as the Village.

KELLY'S CORNERS and Post-office is located on the north line of the town, at the junction of Sections 4 and 5.

ROLLIN TOWNSHIP.

This town embraces 11,556 acres of improved land, valued at $1,000,000. Its productions yield annually nearly a quarter of a million of dollars, and the annual yield of wheat alone is over 3000 bushels. The country is rich and beautiful, and produces largely of all kinds of grain and dairy products. It is a well-watered Township, with Bean Creek coursing entirely through it from north to south, Mill Creek emptying into Devil's Lake in the north, Posey and Round Lakes, and several small streams, in the east and south portions of the town. The Town-House, and Methodist Episcopal Church, on opposite corners, are situated in the geographical centre of the Township, while the Friends' Meeting-House is located one mile farther west. In the centre of Section 20 is found Perkins' Mill, the nucleus of quite a little settlement. "Deacon" Bennett, Nelson and Orson Green, Joseph Beal, Nathan Town, Jonathan Ball, Alfred Belcher, John Foster, Josiah Mills, Salem Vosburg, Mr. Bonny, Warner Ellsworth, W. Hathaway, and Wilson Wood were among the earliest settlers. The old Indian trail from Devil's Lake to Maumee ran through this Township.

ROLLIN VILLAGE is on the Tiffin River, about five miles north of Hudson Village. It was settled in 1835, has saw- and grist-mills, and does a thriving business with the surrounding country. A post-office bearing same name is located here.

GENEVA POST-OFFICE is located on Round Lake, on Section 10.

ADDISON VILLAGE lies partly within Rollin Township, in Sections 5 and 6.

ROME TOWNSHIP.

This Township was named in 1834, by Lyman Baker, presumably after the famous capital of the ancient Roman empire. Prior to 1834 it was a part of Logan. The earliest settlers who came to this Township with their families were Sturgis L. Bradley, J. B. Schureman, Allen Hubbard, and Joseph M. Baker, who came in 1833, from New York State. William Luther also settled in 1833, and T. Luther in 1834. The first town-meeting was held in 1835; John Schureman was elected the first Supervisor, and T. Luther, James Allen, and John Bates, Assessors. The first grocery was opened by Messrs. Knowles & Halstead. Rome is one of the best agricultural districts in the country, and yields large crops of wheat, corn, oats, etc. The farmers are mostly well-to-do, and possess fine residences and comfortable homes, as a glance at the views in another part of this work will readily make manifest. Its 16,000 cultivated acres, worth $1,250,000, yield annually from 40,000 to 45,000 bushels of wheat alone. Although possessing no railroad facilities, nor having any large commercial mart within its borders, yet it has a rich soil, an enterprising population, and all the elements of a thrifty farming district. There are five churches within this town, located on Sections 6, 12, 14, 17, and 25, and ten school-houses.

The little village of Rome is situated in the centre of the Township, and hence is often called "Rome Centre."

RAISIN TOWNSHIP.

Raisin, an agricultural town, derives its name from the river which flows mid-way through it. Its soil is mostly a sandy loam, easily cultivated, and very productive. The census report of 1870 gave it as the most productive Township in Michigan for that year. It is settled principally by Eastern people, a majority of whom belong to the Society of Friends. It is a very peaceable, moral, and intelligent community, as is obvious from the facts that no litigated suit has ever been carried through in it; that constables are no more elected at town-meetings; that neither drunkards nor rum-shops are found within her borders. On the contrary, it has the finest of school-houses and churches. The Friends were the first to hold religious services, and their meeting-house was the first church edifice in the Township. The Congregational Society was organized in 1835, a brick church erected in 1843; in 1868 it was changed to Presbyterian; this church is a very superb edifice, as may be seen from the view on another page. Noah Norton settled in "the valley," cleared some land, and built a log cabin in 1825. He was followed next by Darius Comstock, and his son Milo, in 1829. Mr. Comstock soon gathered around him some thirty or more families of the Society of Friends, and after that the Township was rapidly settled, it being a "land of promise." Among the early settlers we may name Joseph Gray, Thomas Sisson, William Tilton, Benjamin McRea, J. H. Patterson, Thomas Chandler, Daniel and Hiram Kidder, D. M. Clapp, John Lovett, Aaron Comfort, A. Doty, Rufus Raymond, Samuel Conklin, John Pennington, William Camburn, Reuben Satterthwaite, O. Rogers, P. C. Haviland, and others. The Township was christened in 1832. At the first annual meeting of the electors of the Township, held at the house of Amos Hoag, April 7, 1834, the following officers were elected:

GABRIEL WELLS—Supervisor.

AMOS HOAG—Clerk.

JOSEPH SOUTHWORTH, RICHARD HORTON, REUBEN SATTERTHWAITE—Assessors.

SIDNEY DERBESHIRE—Collector.

DARIUS COMSTOCK, THOMAS SISSON—Directors of the Poor.

EPHRAIM REELEN, J. B. MCRAE, SYLVANUS WESTGATE—Road Commissioners.

S. DERBESHIRE, DAVID P. HANNAH, WILLIAM SAXTON—Constables.

JAMES WHEELER—Coroner.

THOMAS CHANDLER, TIMOTHY MITCHELL, WM. GRAY—School Commissioners.

JOSEPH GIBBONS, R. L. HALL, W. WIMPLE, T. L. CHANDLER, JOSEPH SOUTHWORTH—School Inspectors.

A list of the successive supervisors since 1834 will be found in another place. One of the most prominent manufacturing establishments of the Township is the Raisin flouring-, grist-, and saw-mills, Woolston Comfort, proprietor. The saw-mill was built in 1833, by Samuel Satterthwaite and Tilton Curtis, and the grist-mills in 1847, by Satterthwaite and Aaron Comfort, all of which the present proprietor purchased in January, 1864. He at once thoroughly repaired both mills, replacing the old machinery by the very best that could be procured, placing them in the front rank for doing good work. Mr. Comfort has followed his avocation in these mills continuously since 1852, and is now carrying on a large business, with a determination to excel in his branch. A fine view of the mills, and their owner's residence, may be found among the Raisin illustrations. Another enterprise worthy of note is the Union Cheese-Factory, an extensive undertaking, and a successful one so far as we can learn; a sketch of their building may be seen on page 53. H. M. Bailey has recently established a jelly manufactory. The Town-House is situated in the centre of the Township. We have already referred to their fine schools, but we must not overlook the "Raisin Valley Seminary," located in the western central part of the town, on Section 19, and a representation of which may be found on page 51. It is controlled by the Friends, and is in a flourishing condition.

CHASE'S is a station on the Jackson branch of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad, three and a half miles north of its junction with the main line, and five miles northeast of Adrian.

RAISIN CENTRE POST-OFFICE, the only one in the Township, is located at the common corner of Sections 27, 28, 33, and 34.

LITTLE HOPE is a small hamlet, about equidistant from the river, Chase's, and Raisin Centre.

RIDGEWAY TOWNSHIP.

Ridgeway was set off from Macon March 5, 1841. The first election was held in the village of Ridgeway, and the first supervisor elected, Augustus Montgomery, received eighty votes. The first town clerk was Timothy Baker. The first settlement within the present limits of Ridgeway was made in 1831, by George Drown, J. O. Dennis, Jonathan Clark, and Robert Wilson, who were soon followed by John Palmer, Francis Coats, Stephen V. Miller, George Brown, Cecil Clark, J. F. Schreeder, and others, many of whom are still living in the Township, while those who have passed away are represented by their children. The population of the Township is about 1000. The town derives its name from the natural ridge which runs diagonally through it, and is supposed to have been formerly the shore of Lake Erie, or other inland water. Only about one-third of the land is tillable, but the 7730 acres under cultivation make a goodly show, according to the last census, viz., 21,741 bushels of wheat raised; value of all productions, $173,484; value of farms and live stock, $686,139. There are three churches in the Township. Ridgeway contains a small unincorporated village, and a post-office, both bearing the name of the town. Its population is about 300, and its shipments consist principally of grain, wool, lumber, and fruit. It has a daily mail; Peter Sharp the present (1874) postmaster.

BLISSFIELD AND DEERFIELD TOWNSHIPS.

Blissfield was organized in 1827. It then included the present Townships of Deerfield, Palmyra, Ogden, and Riga. William Kedzie, of Delhi, N. Y., entered at the United States Land Office, at Monroe, on the 3d of May, 1824, the first government land in this town, but did not occupy it until October, 1826. Hervey Bliss made a purchase in June, 1824, and in December following moved on to it with his family, being the first white resident of the town, which was named after him. Gideon West settled near Mr. Bliss in 1825, and was the second resident. Soon after, George Giles, Almond Harrison, and Samuel Buck came; and in 1827 quite an emigration set in, viz., Benjamin and Daniel Clark, Jonas Ray, Anthony McKee, and Benjamin Tibbets, who settled near the present village of Deerfield; and Morris Burch, Isaac and Samuel Randall, Ebenezer Gilbert, Edward Calkins, Jacob and John Lane, Ezra Goff and sons, and John Preston, who settled near what is now Blissfield Village. The first town-meeting was held at Bliss's house, May 28, 1827, at which Wm. Kedzie was chosen Supervisor, and Ezra Goff Town Clerk. There were twenty offices to fill and only thirteen electors to fill them; so that every man had two or more offices. The expenses of the town for the first sixteen months were less than $37. Petersburg was the nearest settlement, and Monroe was the nearest market,—the nearest place to get provisions, milling, medicines, doctors, or magistrates,—with little or no conveyance but the tramp line. Henry Bliss, about this time, opened the road from Petersburg to his settlement. The first two marriages occurred on the same day, November 23, 1826,—Samuel Buck to Miss Margaret Frary, and George Stout to Miss Delight Bliss; the ceremonies being performed by a justice of the peace, who came from Monroe on purpose. Miss Lucinda Buck, now wife of Fred. Cannon, was born October 3, 1827, and was the first infant presented to this pioneer colony. The first adult death was that of William Kedzie, which occurred in August, 1828. Rev. J. A. Boughman, Methodist, from Monroe, preached the first sermon. In February, 1829, Rev. Alanson Darwin, from Tecumseh, organized the first church: Presbyterian. The first post-offices were established in 1828, at Blissfield and "Kedzie's Grove." Chester Stuart, from Monroe, taught the first school in the first school-house (built of logs, within the present limits of Blissfield), at thirteen dollars a month. The second school-house was built near the present site of Deerfield, in 1829, in which Miss Caroline Bixby was first teacher. In November, 1830, Miss Eliza Clark, aged sixteen, got lost in the woods, and was three days without food or shelter before she found a settler. At the territorial election, held July, 1831, there were fifty-eight votes cast for Delegate to Legislative Council, Darius Comstock, of Lenawee County, receiving thirty-one. In 1834 the first saw-mill was built by A. Harrison, with one run of stone attached, for grinding corn, superintended by Seymour Barrett. Mr. Harrison also put in a small stock of goods. About this time Mr. Bliss started a plat for the village, and a survey made for the "corduroy turnpike" across "Cottonwood Swamp." Mr. Gottlieb Crapp erected the first frame house in Blissfield; it is still used as a residence. A boy by the name of Tubbs was stolen by the Indians from the Blissfield colony in the early day, with whom he remained for many years before he returned to his home and civilized life. The following named early settlers came between the years 1827 and 1835: Ruel Payne, Samuel Stewart, James Fowle, Thomas F. Dodge, Caleb Wheeler, Ralph Bailey, Solomon Harrison, John Randall, Jared Pratt, Peleg Pettis, Norman Torrey, John Sherwin, Abner J. McWilliams, Ezra Newton, Nathan Austin, John Eddy, William C. Clark, Avery Pool, Johnson Haywood, Darius Mead, George M. Hubbard, O. A. Sackett, Horace Pierce, P. T. Davenport, Charles H. Gilmore, John Payne, George Ferguson, William Tenant, and Albert K. Hickox. Blissfield and Deerfield are both generally level and heavily timbered. Soil, clay, with occasional sandy ridges.

Deerfield Township was set off in 1867.

BLISSFIELD VILLAGE contains about 1000 inhabitants, and is on the Toledo division of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad, ten miles from Adrian and twenty-three from Toledo. It is also on the river Raisin. It is incorporated, and contains a fine new steam flouring-mill, a large tobacco-factory, beside manufactories of staves, broom-handles, and furniture. Lumber, grain, and fruit are the staple articles of shipment.

DEERFIELD VILLAGE was incorporated in 1872, and is also on the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad, at the point where it intersects the Chicago and Canada Southern Railroad. The completion of the latter road will no doubt make Deerfield a place of some importance. It contains about 600 inhabitants, and has a flouring-mill and manufactories of broom-handles, staves, wooden bowls, etc.

PALMYRA TOWNSHIP.

This Township derives its name from Palmyra, New York, from which point many of the first settlers came. It is a good farming district: has a rich, productive soil. Wheat, grain, and potatoes are the leading products. The shipments consist of grain, potatoes, brooms, handles, shingles, etc. The census of 1870 shows that this Township had 10,086 acres of improved land, and raised 19,826 bushels of wheat. The value of the live stock is rated at $123,000. Palmyra was set off from Blissfield in the spring of 1834, and included also the present limits of Ogden Township. Ezra Goff and Henry J. Paddock are supposed to have been the first actual settlers in 1826, followed soon after by T. B. Goff, Wm. Foster, Benjamin Mather, Americus Smith, Nathan Gibbs, Jr., Julius Gibbs, Daniel, Lester P., and Walter P. Clark, Jno. Comstock, Wait Chapin, and Wm. Beldin; and prior to 1834, Benjamin Clark, N. D. Warner, Alonso Mitchell, Horace Whitmarsh, Robert Craig, Orrin and Nathaniel Gleason, Dr. C. C. Robinson, Reuben Tooker, Rollin Robinson, David Buck, George and Brasilla Hagvey, Gersham Noyes, Alex. R. Tiffany, Asahel Brown, George Colvin, Edwin Holloway, and Edward Underwood. George Crane was the first supervisor. The first saw-mill was built in 1834, at the present village of Palmyra, and the first grist-mill at the same place, by a Toledo company, in 1836-7; it had four run of stone, and cost $60,000. It was burned in 1870, and has not been rebuilt. The first marriage was that of Elisha Franklin to Miss Lucy Noyes, the notice of which was published in the first paper issued in the County. Lyman L. Goff, son of Judge T. B. Goff, is supposed to have been the first child born in Palmyra Township, it being as early as September 3, 1829. Mrs. Sarah Welch (widow) and Mr. Stewart, both residents of Palmyra, are upward of one hundred years of age.

The first purchase of land in the Township was made by N. W. Wadsworth, from Connecticut, October 7, 1823. In 1837 Palmyra had a mild experience of a wild-cat bank, but it only did business for a few months.

PALMYRA VILLAGE is on the Raisin, six miles southeast of Adrian. Its population is about 200. It contains a saw- and grist-mill, manufactories of brooms, handles, shingles, and barrels, and some stores and mechanics' shops. A factory, under the Alden patent, was established last year (1873) by a stock company, for drying fruits, vegetables, herbs, etc. Palmyra has a daily mail.

WELLSVILLE is a small hamlet and station on the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad, near the eastern Township line, and about seven miles east of Adrian. Population, 40. Post-office of same name.

MADISON TOWNSHIP.

The first settlers of this Township were Nelson and Curran Bradish, who came in 1827. They were soon followed by Samuel Carpenter, Nehemiah Bassett, J. L. Edmunds, William Brooks, Stephen and Cassander Peters, Elijah Johnson, Reuben Mallory, Samuel and Reuben Davis, John and Joel Fitch, Levi and Josiah Shumway, Nathaniel Cole, Aaron Baker, Lewis Nickerson, Calvin Bradish, and many others. Some of these men still live in Madison, and the prosperity of others remain to keep up the progressive tide of civilization. The Township was organized April 7, 1834, and called Lenawee, but in 1838 the name was changed to Madison, owing to the fact that very many of her citizens came from Madison, in New York State. The first saw-mill was built by Calvin Bradish. Isaac Colvin was the first town clerk, and Garrett Tenbrook the first supervisor. The first school-house was a log one, built in what is now Madison Centre; Ebenezer S. Carpenter was the first to teach in it, but Miss Emeline Bixby was the pioneer teacher of the town,—teaching at C. Peters's private house. Myron, son of Nelson Bradish, was the first white child born in Madison, in April, 1830. Nelson Bradish built the first log house, and his wife was the first white woman in the Township. Madison is a fair alternation of openings and heavy timber; soil, sandy. There are over 13,000 acres of land under cultivation, and in amount of productions Madison stands the third township in the County, aggregating $288,039 in 1870. A. W. Bradish was Supervisor in 1861 and 1862, and Township Clerk from 1845 to 1861 inclusive, and for the last four years; to him we are indebted for many items from the town records.

DOVER TOWNSHIP.

This Township is generally level, with a clay soil and well improved lands. It is one of the foremost agricultural districts in the County, embracing 14,491 acres of improved land, valued at $1,175,597. Its productions in 1870, as given in the census tables, equaled $257,057, and its yield of wheat was given at 38,409 bushels. The aggregate of real and personal property of Dover is $1,409,040. The first entry of land we can find on the records for this Township was made by Israel Pennington, May 27, 1830. Samuel Warren, of Ontario County, New York, entered the second piece only four days later. In 1834 Mr. Robb kept a tavern near the centre of the town, on the road from Adrian to Kidder's Mill,—a log house of two rooms; and an "old settler" who stopped there says they had no bedsteads, but slept on the floor, and that half a dozen persons filled the entire sleeping apartment, except the corner in which stood the whisky barrel, their apology for a bar,—the other room being used jointly as kitchen and dining-room. Things have changed some since those days. Now as fine farms and residences are found there as can be shown in the County, in proof of which we offer a few illustrations on the succeeding pages.

CLAYTON VILLAGE, on the town-line of Dover and Hudson, with about equal portions in each, contains some 500 inhabitants. It is on the Michigan Southern Railroad, eleven miles west of Adrian. It was first settled in 1836, and incorporated in 1870. The shipments are mostly agricultural products, including butter, cheese, eggs, and live stock.

HUDSON TOWNSHIP.

This is a good farming Township, and yields largely of wheat, wool, pork, and other produce, for which the village of Hudson is an important market. The first settlement, which dates back to 1833, was on the banks of Hillsdale Creek, and was known as the "Ames-Kidder settlement." The Ames's made a clearing, and commenced to put up a log house, but before it was completed provisions gave out; Alpheus Pratt and Ezra Ames were dispatched to Adrian for supplies, a trip they accomplished in five days, sleeping under their wagon nights. They got provisions and reached home safely; but this trip helped them in another and marked manner: it made known their existence and location as a settlement to the Adrian people, and soon land-lookers in large numbers visited their section and located with them, thus rapidly settling the valley. The house above referred to, and the first erected in the settlement, was 16 by 22 feet, and sheltered twenty-six persons, who slept on the floor in two rows. In 1834 Alpheus Pratt, Gaylord Tabor, and several others, put up houses, while Reuben and Samuel Davis entered land on what is now the north side of Main Street, and commenced building a saw-mill. Simeon and Wm. H. H. Van Aken, Beriah Lane, John Davenport, and Sylvester Kenyon came in about this time. Among other early settlers we may mention Daniel Hudson, after whom the town and village was named, Nathan B. Kidder, and Wm. Young, Jr., from Ontario County, New York, in 1833. Indians, bears, and wolves were plenty, the latter being the most troublesome. All had hard work to get enough to eat; no pork could be obtained nearer than Monroe, sixty miles away, and then it cost $30 a barrel, and flour at Adrian was $16 per barrel. Reuben Davis commenced, and Beriah Lane finished and occupied, the first house erected in the village of Hudson. After that there was a lively time in building log houses. The Indian trail from Maumee to Devil's Lake ran through this town. The Indians were not removed until a late date comparatively. The Township was organized in 1836, the first town-meeting being held on April 4, at the house of B. H. Lane. Simeon Van Aken was chosen Supervisor. Prior to that date Hudson was a part of the town of Logan, and afterward of Lenawee Township. Aug. Finney, from Vermont, opened the first hotel in Hudson, in 1838. Dr. Cleveland was the first medical practitioner. The first marriage was by Justice Purchase, and the contracting parties were George Saulsbury and Abbie Dickinson, in 1835. In September, 1835, Ames's wife died of consumption, the first adult death in the settlement, followed very soon by the decease of Reuben Davis's mother.

The first religious society established was the Methodist, in 1835; and Rev. E. Warner, from Lewiston, New York, preached the first sermon in N. Cressey's log house, in the fall of the same year. Lorenzo Davis, John Scottford, and Allen Staples were pioneer missionaries in Hudson and vicinity. The first schools were established in 1841, on the east and west sides respectively, and for a time were also used for church purposes; with this in view, the west school-house, in rear of Boies's store, had a tower,—for several years the only steeple in the town. The first of the present churches were erected by the Baptist and Congregational denominations about 1847, the latter edifice now being occupied by the Wesleyans. The aggregate value of the real and personal property of Hudson is over two and a half million dollars.

HUDSON VILLAGE, the second place in importance in the County, is situated on the Tiffin River, and on the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad, ninety-one miles from Detroit, and one hundred and ninety-four miles from Chicago. Population about 3000, and is a wide-awake, enterprising place. Has several extensive manufactories, viz., a spoke and hub factory, a butter-tub factory, two foundries and machine-shops, chemical works, carriage, door and blind manufactories, and a flouring-mill. It has a good share of mercantile houses, and supports two weekly papers,—Post and Gazette. The trade of Hudson is large in proportion to its population. It contains seven churches,—Methodist, Baptist, Episcopal, Wesleyan Methodist, Congregational, Presbyterian, and Catholic, each of whom have good edifices. Its schools are superior, and include a fine high school. Hudson was first settled in 1834, and until 1840 was known as Lanesville, when the name was changed to Hudson, after an old and honored settler. In 1854 it was incorporated as a village, and since has had a steady and healthy growth. Augustus Kent is the present President of the village, and J. J. Hoga-boam, Town Clerk.

MEDINA TOWNSHIP.

This Township was formed out of the territory of Seneca, from which it was set off in 1837, and the following year was added to it the strip of 9 south, 1 east. Medina was first settled May 24, 1834, by Nathaniel W. Upton, who cleared the first land in the town. The next settlers were John Foster and wife, in June following, and between that time and the month of October, same year, John Knapp, Cook Hotchkiss, William Walworth, and William Cavender came into the town and joined their fortunes with those who had preceded them. It is claimed by some that Wm. Walworth built the first house that sheltered white persons in Medina; but we think this an error, and that the honor belongs to either Mr. Upton or Mr. Foster. But the above named were the first to dispute the sway of the "red men of the forest" who so long roamed its valleys. John Knapp erected the first house in what is now Medina Village. Samuel Gregg and Orrin Pixley were, with Mr. Cavender and Wm. Walworth, the earliest settlers in the northeast part of the Township. Other early pioneers were Newton Dawes, Suffrenus Dewey, Noah K. Green, John Gould, Benjamin Hornbeck, and Lewis Shepardson. Rollin R. Hill was the first supervisor. Mr. Bushnell built a log store in 1835, at Canandaigua, and the first saw-mill was erected the same year. The first store in Medina Village was opened for barter in 1836. The first school held forth in a log cabin, at Canandaigua, in 1835. The first town-meeting was held at Medina Village, in January, 1836. The first couple married were John D. Sutton and Abigail Knapp; the first birth was Henry F. Foster; and the first death that of Lauren Knapp, in August, 1836. It is claimed that Medina has the honor of having sent more men to the State Legislature than any other town in the County, and names Lauren Hotchkiss, Ebenezer Daniels, and Artemus Allen, each one term; Philo Wilson two terms, beside office of Judge of Court of Common Pleas; N. K. Green three terms, and Dr. R. Kibbe a senatorial term. The real and personal property of the town is figured at $1,640,793. The population is about 2000. There are two villages in the Township, with post-offices bearing same names, viz.:

MEDINA, a small village of two or three hundred inhabitants, five miles south of Clayton, on the stage route to Morenci, and seventeen miles from Adrian, in a rolling, timbered, well-watered country. The Tiffin River furnishes it good water-power. It has two churches,—Baptist and Methodist. A large cheese-factory is its leading manufacture. It has a daily mail.

CANANDAIGUA, a small village in the northeast part of the town, and named after a village of same name in New York (as likewise was Medina), contains about 300 inhabitants. It is on the mail route between Clayton and Morenci, about five miles south of the former and six miles due north of the latter. It is situated on a branch of the Tiffin, in a good agricultural region. It contains a hotel, three saw-mills, manufactories of carriages, hay-racks, wagon-felloes, etc.

SENECA TOWNSHIP.

The present town of Seneca was part and parcel of Fairfield up to 1836, which also embraced Medina (since set off), as well as town 9 south, 1 east, the disputed Ohio territory out of which grew the "Toledo War." For a year after the divorce of Medina the fractional Ohio strip remained under the jurisdiction of Seneca; after which time it was legally united to Medina. Two settlements were made in the town almost simultaneously: one known as Hayward's, in the east part of the town, and the other in the western portion, led by Gersham Bennett and others. However, it is believed that Archibald Brower and Roswell J. Hayward, who settled in 1833, built the first houses in the Township. Among other early pioneers we mention Jacob Baker, Simon Wilson, Micajah Hayward, Amos, Samuel, and Richard Kinney, Dennis Wakefield, Jefferson Dunn, John Knapp, Stephen Spear, John Stockwell, etc. After their advent the town settled up quite rapidly. In 1834 Simon Wilson and a few others cut a road from the southwest part of town to the Hayward settlement, thus opening communication between the two points. The first town-meeting was held at the house of Jacob Baker, on the first Monday in May, 1836, of which meeting Elias J. Baldwin was Moderator, and by which he was chosen the first Supervisor; J. H. Sweeney, Treasurer; and Simon D. Wilson, Town Clerk. The Highway Commissioners for that year were John Knapp, William Lee, and Amos Franklin. The first magistrates of Seneca were E. J. Baldwin, Cook Hotchkiss, Alanson Briggs, and William Lee, the last two residing in town 9 south, 1 east.

The year 1835 was a trying one to the settlers; there was a great scarcity of provisions, so much so that many persons went up to the Adrian settlement and procured materials to make nets, and therewith caught fish from Bean Creek, which were unusually plenty that year. Beside these mullets they had little to eat; some of the settlers even dug up the potatoes they had recently planted, in order to keep from starving. Wolves were plenty, and many thrilling stories are told of them, or held in memory by the first settlers. E. J. Baldwin tells of being followed in the fall of 1835 by a pack of wolves all the way from the woods south of Morenci, where he was erecting a log house for his future home, up to the very door of the house in the village where he was temporarily stopping. But the wolf bounty soon thinned them off.

Archibald Brower's first wife was the pioneer white woman of Seneca, and Alma Brower the first birth. The first victim of the King of Terrors was Judith P. Hayward, who died in January, 1835. The first weddings in the two respective settlements of Seneca were celebrated over the nuptials of H. N. Wilson and Phebe Wakefield, in 1836, and Stephen Hayward and Jane Sanger in January, 1837. James H. Sweeney was the first disciple of Esculapius, and he had plenty of acute patients in those days. The first school-house was erected in the spring of 1835. The Methodist denomination were the first religious society to organize, and they erected the first church in 1841, in Morenci Village. The first saw-mill was set in motion in 1835, and the grist-mill at Morenci, which for twenty-two years has been grinding away, is probably the oldest flouring-mill. William Sutton was "mine host" of the first tavern, established at Morenci in 1836, and whose sign-board was a barrel-head nailed to a post. In 1836 Jeph Whitman built a log store where Morenci now stands.

Seneca derives its name from Seneca, New York, from which point many of her citizens emigrated. It is a good farming country, grain being the chief production, and woolen goods the principal manufactures; these articles, together with butter and cheese, being the leading exports. The dairy interest is increasing fast, there being now three cheese-factories in the town, whose aggregate production for 1873 was about 250,000 pounds. In the Township there are five churches, representing the Methodist, Baptist, United Brethren, and Congregational denominations. At Morenci is located D. C. Gillis's cheese-factory, only established in 1873, but already doing a flourishing business.

MORENCI, the only village in Seneca, is said to contain about 1500 inhabitants, and is situated on the Tiffin River, near the Ohio State line, in the southwest corner of the town. It was settled in 1835, and incorporated in 1871; contains two hotels, four churches, a number of stores and factories, and since the opening of the Canada Southern Railroad bids fair to grow, and become a very considerable village and trading-point.

FAIRFIELD TOWNSHIP.

The Township of Fairfield was settled mostly by people from the State of New York. The first land entered in the town was by John W. Austin, Jr., 80 acres, on Section 10, October 7, 1830. The first house was built in 1831, on the southeast quarter of Section 10, by John Arnold. In 1832 there were several log houses erected. The first school-house was put up in District No. 1, and located on the southeast corner of Section 3. The first church was built by the Baptist denomination, on Section 7. Up to 1834 Fairfield was an integral part of Blissfield Township. The first Township-meeting was held in the house of J. H. Carpenter, in the spring of 1834, there being at that time thirty-two electors present! Andrew Millett was chosen Chairman: votes were cast in a hat, in lieu of a ballot-box, and in the contest between John Baker and John H. Carpenter for the office of supervisor, the former was elected by one majority. Moses Cook was elected the first town clerk. The first saw-mill was built on Section 9, by Levi Shumway and Andrew Millett. The first cheese dairying was commenced in 1852, by Samuel Horton, who carried it on with success during his life, and established the fact that as good cheese could be made in Michigan as in New York. The first cheese-factory was put in operation in 1866, by Rufus Baker, a view of which may be seen on another page. The Township is devoted mostly to grazing, either to make milk for the dairy or to fatten cattle for the shambles, large farms being used for the latter purpose. There are now about 700,000 pounds of cheese made in the Township annually. The first post-office was established in the winter of 1835-6, and was called "Baker's," Orrin Baker being the postmaster,—a duty he fulfilled for eighteen years. John Baker was the first man that contracted to carry the mails from Baker's Corners to Adrian, a distance of six miles, and the first few mails he carried tied up in his red bandanna. There are now seven churches, thirteen school-houses, four cheese-factories, four steam saw-mills, one steam grist-mill, and two planing-mills, two shingle-mills, and one cheese-box factory, in the limits of Fairfield Township, which embraces three villages within its boundaries, viz., Fairfield, Jasper, and Weston; the former being popularly known by its original name, "Baker's Corners." Among the many fine illustrations of residences in this Township will also be seen A. N. White's carriage manufactory, and Alger & Higgins's business block, located in Fairfield Village. As a contrast between the early day and the present state of things in this part of Lenawee County we will give one item, viz.: just prior to the organization of Fairfield from the territory of Blissfield Township, Orrin Baker and a few others accompanied a surveyor, who chained a line from what is now Blissfield Village through to Defiance, on the Maumee, without finding a settler in the whole distance!

OGDEN TOWNSHIP.

This Township was first settled by Moses Volentine, from New York, in the fall of 1826; he was soon followed by Joel Woodward and John Underwood. Erastus Brockway moved into this Township in the spring of 1835, and is the oldest settler now living in Ogden,—he never has missed voting at any election or town-meeting since its organization. In the fall of 1835 Ephraim Hicks settled with his family on the farm where he now lives. Clark Angel, William Paul, and Ruel Thayer came the same fall, and Norman B. Carter in 1836. The Township was organized in the spring of 1837, and Ephraim Hicks chosen the first Moderator; thirteen votes being cast at said organization. Amanda Volentine, now Mrs. Chester Randall, of Blissfield, was the first white child born in the Township, and the first death was that of Lydia D. Paul, in 1838. The first saw-mill was built by Calvin Bradish, in 1837, on Gleason Brook. The Township is naturally low and level, and heavily timbered with maple, oak, walnut, ash, whitewood, etc., from which large amounts of timber have been taken. By large outlays in draining its lands have been made fertile, and are constantly improving. The value of its farms and farming implements is $602,000, beside $88,000 of live stock. The value of its productions aggregated $211,325 in 1870. Ogden has no village within its borders, but has two post-offices, named Ogden Centre and West Ogden. The value of real and personal property of this Township aggregates some $900,000.

RIGA TOWNSHIP.

This Township was first called Potsdam, after a village of the same name in New York. Zebina Smith, from New York State, was the first actual white settler in Riga, in 1836, who was followed, the same fall, by Reuben Tredway and E. S. Guernsey. Mr. Smith is deceased; the others are yet living, in adjoining townships. The first settlement in Riga Township was in its southern portion; but Roswell W. Knight moved into Potsdam, from Blissfield, in 1839, and erected the first house in the north part of the town, now the site of Riga Village; and the same year, with some others, cut a road through to the settlement in the south part of the town; while thus engaged, his son Almon killed a bear, weighing two hundred and five pounds. Among other early settlers we may mention Armon Barrett (the oldest settler in Riga), Rufus Wells, Levi Eddy, John Dings, James and George Westerman. The first white child born in the Township was Martin Van Buren Tredway, who served as a volunteer in the 47th Ohio infantry regiment, and was killed in the battle of Resaca, Georgia. The first mill was built by D. D. Sinclair and T. G. Templeton, in 1858. The first church in the Township to rear its spire heavenward was the German Lutheran, in 1865. The Indians were very tenacious of their "happy hunting-grounds," in this part of the country at least; up to 1852 they made the southern portion of Riga their abode. Riga is settled mostly by the German element,—a sturdy, thrifty race, and from whose ranks have come many of the leading business men and some of the prominent officers of the County. The soil is principally loam, with a clay subsoil, while some portions are sandy. The old maps, which made this Township nearly all swamp, were greatly in error, there never having been a foot of that undesirable variety of surface in the Township. On the contrary, as a grain-growing and stock-raising town it is not excelled in the County. It is also noted for its heavy yield of fine grass.

RIGA VILLAGE is on the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad, in the northern part of the Township. It was founded by Roswell W. Knight, about the year 1855. Mr. Knight gave the railroad company the land for the erection of depots, etc., and the station was named, in his honor, Knight's; but after his death it was changed to Riga. Population about 300. It contains a steam saw-mill, a stove- and heading-factory, several stores and shops, a hotel, two churches, and a fine brick school-house costing $10,000. The only post-office in the town is located here, and bears the same name.

In concluding this history, we would say that very many interesting facts and reminiscences are given in the biographical sketches which follow this history, and therefore are omitted in this connection to avoid useless repetition.

PERSONAL SKETCHES

OF SOME OF THE PROMINENT MEN AND PIONEERS OF LENAWEE COUNTY.

HON. JOHN J. ADAM, TECUMSEH.

This gentleman was born October 30, 1807, in Paisley, Scotland. At an early age he attended Wallace Hall Academy, afterward graduating at the University of Glasgow, in 1826. He was a classmate of W. E. Gladstone, Prime Minister of Great Britain, with whom he was a competitor for prizes in Greek exercises in a class of between three and four hundred, Mr. Gladstone taking the first prize, and Mr. Adam the second. About two months after he graduated he left for America, landing at Baltimore, but soon after taking charge of the Meadville Academy, in Pennsylvania, a position he held some time, living there and in Wyoming Valley until he came to Michigan, in 1831, settling in Lenawee County, of which he has been a resident since. He has been prominently identified with the history and growth of the Territory and State of Michigan. He at first purchased some land in what is now Franklin Township, but which was then included in the organized township of Tecumseh. During the winter of 1831-2 Mr. Adam taught the district school at Clinton, then just beginning to be settled, not having until the following winter acquired even the convenience of a separate post-office. In the spring of 1832 Mr. A. went out as a volunteer private in Captain Nixon's company, to serve during the Black Hawk War. The company only went as far as Niles, but were held subject to orders as "minute-men" for the balance of the month after their return home. He afterward took part in the "Toledo War," as second lieutenant, and for his gallant services, we suppose, on both these occasions, was appointed paymaster of the fifth division Michigan militia, and in 1841 aid-de-camp to General Davis Smith of the same command.

In 1835 he was elected as one of the eight delegates from Lenawee County to the Convention, which met in May of that year, to frame the first State Constitution for the then proposed State of Michigan. He was the youngest member of that body, but as the journal of the Convention shows, he took an active part in its proceedings. For three years next succeeding the organization of the State he was Secretary of the State Senate. In 1839 he was a member of the House of Representatives from Lenawee County, and in 1840-1 a member of the Senate from the Second District, composed of the counties of Monroe, Lenawee, and Hillsdale. In January, 1842, he was elected by the Legislature to the office of State Treasurer, for the unexpired term of the then incumbent, and was twice re-elected to the same position, for the four succeeding years. But in May, 1845, at the solicitation of Governor Barry, he resigned the office to take the appointment of Auditor-General, vice Charles G. Hammond, resigned. In 1847 Mr. A. was again a member of the House of Representatives from Lenawee County, and beside his special duties as Chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, and services on other committees, took an active part in the location of the capitol at Lansing. For his sins (as then regarded by some) in that action, he was solicited by Hon. D. V. Bell, his successor as Auditor, to accept a re-appointment as Auditor, to enable Mr. Bell to resign and accept a situation with the Michigan Central Railroad. Mr. A. finally concluded to accept, and in March, 1848, during the first session of the Legislature at Lansing, was commissioned again as Auditor-General, and served until January, 1851. Beside the regular duties of his office during that time, he superintended the expenditure of a small land appropriation for the opening of a road east from Capital Square to the Grand River Road, and the erection of a bridge on the same, over Grand River. From the expiration of this term until 1871 he was not officially connected with the administration of State affairs, being for the most of that time in the service of the Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana Railroad Company: first as their construction agent during the building of the Jackson Branch, the Three Rivers Road, the Air-Line, and the Detroit and Toledo Road; and afterward, as paymaster, and for the last ten years prior to his resignation, in 1868, holding the position of auditor of the company.

In the fall of 1870, having, at the solicitation of friends of both political parties, consented to run as a candidate for Representative from his district, he was elected, and served with credit during 1871-2, winning the respect and friendship of all his colleagues. Mr. A. was also one of the first Board of Regents of the Michigan State University, and for several years treasurer of that institution. He was the first treasurer of the Michigan State Agricultural Society, for which service he holds their diploma. In all the positions of trust and responsibility in which he has been placed, we believe he has served with marked fidelity. In 1873 he participated with Governor Bagley and his associates on the committee of arrangements for the laying of the corner-stone of the new capitol at Lansing, officiating as vice-president for the Sixth Senatorial District.

THOMAS H. MOSHER, CAMBRIDGE.

John Mosher, father of Thomas H., was born in Washington County, New York, in 1788. He studied medicine, and in 1809 was elected a member of the County Medical Society; in 1810 removed to Cayuga County, New York, then a wilderness, where as a physician, merchant, and faithful public officer, he was held in the highest estimation. In 1842 he removed with his family to Somerset, Hillsdale County, Michigan, where as a physician he soon obtained an extensive practice. In 1850 he was a member of the Constitutional Convention. He died at Addison, Lenawee County, November 5, 1860, in his seventy-third year. His wife, Mary S. Mosher, was born in Connecticut, and is still living at an advanced age with her daughter, at Hudson, Michigan. This couple reared a family of nine children, five sons and four daughters,—Thomas H., the subject of this sketch, being the second child. After attending the public schools of his vicinity, he remained one year at the Cayuga Academy, at Aurora, New York; and in 1831 commenced his mercantile career behind his father's counter. In August, 1836, in company with John Hart, he removed to Springville, Cambridge Township, and brought with them a large stock of general merchandise, which had to be drawn from Monroe to Springville, forty-two miles, over roads almost impassable. In 1842 he returned to Cayuga County, New York, where, on the 7th of July, he married Harriet N. Moon, daughter of Henry and Rachel S. Moon, of Springport, New York. Henry Moon was one of a family of four children who removed from Long Island to Cayuga County about 1790, where his father located a large tract of land, which was eventually divided between the children, the homestead being occupied by Henry, who was born in 1783; his wife, Rachel Stewart, to whom he was married in 1804, was born in 1788, and by whom he had ten children, six sons and four daughters. Henry took part in the war of 1812, was highly esteemed as an upright citizen, and died in 1833, mourned by a large circle of relatives and friends. His widow was left with a large family of children, whom she supported by her own labor until they were able to care for themselves. She died at Aurelius, Cayuga County, New York, July 2, 1861, aged seventy-three years.

Thos. H. Mosher continued in business, passing through various commercial crises, never to be forgotten by those in business during the days of "wild cat" and "red dog" money, until 1848, when the firm of Hart & Mosher was dissolved; the senior partner occupying the old place of business. During the fall of 1848-9, Mr. Mosher built the store occupied by him at the present time. In 1856, with A. S. Berry, he commenced the erection of the "Lake Mills," near Springville, and after encountering many obstacles, had it completed and running on the last day of the year 1857, at a cost of $11,000. In 1865 Mr. M. became the sole owner of these mills, which contain three run of stone, adapted for flouring, wheat gristing, and coarse grain. The flour from this mill has gained a deservedly high reputation, not only at home but in New York, where he annually ships from 2000 to 2500 barrels of his "choice pastry." He has been engaged in business upward of forty-two years. Since 1849 he has disposed of over $250,000 of general merchandise, and has purchased over 430,000 pounds of wool; commencing in 1849 at 1025 pounds, and increasing in 1865 to 7900 pounds. His mill requires annually a capital of $10,000 to carry it on. This business is large, taking into consideration that it is the work of one man in a so-called "country-store."

Mr. Mosher and wife have only one child, Rachel; she attended the Monroe Female Seminary for four years, and there excelled as a student. For twelve years past she has been a valuable and trusted assistant to her father in his extended business. Although Mr. M. has never been a political aspirant, he has been favored with many offices at the hands of his fellow-citizens. In 1844 he ably represented his constituents in the State Legislature, he was postmaster of Springville for ten years, and has held various other positions of trust. One of the earliest settlers of Lenawee County, from the days when the country was new and sparsely settled down to the present time, he has always been among the foremost to work for the best interests of his county and town. Blessed with an abundance of this world's goods, he uses of his means freely for all worthy objects. He is an active, successful business man, and stands high in the affections and esteem of his fellow-townsmen.

JUDGE C. A. STACEY, TECUMSEH.

Few who are familiar with Lenawee County and its surroundings but are more or less acquainted with the history of the man whose noble record is herewith briefly given.

Consider A. Stacey was born in Hamilton, Madison County, New York, January 6, 1817. His father, Consider H. Stacey, was a native of New Salem, Hampshire (now Franklin) County, Mass., and born in 1794, on a farm near the mountains, where his ancestors had lived for a number of generations. He removed to Madison County, New York, where he studied medicine and practiced the profession of a physician until his death in 1840. His wife (mother of Judge Stacey) was born in Berkshire County, Massachusetts.

Young Stacey had limited opportunities of securing an education, compared with many of the public men of to-day, but those opportunities were made the most of,—a few years at the common district schools and at the academy at Hamilton were all the superstructure of his future success in life, save an inherent desire to attain a name and honorable position among his fellow-men, and a rare gift, not easily described, which makes of its possessor a self-made man.

In August, 1836, he removed to Michigan, and took up his abode at Tecumseh, in this County, which has been his home ever since. He was married in August, 1838, to Miss Mary Walker, of Broome County, New York, her parents being also natives of Massachusetts. Seven children have blessed this union, five of whom are living, viz.: Scovel C. Stacey, a graduate of Michigan University, and lawyer; Alphonzo D. Stacey, clerk and book-keeper; Loana L. Stacey, who resides at home with her parents; James A. Stacey, a student at Michigan University; and George N. Stacey, attending school, and living at home.

Judge Stacey commenced the study of law at the age of seventeen, and with such perseverance that three years later—in April, 1837—he was admitted to the bar. This was his advent to public life, and a most auspicious one. The wooden railroad was then just completed, the struggle over the County-seat was ended, and the future of Lenawee looked bright; but years of hard work and earnest effort were yet required to achieve the result. Mr. Stacey was made justice of the peace at Tecumseh, and served in that capacity four years, until 1842. From that time onward he was not only a zealous co-worker with his fellow-townsmen, but the faithful servant of his fellow-citizens in Lenawee County. Although practicing his profession, he was continually giving of his time, money, and talents to advance the interests of this community. For twenty-six years he was a member of the School Board of Tecumseh, his eldest son succeeding him in that capacity. He was also a member of the State Board of Education, and participated in the organization of the Michigan State Normal School at Ypsilanti, and in the efforts to secure the erection of buildings for that institution. He was prosecuting attorney for several consecutive terms prior to 1848, and spared neither friend nor foe when the public good was involved. For twelve years he served his constituents as judge of probate, commencing his duties in 1845. Beside all his varied official duties he has practiced his profession in this County for upward of thirty-six years, has interested himself in the upbuilding of his own township, and shared in enterprises calculated to benefit the County. As a member of the Democratic party, he took a prominent part in its campaigns; during its dominance he was the "war-horse" of the County, and being an able speaker on the stump, he did efficient service. But he was not a pro-slavery man,—his sympathies were always with the poor and oppressed,—and more than one fugitive from Southern thralldom has reason to bless him for aid rendered them while traveling the underground road from slavery to freedom.

As a lawyer he ranks as one of the ablest in the County. He is a vigorous reasoner, able debater, quick in perception, and versatile in natural talents. In social life he also wields a large influence. The ripples which circle off from his endeavoring break on shores beyond his hearing. The unconscious power of any man, even of one whose life is narrowed to the channel of a single outgoing, is very great. But the subject of this sketch is one not so limited,—his is a mind not hedged in by the artificial confines and the busy routine of society. Pre-eminent in his calling, he is yet enabled to outreach it, and find an intelligent sympathy with humanity. He has a host of friends; possessing personal qualities that endear him to a large circle of intimate acquaintances, and have earned for him the respect and esteem of the whole community. His warm-hearted sympathy and his friendly counsels give him an ease of approach, even to the most humble. High and low, rich and poor, receive alike of his courteous treatment. To the poor especially he was always a "friend in need;" and in the hearts of many such will he be held in loving remembrance. It is not attempted to analyze the mental characteristics or moral qualities of Judge Stacey, nor would such a portrayal, however faithfully drawn, compass the estimate of his most intimate associates. It is not too much to say, however, that his nature contains no atom of asceticism, and very few are fully aware of the busy and energetic life he has led and still leads in the line of his daily walk and labors.

In personal appearance the Judge is about the medium height, with light-brown hair, and an intelligent, expressive countenance, every lineament of which is an index to the force of character that marks the man. A sprinkling of gray in his hair, and the lines that mark the lofty forehead, tell of advancing years; but the strong voice and undimmed eye bespeak future usefulness. The portrait of the Judge may be seen among the pages of this work devoted to the "Representative Men of Lenawee County."

It is not the purpose of this brief sketch to speak of errors or faults, from which no man is altogether free, but in this instance no commendation is given to which he is not justly entitled. It is much that any man has so lived as to have earned the respect and love of a whole community; and it is a goodly thing to have so lived and labored among his fellow-men, during many years, that now, throughout Lenawee County, there dwells no well-wisher of its prosperity who does not hope for a long continuance of his usefulness.

HON. J. K. BOIES, HUDSON.

John K. Boies was born December 6, 1828, at Blandford, in the mountainous region of Western Massachusetts. His father died when he was quite young, and his mother soon after sold the mountain farm and moved to Westfield, a thriving village in the Connecticut River valley. There his boyhood was spent, attending school winters, and, after he became fourteen years of age, working for farmers in neighboring towns during the summers. His youthful ambition had been to acquire a collegiate education, and hearing of the advantages and facilities of "Oberlin," he came there, and entered that college in the spring of 1845. He remained there until November of the same year, when he came to Hudson, Mich., to visit his brother, Henry M. Boies, then established in the mercantile line at that place, but now in Chicago, of the wholesale grocery house of Boies, Fay & Conkey. Hudson was then in embryo, but, with the railroad recently completed to it, began to show signs of becoming a prominent point of traffic for a large region of country. Solicited to remain and engage in business with his brother, and attracted by the novelties of pioneer life in the new country, after a short experience as clerk for his brother he was so well pleased with it that he concluded to make Hudson his home and give his attention to business. Since that time he has been engaged in commercial pursuits, and identified with the interests and welfare of that place,—dealing largely in merchandise, buying extensively of wheat, wool, and the other products of the country, besides having large interests in real estate.

In 1855, with his brother and Nathan Rude, he established the "Exchange Bank" of Boies, Rude & Co., which, still in the same proprietorship, has deservedly enjoyed the confidence of the community as a sound financial institution.

He has twice been President of the village of Hudson. For four years he was a member of the State House of Representatives,—the last two years being Chairman of the Committee on Banks and Incorporations,—and for two years a member of the State Senate. In the latter body he was Chairman of the Finance Committee; and used his influence in that position against lavish appropriations and in favor of retrenchment in expenses and reduction of taxes. He was the author of the law providing for the application of surplus funds in the Treasury to the payment of unmatured State bonds, under the provisions of which over a million of dollars of State indebtedness not due, including nearly the entire war debt, has been paid off and interest stopped. It was said of him, as a legislator, that he was "honest, clear-headed, and sagacious." He was appointed by Governor Baldwin in 1871 a member of the State Board of Control of Railroads, which position he now holds.

He has been an adherent of the Republican party since its organization; and was four years member of the State Central Committee, and President of the State Convention held at Detroit for the nomination of State officers, in the fall of 1870. He has always been interested in the educational and moral enterprises of his locality, and contributed towards each of the seven church edifices of Hudson. Is at present serving on the School Board of said place.

Mr. Boies was married October 22, 1852, to Sarah Amelia Spear, of Hudson, a most estimable lady, with whom he lived in the happiest of relations until her decease, on the 2d of January, 1871. He has three children,—his oldest daughter is now attending Olivet College, the other daughter and son are students at the public schools of Hudson.

AUGUSTUS KENT,

President of the village of Hudson, was born in Derry, N. H., November 6, 1820, and is the son of Richard Kent, born at Newburyport, Mass., in 1786, who moved to New Hampshire when fifteen years old, and in 1835 removed to Michigan, settling in Logan (now Adrian) Township, where he died in 1867. Augustus, being fifteen years old when he came to Michigan, remained with the family, working on the farm until he was twenty-two. In 1845 he went to Pittsford, Hillsdale County, where he commenced on a new farm. In 1848 he married Fanny A. Day, of Pittsford, and daughter of Samuel Day. Mr. Kent remained on the farm until 1865, when he moved to Hudson, and soon after engaged in the shoe, leather, and harness business, his store being located on Main Street, near Comstock's Hotel. He is one of the pioneers of Michigan,—one who entered into the earnest work of bringing Southern Michigan from its natural state to what we find it to-day.

NOAH K. GREEN, MEDINA.

In writing the biographies of the oldest pioneers and most prominent men of Lenawee County, a link would be missing, the chain incomplete, should we omit a sketch of the life and services of the gentleman whose family and personal history we now give in the following lines. Noah K. Green dates the origin of his family in this country to Henry Greene, who, with his wife and three of his brothers, came from Greenwich, England, to America about the year 1629, in one of the eleven vessels whose passengers founded the memorable colony of Salem, Massachusetts. The name of this family was formerly written "Greene," but the final "e" has been dropped by most members of the family since the commencement of the present century. Henry and his wife, spoken of above, were blessed with eleven children, among whom was Henry Greene, Jr., the second son, who married Juda Gile, and by whom he had eight children, one of them being Hezekiah Greene, the grandfather of the subject of this biography. Hezekiah was born in Windham County, Connecticut, November 12, 1733, his parents having moved to Connecticut from Massachusetts a number of years before. Hezekiah, in the year 1755, married Alice Leavens, of Windham County, who was born August 13, 1732, and by whom he had eight children. He continued to live in Windham County, following the calling of a tiller of the soil, until about 1780, when with his family he emigrated to Berkshire County, Massachusetts, where his wife, Alice, died in the year 1796, and where he also died in the year 1826, at the advanced age of ninety-two. One of their children, Alice, married Bezor Whitman, and their son, Marcus Whitman, born in the year 1800, after being educated as a physician, was sent in company with Rev. H. H. Spaulding and wife as missionaries, under the care of the American Board of Missions, to the Oregon Indians. From a sketch written by Mr. Spaulding in regard to this mission, and published in one of the leading papers of the country, we make the following extract. He says, "My wife and Mrs. Whitman were the first white women that ever crossed the Rocky Mountains;" and this was some six years earlier than Fremont, the celebrated Pathfinder, crossed these mountains on the same trail. Eleven years later Dr. Whitman and wife were killed at Wailatpa, near Wallawalla, at the time of the Indian massacre at that station. Hezekiah, before mentioned, was cousin to General Nathaniel Greene of Revolutionary fame,—a prudent and brave general, the hero of many battles, one of the most distinguished sons of the Revolution, and a personal friend of Washington.

Noah, father of the subject of this record, and son of Hezekiah, was born on August 20, 1761, in Windham County, Connecticut, where he lived, working during his boyhood days on his father's farm, until the wrongs inflicted upon the oppressed people of the American colonies were too great to bear; and when they rose in their might he, although scarcely in his teens, joined the Connecticut State troops, and as a private soldier served honorably and faithfully to throw off the yoke of bondage imposed by the British king. After our freedom from British rule had been gained, he emigrated with his parents to Berkshire County, Massachusetts, where he lived the life of a good citizen, serving the people faithfully for twenty-one years in succession as justice of the peace, and representing them three times in the Massachusetts Legislature. In 1791 he married Becca Converse, who was born in 1769, in Windham County. She died in 1803. This union was blessed with three children, but only one lived to manhood, viz., Oren, who was born in 1792. He followed his father's calling, farming. In 1820 he married Sarah Loomis, of Ontario County, New York, she being a sister of Elisha Loomis, who went with the first missionaries, under the care of the American Board of Missions, to the Sandwich Islands. Oren was on board the ill-fated steamer Erie, which was destroyed by fire on Lake Erie on the 23d of August, 1841, and with many others suffered death. In 1804 Mr. Green married his second wife, Sarah Davis, of Windham County, the mother of Noah K. Green, the subject of this record. She passed from this life to the better world and eternal life in 1815. In 1817 Mr. Green married his third wife, Miss Betsy Harwood, of Hampshire County, who was born in 1790. The results of this marriage were Harriet F., Cutler L., and George H. Harriet F. and Cutler emigrated to Wisconsin, where they reside at the present time. George H., developing a talent for study, attended Hamilton College, New York, where he graduated with high honors. After graduating he went to Mississippi, where he engaged in teaching, and where, at Raymond, in Hinds County, he died in 1850, when but twenty-two years of age. Mr. Green, by his three wives, became the father of fourteen children, but five of whom lived to mature age.

Noah K. Green, the subject of the following sketch, and the son of Noah and Sarah Green, named above, was born in Berkshire County, Massachusetts, on the 24th of December, 1808. He passed his early days on his father's farm amid the rugged hills of Berkshire County. Availing himself of the few advantages which the common schools of his early days afforded, he by close application gained a fair education, which, together with those precepts that his parents taught him while young, contributed largely to fit him to take that position in private society and the important part in public affairs that he has since filled. In November, 1834, he married Miss Esther E. Baldwin, of Berkshire County, Massachusetts. At this time the tide of emigration was setting strongly toward the West, and Mr. Green determined to seek a home in Michigan, and closing up his business, he in the following spring, with his wife, moved to Medina Township, Lenawee County, where he was to make his future home. Here Mr. Green bought land in the wilderness of woods, which he commenced to clear, and upon which he erected a rude log house, that served him and his family as a home for many years. The rising generation can hardly realize the many discouragements and various privations which the early pioneers met with. Sickness, and the want of the common necessities of life, visited the households of the early settlers day by day, and long and arduous has been the work of the pioneers of Lenawee County in bringing the forest-covered land, upon which they settled at an early day, to its present high state of cultivation. Mr. Green commenced work in his new home with an earnestness and untiring industry which overcame all obstacles, and brought in after-years its own reward, a fine farm and a happy home. He added to his first purchase various lots of land, until he has at the present time (January, 1874) four hundred and eighty acres of land, nearly all of which is under a high state of cultivation, and gives excellent crops of all kinds. On the farm where Mr. Green resides, a view of which is given elsewhere in this work, there are hundreds of maple, walnut, white willow, and elm-trees, that have been set in regular rows along the fences, and which give a pleasing variety to the scenery and shade to the fine herds of stock with which his farm abounds. He has a comfortable house, and his farm is supplied with improved labor-saving machinery and other conveniences of a modern enterprising farmer. Four sons have been born to Mr. Green, viz., Oren E., born November, 1835; Noah T., October, 1837; George D., February, 1842; and Henry E., November, 1849, all of whom are enterprising and successful business men.

Mr. Green has held many offices of public trust, and the highest expectations of his constituents have been fully realized in the part he has taken in all measures relative to the public good. For thirteen years, between 1848 and 1861, he was supervisor of Medina Township, and during the sessions of the Michigan Legislature of the years 1850, 1861, and 1863, he was one of that body, and as a sound reasoner and good counselor on public affairs, was held in high esteem by his fellow-members. When the dark cloud of rebellion settled over the land, and the life of the republic was in danger, foremost among the patriotic men of Lenawee County stood Noah K. Green, and with his generous contributions, loyal zeal, and social influence, he imparted courage to those who went forth to uphold the flag and maintain the country's honor. When the smoke of battle hid the "Old Flag" and its defenders from loyal loving eyes, and the months lengthened into years, and the earth drank deeper and deeper of the blood of her gallant sons, with hopeful words and open hand he went forth among his neighbors, cheering the despondent, caring for the widowed, and sympathizing with the wounded. His were words and acts not recorded 'mid the stirring scenes of battle, but engraved upon the Master's tablet, approved by the Great Captain, and remembered for aye by the recipients of his kindness. A look at Mr. Green's portrait, which may be seen elsewhere in this work, shows a countenance full of intelligence, indicating firmness of purpose and energy of character. In all the relations of public and private life, Mr. Green has lived a respected citizen. He has discharged every duty that devolved upon him with the strictest fidelity, and stands among the foremost of the most respected and prominent men of Lenawee County. May the example of such men encourage others! may it increase respect for small beginnings, and serve as a guide to those who would live respected and die regretted!

ELIAS J. BALDWIN, SENECA.

The ancestors of Mr. Baldwin were of English descent, and settled at Woburn, Mass., in the seventeenth century; of their immediate descendants there were four sons, one of whom remained on the old homestead in Woburn, while the others went West and South. Samuel, grandfather of the subject of this sketch, was born July 28, 1743, married Millicent Cutler, and died July 9, 1826. He was a prominent man in his day, and raised a large family of children, of whom Anna and Samuel, born respectively in 1764 and 1776, both died in Riga, New York. Jonas C., the eldest son, born in 1769, was the founder of Baldwinville, N. Y., and died there in 1825. Ephraim, father of Elias J., was born in 1771; married Triphena Moore, of Stillwater, N. Y., in 1795, and died June 28, 1839, at Windsor, Mass. Mrs. B. was born August 17, 1776, and departed this life July 20, 1811. Cyrus was born in 1773, and died at Atlas, Mich. He was a prominent physician in Baldwinville, and settled in Macomb County, Mich., in 1836, where, with his saddle-bags, he went among the poor settlers as a healer, without fee or reward, through the sickly season of that early day; "A good man and a Christian" is his appropriate epitaph. Of the remaining children, Lydia, Millicent, and Lucy, born in the years 1775, 1777, and 1780, none are living,—Lucy, the youngest, having died in 1869.

Elias J. Baldwin, the oldest child of the above-named Ephraim and Triphena B., was born at Windsor, Berkshire County, Mass., July 14, 1798. Of his four brothers and three sisters, but one brother and two sisters are now living; of the latter, one is the wife of Hon. N. K. Green, of Medina, the other (since deceased) the wife of Simon D. Wilson, of Morenci. Born and raised on a farm, he was put to work at an early age. He had a common-school education, and was designed to go to college, but feeble health prevented its consummation. He began teaching when he was but nineteen, and taught the "young idea how to shoot" for several winters. In his younger years he had a decided taste for the military, and "trained" from 1816 to 1828 in the militia of his native State, in the grade of orderly sergeant. In 1821 he married Miss Olive Payne, also a native of Massachusetts. She died July 25, 1857. Before leaving Massachusetts he also served for several years as town clerk, selectman, and justice of the peace. To preserve the peace and administer justice seems to run in the Baldwin blood, for as far back almost as the birth of the nation his progenitors held such offices. His grandfather was a surveyor, and had set his mind on having Elias follow the same calling; on his death-bed he solicited and obtained a promise to that effect. Accordingly Elias studied and practiced surveying for over twelve years in his native State, which he left in the fall of 1834, when he came to Michigan, and settled in Seneca Township, on land which still embraces his farm and residence. In common with our other early pioneers, he passed through the trials, privations, and hardships incident to the new country,—nearly died of ague,—but finally came off conqueror. His log house was replaced by a substantial frame one, and his land changed from nature's wilds into fertile fields, yielding tribute to his persistent effort. Since then he has seen the red man retire, his place being filled by men of enterprise from the Eastern States, and the beautiful village of Morenci has sprung up on the borders of his farm. Mr. B. was again married April 5, 1859, to Miss Nancy Ingersoll.

Mr. Baldwin has led since he came to Michigan, as before that date, a very active life,—crowded full of official as well as private duties. He was moderator of the first township-meeting held in Seneca Township; has served as justice of the peace and supervisor of his town for over fourteen years, and was chairman of the board one term. In 1851 he was elected to the State Legislature, and served the first term after the adoption of the Constitution of 1850. During the war he was an enrolling marshal for the town of Seneca, and that he faithfully performed his duties the quotas filled and sent out bear witness. The patriotism of Mr. B., who has lived through three wars,—that of 1812, the Mexican War, and the Rebellion,—is undoubted. Politically he was a Whig, until the formation of the Republican party, of which he is an adherent, and most of his official honors have been thrust upon him, unsought, and zealously supporting that party. He has reared a family of nine children,—all living but two,—the three youngest having been born in Michigan. Of his five daughters, all but one are married, his eldest to Mr. F. W. Butler, of Morenci.

Mr. Baldwin has also surveyed over most of the south part of Lenawee County, beside carrying on a large farm, which embraces two hundred and eighty-five acres, beautifully situated on both sides of the Tiffin River, just south of and in the outskirts of Morenci Village, Seneca Township,—as fine a homestead as can be found in Lenawee County. He is now seventy-five years old, and says he feels very lazy; yet, "by their fruits ye shall know them," is as true to-day as when uttered by the Saviour nearly two thousand years ago.

GEORGE C. HARVEY, Esq., PALMYRA.

Among the honored list of pioneers of Lenawee County whose genealogy and life we chronicle in this volume, we deem it, indeed, befitting to connect the name of George C. Harvey, Esq., of Palmyra Township. He can trace definitely his ancestry only to grandparents, yet family tradition runs them back to English origin. His grandfather, on the side of his father, was David Harvey, and on the side of his mother, George Crane. Both grandsires were born at Taunton, Mass.; and there each, also, grew up, married, reared families, and finally died at an advanced age.

Mr. Stimpson Harvey, father of George C. Harvey, was born April 30, 1780, and in the year 1805 gave his hand in marriage to his life-long school-mate, Miss Polly Crane. For four years after this union of hearts and hands they remained in the land of their birth; after which time, getting the "Western fever," they removed to Ontario County, N. Y. During this period Providence bestowed upon them two sons, the subject of this sketch, who was born December 28, 1806, and a little brother, whom they named Brazilla J., who was born September 29, two summers following. Succeeding their settlement in their new home in the State of New York, three other sons were added, viz.: David S., born August 20, 1811; Henry H. (who died in infancy), born April 20, 1817; and John C., born October 22, 1820. Here they accumulated property, and were, in general terms, prosperous and happy until March 2, 1828, the day on which that kind husband and father, Mr. Stimpson Harvey, passed from the shores of time, mourned by his widowed wife, four sons, and a vast circle of endeared friends.

George C. Harvey was, at this time, in his twenty-second year. He had enjoyed good opportunities at school, and was, considering his age, pretty well qualified for business; and being the eldest son, his father's death threw the care of the family and the management of business upon him. This responsibility he continued to bear until 1832, four years after the decease of his father. Three of the brothers were now of age, and it was full time, as they thought, to "strike out" and seek their own fortunes. The query was, Where should they go? Like their father before them, they cast their eye Westward. They resolved to go and look. Accompanied by their uncles, George and Turner Crane, George C. and Brazilla J. pointed their travels in the direction of Michigan. Halting in Lenawee County, they were not slow in being enamored with the country, nor tardy in selecting a homestead from the same. Each made a purchase; and the subject of this sketch then (1832) bought the same tract of land, in a wild state, on which he still resides. His brother, Brazilla J., bought the tract still owned and occupied by his widow and heirs (he having died September 25, 1863). At this visit their stay was brief; returning to their homes at the East, to prepare to emigrate in the following spring (1833), with all movable possessions, to their future homes. The returning sunshine of joyous spring brought about the anticipated journey. And when their destination had been reached a cabin was erected upon the previous purchase of Brazilla J.; the entire Harvey family for a time settling in the same. In due time, however, David S. made a purchase in Ogden Township, which is still owned by his heirs (he having died July 27, 1846). Mrs. Polly Harvey (their mother) also made a purchase in Madison Township; keeping with her, upon removal to it, her youngest son, John C., who was then under age. Said John C. still resides upon the estate, it having fallen to him at his mother's death, which occurred February 11, 1845.

In the mean time George C. was "clearing" and improving his purchase; remaining "single-handed" until September 30, 1835, when he wedded Miss Rebecca Turrell. They immediately took up their abode at their forest home, and have ever since lived there, contented in mind and united in heart. Four children have blessed their fireside, two sons and two daughters. One son and one daughter still live to comfort their declining years, viz., Stimpson G. and Sarah H. The former served his country faithfully for three long years, during the late rebellion, in the 18th Michigan Volunteers. He is a ready man of business, and now serves the government as head postal clerk on one division of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railroad. He has married since the war, and been presented with one little daughter (May Rebecca). Sarah H. is also married, but still resides with her parents.

Nor must we omit to mention Mr. George C. Harvey's personal record. We may truly class it as of a high order: proof of which is in the trust and confidence which has been so largely reposed in him by his fellow-citizens. As an agriculturist he is practical. As a pioneer he has been vigilant, thorough-going, and fearless. Morally he is upright; officially, economical, faithful, and just; while publicly he is enterprising, patriotic, and benevolent. He has been a servant for the people, until of late, nearly all the time since his first settlement, and only ceased when he positively declined on account of age. Besides numerous minor offices, with the exception of six scattering years he served as supervisor of his township from 1840 until 1862, and was chosen in 1850 as one of the delegates from his County to the Convention which revised the Constitution of Michigan.

Let us ask, then, Has he not an honorable record? and has he not a laudable genealogy? Do not the families named belong to the self-making element of our country? Is not such an example worthy of remembrance and even of imitation by the generation yet to be in Lenawee County? A view of his residence, and a portrait of himself, can be found on other pages of this Atlas.

ORRIN BAKER, FAIRFIELD, was born in Palmyra, New York, February 21, 1801. His parents emigrated from Massachusetts in 1799, and settled in Wayne County, N. Y., the county then being new, and opportunities for education limited. The only select school he ever attended was an evening grammar-school one winter. In 1832 he moved with his family to the Territory of Michigan, and erected the third house that was put up in the present town of Fairfield. In 1835 he was appointed postmaster of the first office established south of Adrian, in Lenawee County, which he held for eighteen years. His first wife died in 1829; his second marriage occurred in October, 1831, to Melinda Foot, who survives him, residing upon the homestead, a fine view of which may be seen among the Fairfield illustrations. He was a member of the Society of Friends, strictly adhering to their principles, a man of sterling integrity, and beloved by all. He lived to accumulate a handsome property, and departed this life January 30, 1871, being nearly seventy years of age. Portraits of this honored pioneer and his worthy relict may be seen on page 29.

GEORGE W. WESTERMAN, ADRIAN.

Captain George W. Westerman was born in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, in 1832, and at the age of seven years moved into the country, and became a farmer-boy. Here he attended the common school, making such improvement of his time as to be able to commence the important work of teaching at the age of eighteen. For seven years he taught during the winter, thus laying the foundation for that peculiar knowledge of human nature so necessary for a public man. On the 20th day of October, 1852, he was married to Miss Catharine Scott, and in April of the following year he moved to Michigan, and purchased a farm, which he still owns, in what is now Riga Township. During the years following he was elected to each of the different offices in the township, the duties of which he discharged with such acceptance on the part of the people that, in 1859, he was elected to the important office of supervisor, which position he held until the breaking out of the War of the Rebellion, when he resigned his office and with it the pleasure of an association with his brother officers, and the still dearer ties of the home circle, to engage in the active duties of war as a private soldier. Upon receiving his resignation, the Board of Supervisors adopted and ordered to be inscribed upon the journal the following resolutions, which passed by a unanimous vote:

"Resolved, That we tender to our friend and brother supervisor, George W. Westerman, who has volunteered to fight the battles of our country in the support of the Constitution and the Star-Spangled Banner, our best respects for his kind and gentlemanly deportment while in discharge of his public duties as a member of this Board.

"Resolved, That we view his departure with mingled emotions of regret and pleasure,—regret, to be deprived of his valuable counsels, and pleasure, that he possesses that degree of patriotism that induces him to leave the endearments of home and family circle, and his numerous friends, and share in the dangers and fatigues of military life. Our best wishes go with him."

Mr. Westerman joined the 14th Ohio Infantry in the fall of 1861, the regiment being then in the field in Kentucky. The second day after his arrival he participated in the fight at Wild Cat Mountain, and subsequently in the battles of Fishing Creek, Pittsburg Landing, Corinth, etc.; and was promoted from the ranks to the responsible position of regimental quartermaster in March, 1862, which rank he held for more than a year. In 1863, while on the march, his train was attacked by rebels, and while gallantly defending his position, his horse fell on and completely rolled over him, breaking several of his ribs, and thus rendering him hors du combat. He remained with his command for some time, but was finally discharged for disability, and returned home to his family.

In 1865 he was re-elected supervisor, and held that position until 1866, when he resigned it to accept the office of County clerk. In January, 1867, he entered upon the duties of his office, which he held for three successive terms, at the last election running ahead of his ticket. The Captain is now President of the "Odd-Fellows' Mutual Relief Association of the State of Michigan." He now resides in the city of Adrian, with his family, admired by a large circle of friends and enjoying the well-merited rewards of an honest and industrious manhood.

COLONEL SYLVESTER B. SMITH, ADRIAN, was born in Raisin Township, on the 19th day of September, 1832. He lived on a farm until he was sixteen years of age, attending a common school, where he stood at the head of his class, especially excelling in mathematics. He also attended the Adrian public school for nearly a year. He taught school two winters, teaching his first term when he was but seventeen years of age. He early manifested an aptitude for mechanics, and engaged to work at the cabinet-making business, without any previous apprenticeship. At the age of twenty-one he engaged as a book-keeper in the city of Adrian, and in 1855 he moved to Morenci, where he officiated as general clerk and book-keeper in a dry-goods house, and afterwards in the same capacity in a hardware store until the breaking out of the war. During his stay in Morenci he served as town clerk and as justice of the peace.

In the fall of 1861 he joined the Union army, as captain of Company F, 11th Michigan Infantry Regiment. He served in that capacity until August, 1862, when he received a commission as major, this being the first promotion from the line to a field office in the regiment. On the 31st of December of this year he received a gunshot wound in the lower jaw, the ball passing through and shattering the jaw, coming out at the side of the neck; this was at the battle of Stone River. On the 7th of January the Major was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel, but the wound received at Stone River disabled him for active service, and on the March following he resigned, preferring a private life to his rank in the Invalid Corps. Through all the marches, skirmishes, and engagements of the regiment, the Colonel had been with his command, ever at his post, brave and zealous; and the Invalid Corps presenting no attractions, he returned to Seneca. The dust and cloud and smoke of battle were exchanged for the quiet of home; but the Colonel was not destined to be "let alone." In the spring of 1863 he was elected supervisor of the township of Seneca. In the fall of 1864 he was elected sheriff of Lenawee County, and served in that capacity for four years, being re-elected in 1866. In 1870 he was honored with the office of County treasurer, which position he now holds, having been re-elected in 1872. He is also Chairman of the Republican County Committee.

In September, 1864, he was married to Miss Mary Norton, of Morenci, Michigan, by whom he has two sons, Ernest and Louis. In addition to his other duties, the Colonel is interested in the hardware store of the firm of Todd, Smith & Jewell, of Adrian, whose reputation as hardware merchants is thoroughly established in the County.

COLONEL RICHARD A. WATTS, ADRIAN,

the subject of this sketch, was born in Mercer County, Ohio, in 1838, where he lived until his nineteenth year on a farm. He attended school winters, but the duties of the farm debarred him of the advantages of schools during nine months of the year. In 1856 he came to Michigan, with the purpose of securing an education; and by practicing the strictest economy and industry, teaching district school winters and laboring during vacations, he graduated with honor at Adrian College.

On the 16th of April, 1861, the Colonel left college and enlisted as a private soldier in the 1st Michigan Infantry. He remained with his regiment until the first battle of Bull Run, where he received a severe wound, being the first soldier from Lenawee County wounded in the War of the Rebellion. During the time he was recovering from his wound he continued his studies, graduating in June, 1862. He immediately re-enlisted in the 17th Michigan Infantry, and was commissioned second lieutenant in Company A. The Colonel served with his regiment until the spring of 1864, and was present at every battle in which his command participated. On the 12th of May, 1864, at the battle of Spottsylvania, his regiment was surrounded and captured; Colonel Watts (then holding the rank of adjutant) refused to surrender, and seizing the State colors in his own hands, he rallied about twenty of his regiment—mostly Adrian boys—around him and cut their way out, capturing and bringing out with them about an equal number of rebel soldiers, among whom was the general commanding the rebel brigade that surrounded them. On the next day after this battle Adjutant Watts was detached for duty on the staff of General Hartranft, the present Governor of Pennsylvania, in which capacity he continued to serve until the close of the war. Of the esteem in which Colonel Watts was held by his commanding officer the following is a sufficient guarantee:

"HEAD-QUARTERS 1st BRIG., 3d DIV., 9th A. C.
Near Petersburg, Va., June 21, 1864.

"To whom it may concern:

"Lieutenant R. A. Watts, aid-de-camp on my staff, is a most worthy officer. He was in every engagement in which this corps has participated since the beginning of the present campaign up to the 17th instant, when he was severely wounded in the shoulder. His daring bravery and gallant conduct on the numerous fields of action have won for him the love and admiration of all who know him. Any attention that can be shown him by the Medical Department, and by those with whom he may be associated during his illness, will be duly appreciated by me.

"J. F. HARTRANFT,
"Commanding Brigade."

During the war Colonel Watts was wounded in five different battles; the first time being at the first battle of the war, and the last time at the final storming of Richmond and Petersburg, which was the last real battle of the war; and he was three times promoted by the President of the United States for gallant conduct on the field of battle. During the summer of 1865 Colonel Watts served as assistant adjutant-general of the post at Washington, which had charge of the Lincoln conspirators, from which duty he was discharged in the following fall.

After his discharge he returned to Adrian, and commenced the study of law in the office of Hon. Andrew Howell. In the summer of 1866 he was appointed Assistant Assessor of Internal Revenue for the First District of Michigan, which office he held until it was annulled by Congress in May, 1873. As his official duties would allow, he continued to read law, and was admitted to the bar in 1869. In 1871 he formed a partnership with his law preceptor, Mr. Howell, since which time he has been and still is in the active practice of his profession. For the years 1871 and 1872 Col. Watts held the office of city attorney by appointment of the Common Council of the city of Adrian.

COLONEL R. B. ROBBINS, ADRIAN.

Colonel R. B. Robbins, the subject of this sketch, was born in the State of New Jersey, where, from the time he was old enough to hold the plow until sixteen years of age, he worked on a farm. He was then apprenticed to a blacksmith and learned that trade. Believing that the West was the place for a young man, he strapped his worldly effects on his back and started afoot and alone for the then distant State of Ohio. Having been deprived of the advantages of an education (being at that time unable to read or write), and keenly appreciating its necessity, he entered the school of the Rev. Samuel Bissell, at Twinsburg, Ohio; at which place he stayed about five years, paying his way by his own manual labor. In the fall of 1853 he landed in the village of Palmyra, in this County, and spent the winter in teaching writing and reading Blackstone. The spring following he went to Tecumseh, and entered the law office of Stacy & Wood; making his home with Dr. Hamilton, and doing chores to pay for his board. Subsequently he moved to this city, and for some time wrote in the probate office of the Hon. C. A. Stacy, then judge. The Hon. F. C. Beaman succeeding Stacy as Judge of Probate, Mr. Robbins remained in the office as clerk, devoting all his spare time to his legal studies, and was finally admitted to the bar as attorney, etc., May 2, 1859. In 1860 he was elected justice of the peace in this city, and was engaged in the active discharge of his duties when the War of the Rebellion broke out. Believing that the country needed his services, he obtained a second lieutenant's commission from Governor Blair, with authority to raise a company for the 4th Michigan Cavalry, then organizing. He raised his company, and was mustered into the United States service as captain August 13, 1862, and went at once with the regiment to the front. He participated in over sixty engagements and skirmishes, including the hard-fought battles of Stone River, Chickamauga, and Mission Ridge. At Shelbyville, while leading a charge, he had his horse shot under him, and was complimented in general orders for gallant conduct. He was promoted to major August 23, 1863, and continued on duty with his regiment until May 18, 1864, when, at the head of his battalion in an engagement near Kingston, Georgia, his left arm was shattered and rendered useless by a Minié-ball. Being at the time some three miles in advance of the main line of battle, and becoming weak from the loss of blood, it was with the greatest difficulty that he reached a point of safety within the Union lines. After spending some time in the hospital, and being permanently disabled for active duty, he was detailed as a member of a general court-martial, then sitting at Jackson, in this State, and was subsequently made commander of the camp in that city, and remained on duty until the war was over. On the 18th of March, 1865, he was made lieutenant-colonel by brevet for "gallant and meritorious services in the action near Kingston, Georgia." While on duty at Jackson he was again elected justice of this city, and served two terms; his second expiring July 4, 1873. In 1872 he was elected mayor, by a fair majority, in one of the hottest campaigns ever held in this city. In all the various positions of trust which the Colonel has held, he has always discharged his duties faithfully and honestly. Being educated to hard labor, his sympathies have always been with the laboring classes, and he has spent much time and money in inventing and introducing labor-saving machines, some of which are already familiar to the farmers of this County.

N. H. KIMBALL, M.D., ADRIAN.

To be the devoted guardian of human life, to remove or alleviate the physical evils which afflict the race, this is the physician's divinely appointed mission; and the public owes a debt of gratitude and honor to such men as the subject of this sketch, who at the sacrifice of much that is dear to them give their lives to the work of alleviating human suffering. Dr. N. H. Kimball, of whose life we chronicle a few incidents, was born in the town of Martinsburg, Lewis County, New York, September 6, 1823. There he lived on a farm until he attained his sixteenth year. He then went to Toledo, and for a year worked at his trade, that of a carpenter. Thence he went to Galena, Ill., and continued at his trade. But during this time he had the practice of medicine in view as his life's mission, and continued his manual labor in order to obtain the means necessary to fit himself for that profession. He left Galena in 1843, and came to Adrian, where he continued to follow his trade for three years. In 1847 he realized the "beginning of the end;" he commenced the study of medicine with Drs. Spaulding and Barnard, alternating his study with manual labor; and in 1850 he graduated at the Cleveland (Ohio) Medical College. He was married to Miss Abbie J. Jones, of Adrian, in 1850. Since that date he has been a resident of the city of Adrian, and, after having overcome many obstacles, now enjoys the practice of a well-earned profession, which is that of the "regular" school. He has made surgery a prominent feature of his vocation, in which his prominence is well conceded, and has received the appointment of surgeon for the Michigan Southern Railroad. The personal qualities as well as professional methods of Dr. K. endear him to the mass of our people, while a clear judgment, close analysis, steady purpose, and independence of action mark both his medical treatment and social intercourse. He is not ambitious for civic honors, but nevertheless has been chosen alderman for the Second Ward for two successive terms. He has a large practice, a warm heart, but a cool, self-poised character. His early physical toils and trials imparted discipline and courage, much-needed qualities in the successful physician and surgeon; and enjoying, as he does, good health, many years more of usefulness appear probable for him in the profession to which he has dedicated himself.

CAPTAIN JEROME H. FEE, ADRIAN.

the subject of the following remarks, was born in Clermont County, Ohio, in the year 1835. He left his native town and went to Cincinnati, where he engaged in the grocery business, as a clerk. He remained there but a short time, when he returned to his home and assisted his father, who was engaged in general merchandise. In 1858 he came to Michigan, with the purpose of attending school at Leoni College, in Jackson County; but he remained there only a short time, and upon the opening of Adrian College he came to the city of Adrian, to complete his education at that institution. When the war broke out and the call came for volunteers to defend the nation's life, with patriotic ardor he enlisted in the Adrian Cadets, for three months' service, with the 1st Michigan Infantry Regiment. When this time had expired he returned to Adrian, and finished his college course in 1862. The Captain, nothing daunted by his previous army experience, re-enlisted, selecting this time, however, a different arm of the service,—the artillery. He became a member of the 1st Independent Ohio Battery. He was with his company through all its operations in the campaigns in East and West Virginia, and finally ended his services in Kentucky. While the Captain was defending the Union he received a commission from the government as captain; and being assigned to a command in one of the newly-organized regiments of Colored Troops, he left his comrades in the battery with the good wishes of all,—accepting a more responsible and lucrative position, which called him farther west. The Captain was not long in his new command when his health began to fail, and in July, 1865, on account of his ill health, was reluctantly compelled to resign his office in the army and return home. His health continued to be poor for some time, but at the expiration of twelve months he had nearly or quite recovered. The Captain's life experience had taught him, no doubt, that it was not well to be alone; he therefore surrendered gracefully to Miss Mary J. Backus, of Hillsdale County, Michigan, in 1866. After his marriage he removed to Indiana, where for some time he was associated with his brother-in-law in teaching a select school.

In the month of March, 1867, Captain Fee returned with his family to the city of Adrian, and immediately after his arrival purchased an interest in the Times and Expositor. Mr. Fee succeeded Mr. Rogan, and the firm became Messrs. Lowrie, Applegate & Fee. Several years since the two last-named gentlemen purchased the whole interest in the paper, since which time it has gradually increased in circulation and influence, and now claims to have the largest weekly issue of any paper in the State, outside of Detroit. Its weekly circulation is about two thousand, and the daily edition has a circulation of between six and seven hundred subscribers. The Times office is fitted out with presses and type for doing all kinds of first-class printing, and its publications are all well conducted. Perseverance and talent combined have given this establishment a high rank among the successful journalistic enterprises of the State.

Captain Fee was chosen, at the last re-organization, as a member of the Republican State Committee, and in the spring of 1873 he received the appointment of postmaster at Adrian, which office he has acceptably held, and now manages, in connection with the various duties of his business life. The Captain's family consists of four,—himself, wife, and two children, named respectively Harry and May. In personal appearance Captain Fee is a well-proportioned man, a trifle above the medium height, with light-brown hair, full beard and moustache, and a face beaming with intelligence. Affable in his manners, courteous in his bearing, and reliable in his dealings, he has deservedly won hosts of friends, who, with unanimity, trust he may long live to enjoy the rewards—the otium cum dignitate—of a successful career.

ORSAMUS LAMB, ADRIAN.

was born January 23, 1819, in Erie County, New York, where his youth was passed upon a farm. In October, 1834, being only fifteen years old, he came to Michigan, and settled on the old thoroughfare that led from Detroit to Chicago, in what was then called Franklin Township, but is now known as Woodstock. The country was almost a wilderness: bears and wolves abounded, Indians were more numerous than whites, and there were but few houses in the whole township. But as a pioneer he bravely endured the hardships incident to a settlement in a new and undeveloped country. He made him a home, and by years of industry, impelled by a laudable ambition, has not only made his way in the world, but attained an enviable position among the leading self-made men of Lenawee County. When but twenty-one years of age he was chosen school inspector, which office he creditably filled for six years. In his twenty-third year he was elected justice of the peace, a position he held for twenty-six years. He was also supervisor of the town of Woodstock for nineteen consecutive years,—resigning it when he came to the city of Adrian, in 1868. But Mr. Lamb was not to go without official honors, having been chosen drain commissioner of Lenawee County, which, after six years' service, he resigned, in 1873, to accept an equally responsible post,—that of justice of the peace. His term of office does not expire until 1877. Mr. Lamb was married March 13, 1839, to Miss Caroline Osborn, whose father was one of the first settlers in Lenawee County. Their children, four in number, are all living (except the first born) and happily married. Mr. Lamb is now in his fifty-fifth year, but hale and hearty, and held in high esteem by all who know him.

HON. DANIEL D. SINCLAIR, ADRIAN.

the subject of this brief sketch, was born the 16th of April, 1806, in the town of Broad Albin, Montgomery County, New York, where he spent the first twenty years of his life, most of the time serving his apprenticeship at tailoring in Albany and Schenectady. When his time was out he, with his mother and the rest of the family, moved to the town of York, Livingston County, New York, where he did business at his trade for three years. In the year 1830 he removed from there to Albion, Orleans County, New York, where he remained for a short time, then coming to Toledo, Ohio, in October, 1834, where he went into business, dealing quite largely in real estate. In 1835, after disposing of his property in Toledo, he came to Adrian, where he has been a resident and one of the representative men ever since. During the first three years in this city he carried on an extensive clothing business. In the spring of 1839 he was elected justice of the peace, which office he held for nine consecutive years. During this time he was elected County treasurer, in which capacity he served for six years in succession; and in the fall of 1848 he was elected State Senator, filling the office for one term. Soon after he returned to his home, in 1850, he was employed on the Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana Railroad, in the capacity of assistant superintendent, which place he held for eight years, under Superintendents Williams, Ashley, William H. Moore, and James Moore. After he left the railroad, in 1858, he was employed in Pinkerton's detective force of Chicago until the fall of 1859, when he returned to his family in Adrian. He was soon after elected supervisor, which office he now holds, and has continuously held for the last thirteen years.

Mr. Sinclair was married in Lockport, New York, October 2, 1834, to Miss Elizabeth Hyde. He is now in the enjoyment of good health, and is the father of five children, three sons and two daughters, all living. His eldest son, Henry H., is in the employ, as clerk, of the Adrian Car Manufacturing Company; his second son, Edward W., is principal clerk with Meyer Bros. & Co., wholesale druggists, St. Louis, on a salary of twenty-four hundred dollars a year; while his youngest son is engaged in the drug business in Troy, Kansas, under the firm name of Bickford & Sinclair. His oldest daughter, Mary Elizabeth, is the wife of General William Humphrey, present Auditor-General of the State; his youngest daughter, Harriet Maria, is the wife of Thomas Applegate, firm of Applegate & Fee, of the Adrian Times and Expositor. Mr. Sinclair is of Scotch descent, his parents emigrating to this country in 1798, and locating in Montgomery County, New York.

HON. PHILO WILSON, ADRIAN.

the subject of this record, was born in the town of Kent, Connecticut, March 29, 1809. He resided there until his eighteenth year, when he moved to Palmyra, New York, where for eleven years he owned and managed a boat on the Erie Canal. In 1838 he came to the village of Canandaigua, in this County, and established a general retail store, which he continued for thirty years. He served as town clerk, and aided in organizing the township of Medina, after which he was elected justice of the peace, and served as such for sixteen years. In 1842 he was elected to the Legislature, and in 1850 was re-elected to the same. He was chosen County judge in 1847, and remained in office four years, until the law was repealed. In 1860 he was a delegate from this State to the Democratic National Convention at Charleston, which was an important epoch in his history. Thus far his life has been crowded full of official honors and duties, and, although sixty years of age, he still enjoys unusual vigor of mind and body.

RICHARD H. WHITNEY, ADRIAN.

was born at Harvard, Massachusetts, in 1808, being at the time of his death fifty-nine years of age. Twenty-nine years ago last May, in the year 1838, he took up his abode in what was then the little village of Adrian, although in August of the year previous he had paid this place a short visit. During his long residence in Adrian he uniformly held the confidence and esteem of his fellow-citizens. He was elected mayor of the city, and held the office of justice of the peace for ten years, both of which positions he filled in the most praiseworthy manner. He was a Royal Arch Mason, beloved and respected by his brethren of the order. He leaves, beside his widow, five sons and one daughter to mourn the death of a loving husband and an affectionate father. He had been in poor health for two years previous to his death, and paralysis was the form of disease which proved fatal to him. In his death Adrian sustained an almost irreparable loss. One after another of the patriarchs are called to their long homes, and who is there among us worthy to fill their places? Richard H. Whitney was a man of incorruptible integrity. His public career was blameless, and his private life was adorned with all those virtues which made him the loved and honored centre of an interesting and happy family circle. No man could accuse Mr. Whitney of having wronged him. He was the tried friend, the confidant, the adviser of the poor man, and many in straitened circumstances have cause to bless the memory of Richard H. Whitney for efficient help rendered them in time of need. He was a loving husband, an indulgent parent, a kind and faithful friend,—yet his heart, once so warm, now lies still and cold in death. He has gone from our sight, to the presence of Him who tries all hearts, to meet his reward. May his survivors emulate his many virtues! He obeyed to the letter the injunction of the poet:

"So live that when thy summons comes to join
The innumerable caravan, that moves
To that mysterious realm, where each shall take
His chamber in the silent halls of death,
Thou go, not like the quarry-slave at night,
Scourged to his dungeon; but, sustained and soothed
By an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave,
Like one that draws the drapery of his couch
About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams."

WILLIAM WALLACE BRUCE, ADRIAN.

a descendant of the Scottish heroes of that name, and one of Adrian's sterling financiers, was born near Buffalo, New York, in September, 1827. The place of his nativity was his residence until 1864. At the early age of twenty he engaged in mercantile pursuits, under his own name, and continued them very independently and successfully for four years, when he was elected Cashier of the Merchants' Bank of Erie County, New York, which responsible post he retained for twelve years. About this time (1864) he removed to Michigan, and located in Adrian, of which place he has since been a resident. In December, 1869, he organized the "Lenawee County Savings Bank," under the statutes of the State. From the opening of the bank to the present day the institution has had the entire confidence of the people of the County, as is proven in its remarkable success. He is also a stockholder and director in the "Michigan State Insurance Company." For integrity, accuracy, and good sound judgment in business affairs, especially in finances, Mr. Bruce ranks among the first in the County; and as a private citizen he is held in high estimation by all who know him.

NICHOLAS VAN BRUNT, ADRIAN.

Supervisor Nicholas Van Brunt, of Adrian, one of Lenawee's representative men, was born in Romulus, Seneca County, New York, the 22d day of December, 1825. In 1827 his parents moved to Vienna, and, four years later, removed to Geneva, in the same State. Geneva, pleasantly situated on the shores of one of the most beautiful lakes in America (on account of its beauty named after the famous lake of Switzerland), was his home until he was about twenty years of age; and the scenes amid which his boyhood was passed had, no doubt, a great influence upon his future career; for after coming to Monroe, Mich., in the fall of 1845, he was engaged on a steamboat for a considerable time in the capacity of clerk.

In the fall of 1848 he moved to Adrian, which place has been his home ever since, although during that period he was located for a time in Chicago, and engaged in railroad work for the Chicago and Rock Island, and Chicago, Alton and St. Louis Railroad Companies, and for a brief season was interested in the commission business in that city. He then came to his family in Adrian, where, in the year 1857, he engaged in farming, which honorable calling he still follows. While he tills the soil, he furnishes others with homes and farms, being largely and well known in connection with the real estate and insurance branches of business.

He was elected supervisor in the spring of 1869, and has so fitly represented his constituents that he has been re-elected every succeeding term, and still enjoys the honors of that office. He was married in September, 1851, to Miss Anna E. Wright, and has three children, the eldest of whom, Walter, is officiating in an abstract office in the city of Cleveland, while his daughter, Mary, is attending school at Leroy, N. Y. His youngest child, Willard, is still at home.

Mr. Van Brunt is yet in the prime of life, being only forty-eight years of age, with the promise of many years of usefulness yet before him; but more than half of his life has thus far been spent in Lenawee County, where he is well known and highly esteemed both as a public man and as a private citizen.

JOHN G. MASON, ADRIAN.

In speaking of the representative men of Lenawee County, we must not overlook a personage whose name has been so well and favorably known in this section for the past thirty years, and who at the present time holds the important County office of sheriff. John G. Mason was born in the town of Richmond, Ontario County, N. Y., July 9, 1835. His earlier years were spent upon a farm in his native State. In 1840 he removed to this County, which has since been his home. He settled first in the town of Fairfield, which for fifteen years was his residence; he then moved to the town of Ogden, where he resided up to the time of coming to the city of Adrian, in January, 1873.

He was united in the bonds of wedlock February 3, 1856, to Miss Amanda D. Carter, daughter of Norman B. Carter, one of the pioneers of Lenawee County. They have been blessed with two children, both of whom are living, and are named Glendora E. and Stella D.

Mr. Mason has held various offices of trust, and as a steward of the people he has always proven himself "a good and faithful servant." He was elected to the office of school inspector, in Ogden Township, in the spring of 1859, which office he held for four years, to the satisfaction of his constituents, who in 1865 again made him their representative,—this time as a member of the Board of Supervisors. He served in that capacity from 1865 to 1869, when he received the appointment of undersheriff. After four years' incumbency of that office he was elected to the responsible position of sheriff, which position he yet holds. This list of honors, the gift of his friends and fellow-citizens, is a better tribute to his integrity and zeal than any words we might attempt to write in his behalf.

Mr. Mason's vocation primarily is that of a farmer; he has always lived upon a farm, and now owns a pleasantly-situated and well-stocked farm in the town of Ogden. But whether engaged in agricultural pursuits or performing the duties of a guardian of the public weal against its criminal offenders, industry, determination, and sterling integrity have always marked his conduct, and brought to him the prosperity and influence he now enjoys.

S. M. BABCOCK, ADRIAN, was born December 9, 1833, in Onondaga County, New York, where he remained on a farm until he was eighteen years of age; he then left home and came to Adrian, where he was employed for two years as turnkey of the Lenawee County jail. On the expiration of this office he returned to his native State, and for two years was clerk in a dry-goods store in the town of Jordan. In 1856 he returned to Adrian, to make it his home. His first employment was as clerk in the drug store of Remington & Niles, for a year; he then was appointed deputy sheriff, and served for two years, after which he again entered the drug store of Remington & Bennett, and was in their employ up to the time of his enlistment as a private in Company F, 26th Michigan Infantry, on the 6th of August, 1862. He was mustered into the 12th Michigan Infantry Regiment, February 25, 1863, as second lieutenant, which he resigned March 29, 1864. Subsequently he raised a company, and was mustered in as first lieutenant, Company D, 30th Michigan Infantry Regiment, with which he remained until June 30, 1865. Since the war he has served as policeman for six years prior to 1872, when he was elected marshal of the city of Adrian, which position he now holds.

TIMOTHY P. RANDALL, ADRIAN.

Timothy P. Randall, fourth son of David R. and Sarah A. Randall, was born January 31, 1837, at New Fane, Niagara County, N. Y. His parents were natives of Massachusetts; his father, born in 1806, was married in 1830, at Bennington, Vt., reared a family of ten children, and in 1836 removed to New York. The subject of this sketch came to Michigan at the early of fourteen,—settled first in Wayne County, and, in 1855, in Lenawee. In 1856 his parents removed to Wayne County, where they now reside. Mr. Randall engaged in the nursery business in Adrian for nearly nine years, having charge for five years of Berry's nursery, on the west side of the river, at that time the leading one in the County, and for four years more was connected with the nursery of Ramsdell & Loud, until 1866, when they broke up the business. In 1864 he was elected constable of the Third Ward, and appointed a policeman. For five successive years he was elected street commissioner, by constantly increasing majorities, until an émeute, growing out of selling the engine teams, caused his defeat; but, after a brief retirement, he was again elected, in 1873, by a large majority, to the same office,—being a virtual indorsement of his past official career by the public, whose faithful servant he has been and still is. That his duties have been zealously performed the splendid condition of streets, reservoirs, bridges, and culverts bear witness. He is also an inventor, having patented a machine for sharpening horse-shoes, which has proven a practical success.

Mr. Randall was married in 1864 to Miss Emily S. La Fevre, of this city, and a native of New York, the result of which union is one child, Charles Henry, aged six years. Mr. R. resides on College Avenue, where the halcyon days of his life are now being passed.

LIEUTENANT R. H. BAKER, ADRIAN,

the subject of the following narrative, was born November 30, 1840, in the town of Dexter, Washtenaw County, Michigan, where he remained for the first two years of his life; then, at the sad occurrence of his father's death, he removed with his mother to Ontario County, New York, being there about ten years, interveningly spending part of his time in Michigan, although making New York State his home. In 1853 he removed to Adrian. He entered the high school at the age of fifteen, and in 1859 he entered the University of Michigan, in the sophomore year; but did not complete his course, as he enlisted in the 1st Michigan Volunteer Infantry Regiment (Company K), in April, 1861. The regiment with which he was connected was the first one in uniform from west of the Alleghanies that entered Washington. After the battle of Bull Run he returned to the University, and graduated in the classical course June, 1862, at the early age of twenty-one. But not content with having served his country once, he re-enlisted the month after he graduated, as a private in Company C, 18th Michigan Volunteer Infantry, in which he remained until the close of the war, in July, 1865. But his loyalty to his country was not without its rewards: he was promoted several times, to the rank successively of corporal, sergeant, first sergeant, and lieutenant. He served in all the engagements in which his company participated, and also on the staff of General Granger for about a year. After returning to his home, at the close of the war, he engaged in the bat trade for about three years, during which time he was married to Miss M. A. Beman, daughter of Hon. F. C. Beman. Their union has been blessed with one child, L. Beman, whose age is nearly three years. In 1868 Mr. Baker was appointed Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue for the First District of Michigan, comprising the counties of Wayne, Monroe, Lenawee, and Hillsdale. He retained this position for two years and then resigned. During this time he was clerk in the post-office at Adrian, under W. A. Whitney, postmaster; and in September, 1872, was appointed assistant postmaster, which position he still retains. Lieutenant Baker is a worthy man in the right place; faithful to duties, courteous in manners, and unassuming in his life. He has many friends, young and old, who will be glad to read of the incidents connected with this young man's life. His career is one worthy of imitation by the young men of the present day, and not only illustrates the fact that merit will be rewarded, but that integrity, perseverance, and energy, when brought to bear in the common tasks of life, will be a certain augury of success. Lieutenant Baker is a public-spirited man, taking an active interest in education and all measures looking to the progress of the city and country; and we confidently expect that the future years will add new honors and lustre to his already well-earned fame.

JARED ANTONY VAN AUKEN, ADRIAN, was born in Dover, Lenawee County, Michigan. He remained on a farm, in his native town, until he was seventeen years of age, when he came to Adrian with his father. Since that time the County-seat has been his home. He was not to be satisfied with rural retirement nor the pastoral life of his boyhood; he resolved to fit himself for the more active scenes in the stirring drama of life. He accordingly attended school at Adrian College for six years, graduating with the class of 1871. In the mean time, following the bent of his genius, he read law with the Hon. A. L. Millard, and subsequently attended the law department of the University of Michigan, where he graduated with honor in the class of 1872. His studious zeal was early rewarded, for he was admitted to the bar, at the Supreme Court, in April of the same year, and is now engaged in the active practice of his profession in the office of A. L. Millard. Prominent on the pages of Lenawee's future history is likely to appear the name of this "Antony," one of her advocates at the bar of Justice.

JOHN W. FINCH, D.D.S., ADRIAN,

a record of whose life we now give, was born in Arcadia, Wayne County, New York, June 6, 1826. His boyhood was spent upon a farm. In his ninth year he moved to Orleans County, New York, where he followed the plow, and attended school summers and winters. In 1844 he removed to Wayne County, New York, and the three succeeding years engaged in the daguerreian business, teaching school winters. He was thus employed until his twenty-first year,—that era of independence to which all youth aspire,—when he left his native State, wended his way westward to Ohio, and settled in Medina County, where he taught school the four following winters. He spent his summers in Illinois, and was a contractor on the Illinois Central Railroad; but not affiliating with the fever and ague prevailing there, he gave up the work, returned to Ohio, and resumed teaching. The summer following he went to Western Virginia, where he was employed on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad; but in the fall he gravitated back, not only to Ohio, but to his former calling, and taught the same school he had charge of the preceding winter. During this time he became acquainted with Miss Frances M. Thorp, whom he afterwards married, in 1855. He then went to Chicago, and for two years engaged in the grocery business. In that city his oldest son, Sherman F., was born. He next went to Minnesota, residing there during its first year's existence as a State, 1857-8. The Doctor then returned to Ohio, where he engaged in dentistry, residing in Cleveland from 1858 to 1862, when he removed to Adrian, and established himself in his profession. Here his second son, Arthur E., was born, February 8, 1863.

The Doctor has been quite a rover, but after a ten years' residence in Adrian he considers himself, if not an "old settler," at least settled for the future. He can be found at his office (in the Michigan State Insurance building), where he is always ready to meet his friends or any others suffering from toothache, and whose decayed and offending members he extracts without pain. Although he does not aspire to wear the toga of the senator, the laurels of the poet, or the sword of the warrior, he may well be ranked among the public benefactors of Lenawee County.

EDWIN COMSTOCK, ADRIAN,

was born in Farmington, Ontario County, New York, July 16, 1816. At the age of nine years he went to Lockport, where he remained three years upon a farm. In the year 1829 he removed to Michigan, and settled in Adrian Township, which has since been his home. In 1839 he removed to the city, and for the past three decades has been interested in its growth and prosperity. He was employed in a warehouse a year and a half, after which he embarked in the grocery business, which for thirty years he carried on successfully. He was also city recorder for one term. In 1845 he was married to Miss Emeline Brown, the fruits of which union have been three children, one of whom (Alice) is living, and married to A. D. Brown. Mr. Comstock is still engaged in mercantile pursuits, carrying on an extensive business in general marketing. He is one of the few living early pioneers of Adrian Township, which for over two-score years has known him as one of her most esteemed citizens.

AN OLD PIONEER, HUDSON.

Beriah H. Lane was born in Enfield, Massachusetts, December 23, 1800. His youth was spent at home on his father's farm until he was twenty-one years of age. He learned the trade of a carpenter and joiner, and subsequently worked at his trade at both Worcester and Enfield, Mass., until the spring of 1834, when he emigrated to Michigan. The fall previous he married Phebe Parkman, of Enfield. On arriving at the Adrian settlement the advantages of the Bear Creek country were the common topic of conversation, and he was induced by the flattering accounts to locate there. He accordingly purchased a tract of land, one hundred and ten acres, which comprised what is now that part of Hudson Village lying between the corners at J. K. Boies & Co.'s store and the corners east side of the river at N. Perkins's store, and running north half a mile. He also entered at the United States Land Office the farm now owned by S. Kenyon, also the land now owned by Mr. Ocobock. He also bought of Jesse Kimball fifty-five acres, comprising that part of the present village of Hudson from the post-office to the County line and from Main Street north eighty rods. At that time this whole country was a wilderness. Where the village now stands the only clearing was about an acre and a half, chopped by Reuben Davis, but not cleared off, and there was but one log house partially completed. Mr. Lane has been an eye-witness of the growth and progress of Hudson without intermission from that time to this, and bore his share of the hardships and privations of the new country. The first township-meeting ever held in Hudson was at his house, April 4, 1836. He was the first postmaster of the place, his commission bearing date April 19, 1836, and he held the position until Harrison's election. The first meeting for religious worship in the town was held at his house, August 9, 1835, Rev. Wm. Wolcott, then of Adrian (now of Hudson), preaching the sermon. The first Sabbath-school was also organized at his house, June 7, 1835. At the first township-meeting he was elected justice of the peace, and held the office eight years. He was one of those who organized the Congregational Church of Hudson, in the winter of 1836, and has been an exemplary and useful member of that body ever since. In the spring of 1837 his wife, who helped him to set up a home in the wilderness, was taken from him by death, and a few years afterwards he married Julia M. Anderson, of Hudson, who has been his helpmate and companion to the present time. Of the first marriage there were three children, two of whom are deceased; the other, Nathaniel, has for several years carried on successfully the machinery and engine-building business in Hudson. Of the last marriage there have been four children, two of whom are dead; Edward is in California, and Theresa, the youngest, is the wife of Colonel C. W. Rose, of Bryan, Ohio. Mr. Lane has a pleasant home on the east side of the river, in Hudson, and is spending the evening of his days in quiet and contentment, enjoying the respect and esteem of the entire community and of all who have made his acquaintance.

JAMES J. HOGABOAM, HUDSON, was born in Canada, township of Cornwall, on the St. Lawrence River, in the year 1830, his father having moved there from New York a year or two previous. With his parents he came to Monroe County, Mich., in 1836, and to Hudson in 1840. His father, a carpenter and joiner by trade, owned a farm in Pittsford, Hillsdale County, until within a few years, and there James J. spent most of his time until he was twenty years of age, attending school winters. He then went to Albion College, and taught school several winters; in 1852 commenced reading law with Judge Webb, then of Hudson; he also read with E. B. Turner, of Centerville, Mich., now of Texas. In July, 1853, he was admitted to the bar, at Coldwater. In 1853 he married Miss Emeline A. Tyler, of Colon, St. Joseph County, Mich. In the spring of 1854 he returned to Hudson, and after engaging in various employments, moved to Morenci, and practiced law there until 1860, and since that date at Hudson. He has held the offices of justice of the peace, notary public, Circuit Court commissioner, United States commissioner, and town clerk for the past eight or ten years, and still performs the duties of most of them. His business is principally that of the legal profession, and in administering justice. Mr. Hogaboam is an honored and esteemed citizen, yet in the prime of life, with years of usefulness before him, and vigorous powers yet to be employed for the benefit of his fellow-citizens.

GEORGE W. GREEN, M.D., HUDSON.

This gentleman, whose portrait will be found on page 10, was born at Madison, Lake County, Ohio, March 6, 1837. He received his education primarily at Oberlin, Ohio, and graduated from the medical department of the University of Michigan, in the year 1862. He was married the same year to Miss Nancy E. Bugbee, of Orangeport, New York. He served as assistant surgeon of the 28th Michigan Infantry Regiment during its entire organization. He practiced his profession at Three Rivers, Michigan, during 1862-3. He settled in Hudson, Lenawee County, in 1866, where he has since resided and followed his calling. Although not a political aspirant, in the fall campaign of 1872 he was nominated by the "Liberal" party for State Senator, and not only received the support of his party, but ran ahead of his ticket. However, the field of medicine is the one for which he is peculiarly fitted, and to the practice of which he is enthusiastically devoted. Although comparatively young in years, he already stands in the front ranks of Lenawee's practitioners.

LORENZO PALMER, HUDSON, was born in Litchfield, Connecticut, February 27, 1803. His parents emigrated to Delaware County, New York, and subsequently to Michigan, in 1843, arriving at Hudson the day before the first locomotive. Married in 1824, and his wife dying in February, 1853, he again married, May, 1854. The result of these unions has been ten children, of whom six are living. He came to this State a poor man, but by hard labor and strict economy he has made himself a comfortable home. In his early life he followed teaching for twenty years; and since coming to Michigan has taught school, worked at his trade, that of carpenter; has been a notary public and justice of the peace for past twenty years, and held the office of supervisor of Hudson for fourteen years. Of his sons, one is proprietor of the butter-tub factory at Hudson, another a physician at Jonesville, another a farmer in Jefferson, Hillsdale County; the others being in Illinois, Iowa, and Missouri. Mr. Palmer has had many discouragements, twice losing heavily by fire; but now, in his seventy-first year, can look back upon a useful, well-spent life. He is generally esteemed, as an honest man and a true citizen.

EDWIN M. HULBURD, HUDSON, was born in Seneca County, Ohio, October 6, 1830. He spent his youth in Sandusky County, upon the site of old "Fort Stephenson," a spot full of historic memories. He came to Hudson in the spring of 1857, and, in connection with N. R. Braley, engaged in milling, in the "Eureka Mill," putting in machinery, etc., and which, with improvements, he still occupies in sole proprietorship. It is located on the Tiffin, just north of the railroad, and within the village corporation. It has two run of stone and a splendid water-power. It is the only grist-mill in Hudson. Mr. H. was married in 1856 to Helen M. Morgan, and has raised a family of four children; all living, and all born in Hudson.

He took a patriotic part in the Rebellion. In 1862 he raised Company A, 18th Michigan Infantry, and served with credit till the close of the war, in the Department of the Cumberland. During his army service he was promoted to major, and at its close was lieutenant-colonel commanding.

HIRAM N. FELLOWS, HUDSON.

To place before the people of Lenawee County the record of such a man as Hiram N. Fellows, and to do full justice to him and that band of pioneers of whom he is one, is no light task; for it is to such men as he that the people of this County are indebted for much that they now enjoy. In order that we may more fully appreciate the services of our pioneers, in making from an almost unbroken wilderness what is now one of the finest and wealthiest counties in the State, and that we may know something of the trials, privations, and hardships which these men endured in the "pioneer times," we record in this sketch a brief history of Mr. Fellows,—one who knows by actual experience what our early settlers had to contend with. But little is known of the ancestors of Mr. F., further than that they were of English descent. His father, Judson Fellows, married Miss Hannah Andrews, and the result of this union was six children; all of whom are now dead except him of whom we write, who was born September 7, 1818, in the town of Brutus, Cayuga County, New York. His boyhood days were spent upon the farm. At the age of seventeen, being imbued with that indomitable energy and perseverance which characterized a large number of the pioneers, and being possessed of a hardy constitution and a strong muscular organization, he severed the associations which bound him to the home of his boyhood and emigrated to what was at that time the Territory of Michigan, locating in Medina Township, in this County. Here for a number of years he worked upon a farm by the month; and in pursuance of his cherished object, "a farm of his own," he carefully saved all that he earned, and bought land. As an illustration of what he has had to pass through in order to obtain the comfortable home that he now enjoys, we mention the freshet of June, 1836, which we presume is still fresh in the minds of those who were residents of the township at that time. After a continuous rain of fourteen days the country was nearly inundated, and the family for whom he was at work at the time got completely out of everything in the line of provisions except some dried venison. The want of the common necessities of life had visited the household many times before; but isolated as they were, and the country overflowed with water, their situation was really desperate. A family consultation was held, and young Hiram offered to go to the nearest neighbor, thirteen miles away, and borrow something upon which the family could subsist until the water subsided. Arising the following morning, and breakfasting from a piece of dried venison, he started on foot. He was obliged to walk nearly the whole distance through water, which in some places was waist-deep. He arrived safely and found that the family had some flour, of which he borrowed twelve pounds, and started to return, carrying his flour and protecting it from the rain with his umbrella, and making the round trip in one day. In 1841 Mr. Fellows was married to Miss Maria Perry, daughter of Abel Perry, Esq., of Medina Township. They have been blessed with four children, all of whom are now living, and named respectively in the order of their ages as follows: Abel, Frank A., Alice M., and Ulysses Grant. In 1851 he moved from Medina Township to Rome, and from thence to Hudson Township, where he now lives. He has a fine farm of eighty acres, all under a high state of cultivation and well stocked. In politics Mr. Fellows is a staunch Democrat; has never forsaken the principles which he believes to be the only sure and safe foundation of a free government.

In closing our sketch it only remains for us to say that Mr. Fellows has the reputation of being a thoroughly honest, true, and good man, who has the confidence and respect of every one with whom he is associated.

son of Israel Bliss, and grandson of Timothy Bliss, who settled at Royalston, Mass., about the year 1770, was born at the above-named place in 1790. In 1814, with his brother Sylvanus, he came to the far West, and settled in Huron County, Ohio; married, in 1815, Nancy Woodbury, a native of Vermont, with whom he lived until his death, and by whom he had seven children,—six of them now living. In the spring of 1816 he removed to what is now the city of Monroe, then a hamlet of four families, in the Territory of Michigan; and a year later, with several other families, settled on government land thirteen miles up the river Raisin, from which, in 1819, he, with some dozen other families, were driven off by the Indians who claimed the land, subsequently set apart as the "Macon Reserve." So he moved to Raisinville, three miles below, and resided there until 1824, when he moved some twenty miles up the Raisin, cutting his way through heavy timber from Petersburg, a distance of ten miles, and which was the nearest point whence supplies could be obtained,—settling on land now occupied by the village of Blissfield, of which he was the founder, and which was named in his honor. He was a "ruling elder" in the Presbyterian Church, which he joined in 1829. In 1827 he was commissioned by Governor Cass as justice of the peace, which office, with that of town clerk and postmaster, he held at the time of his decease, in 1841, aged fifty-two. He left four sons and two daughters, all living. The eldest son, William W. (whose portrait appears on another page), is engaged in mercantile pursuits in Blissfield, with his oldest son, W. Irving Bliss. The younger son, A. L. Bliss, is interested in the real estate and insurance business in Adrian, in connection with Charles M. Bliss, son of W. W. Bliss. The remaining sons of Hervey Bliss are farmers, located at Deerfield and Ottawa Lake, Mich.

CHARLES BLAIR

was born in the year 1802, in Middlefield, Otsego County, New York; a representative of the good old Puritan stock of New England farmers, whose energy, industry, and purity of character have stamped their impress on the whole North.

Educated in the common school and academy of the olden time, he was a thorough student, and in his early manhood a successful teacher and public officer. He emigrated to this County in 1830 with his wife and two children; the elder, Papira, a girl of three years, who in early maidenhood married William S. Blackmore, of the town of Cambridge, in this County, and while his wife she was taken to the better land, a whole-hearted Christian, beloved in life and lamented in death; the younger child being a bright boy, one year old, Daniel C. Blair, who in after-years became one of the leading men in Franklin, and is now a worthy, energetic, and Christian citizen of Napoleon, Jackson County.

Two more children were afterwards born to him. One of them is now Mrs. E. M. Blackmore, of Napoleon, who is an active supporter of all benevolent enterprises in the village and vicinity where she resides, and an ardent worker for the interests of the Congregational Church and the cause of Christ.

The youngest is named Josephine, now the wife of Charles Graves, with whom the widow of Charles Blair now makes her home, and upon whom she leans in her declining years as a substitute for the support and comfort of a kind-hearted and noble husband.

As a school-teacher, Mr. Blair never whipped but one scholar, although he taught in a day when whipping was the rule; and though his family government was perfect, he never struck a child of his a single blow.

Having previously selected one hundred and sixty acres of good land in Franklin, Mr. Blair moved upon it with his family December 1, 1830, and built a log house three miles from the nearest neighbor, where he lived for several days with the house half roofed, with blankets for doors, mother earth for a floor, and the blue canopy of heaven as a shelter from the storm. On this farm he lived until the day of his death, beautifying and improving his home; an important item of which was the building, in 1848, of the finest residence then in the town of Franklin. In this work he was greatly aided by the assistance and encouragement of his faithful wife, without whom he could not have braved and overcome the many severe trials of sickness and privation incident to pioneer life.

In politics he was a Democrat of the old school, a firm believer in equal rights, and an active and earnest advocate of his political and religious views, but tolerant and charitable to the views of others. Elected supervisor of the old town of Tecumseh when it embraced the whole northern part of the County, after Franklin was organized into a separate township he was elected supervisor of the latter town for a series of years, though often a majority were opposed to him politically. In 1842, and again in 1845, he was elected to the State Legislature, and served with credit to himself and great usefulness to the community. He was an earnest supporter of the "two-thirds law," for the benefit of debtors, and a firm advocate of the abolition of capital punishment. In all his relations he was pre-eminently an honest man, faithful to his friends, honest and conscientious in the discharge of every duty; a noble example of that band of upright farmers of the generation just past, who left their impress upon the country's history, and made honesty and integrity the rule for the politician and statesman, instead of the exception. Every just cause had in him a generous supporter, every honest young man a warm-hearted and trusty friend. He peacefully met his death on the 28th day of July, 1852, on the farm where he first settled, and where his widow still resides, in full reliance on the goodness and mercy of God, beloved and lamented by all who knew him. His mortal remains were the first which found a burial in the new and beautiful Franklin Cemetery, and rest beneath a plain monument, bearing the expressive inscription:

"His was a noble spirit,
Good, generous, and brave."

These extracts from private letters show the high esteem in which he was held by his intimate friends:

"He was all that you state in your letter, and no man in the town, to my knowledge, stood higher in public esteem, or was more universally respected by all his neighbors and acquaintances.

JOHN J. ADAM."

"I am glad to do this much for an old, true, and noble friend. Your letter recalled to my mind his many deeds of kindness to me, when I first came to Tecumseh a poor and needy boy. His encouragement to act conscientiously and right have always left their impress upon my heart.

C. A. STACY."

WILLIAM WEATHERBY, JR., FAIRFIELD.

William Weatherby and his wife, Relief Miller, were born in Massachusetts, in the years 1769 and 1775, and married in 1797. They came to the Territory of Michigan in 1831, when the country was a wilderness, and settled in Blissfield (now Fairfield) Township, where they died in 1835, within one month of each other. Mr. Weatherby, son of the above, was born in Manchester, Vermont, in 1813; married Sarah Carpenter, December 31, 1835; she being born in New York, in 1815. He came to Michigan with his parents, entered eighty acres of government land, comprising part of his present farm, and to which he has since added to the extent of two hundred and sixty acres. For over forty years he has followed the vocation of a farmer, in the same location, and by hard labor has established a fine farm, and erected a large house in the place of the one destroyed by fire a few years since. A view of his residence may be seen on another page. His wife is still living, but he has neither father, mother, brother, sister, or child living,—all having died since he came to Michigan.

GEORGE HALL, JR., BLISSFIELD.

Mr. Hall, while yet in his "teens," came to Blissfield, in 1841, where and when he began his real career, upon a farm, at four dollars a month. In 1849 he bought forty-nine acres of wild land, upon which he still lives; he now has one hundred and fifty acres under fine cultivation, including ten acres of apple-orchard, and feels a true pride in having the finest in the County. His theory in regard to fruit culture is to manure high for nourishment, and never prune,—to this, and careful management, he attributes his success. Mr. Hall is truly a self-made man, and has the respect of his neighbors for practical management and energy of character. A view of his residence may be seen on another page.

ISRAEL S. HODGES, OGDEN.

was born June 29, 1810, in Onondaga County, State of New York. Was the second son of Zebedee and Alice Hodges, and was reared to the tune of industry, both on the farm and in the saw-mill. His only schooling was in the log school-house, but by close application to study he acquired an education which enabled him to teach in the common school of his day. Observation, reading, and home study afterwards persevered in, made him a practical business man and scholar. At the age of twenty he joined his fortunes in matrimony with Miss Pamelia M. Rathbone, who is still his faithful companion. They have had four sons and seven daughters, of whom three sons and four daughters are living. In September, 1835, he emigrated with his family and small fortune to Lenawee County. Settled first in Palmyra Township. Soon after went to Hillsdale County, and remained there, farming and sawing lumber, till December, 1850, when he returned to this County, and settled where he now lives, in Ogdén Township. He is now well-to-do. Besides the responsibility of domestic and private matters, he has always taken a forward part in the support of his church (United Brethren) and in public affairs, both of his town and county,—enjoying the respect and confidence of his fellow-citizens to such an extent that he has been honored with many offices of trust. He was justice of the peace, road commissioner, etc.; for six years served as supervisor of his township, and one term (1861-2) as a member of the State Legislature. During the war he was unanimously chosen to take charge of filling the quotas of volunteers of his township. One of his sons served upward of three years in the army of the Union. A view of his residence will be found in this Atlas.

SAMUEL HOPKINS, OGDEN.

was born June 26, 1818, in Preston County, West Virginia. His father, Levi Hopkins, was the third son of Rev. Samuel Hopkins, D.D., the great preacher of Revolutionary times. His father and two of his father's brothers bore a heroic part in the Revolution, one of them being a commissary. His grandfather was a cousin of Stephen Hopkins, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and a direct descendant of the Puritans. Levi Hopkins was born and married in Connecticut; was first married to Miss Abigail Stephens, with whom he moved, to improve their health, to the mountainous region of West Virginia, in 1795. Having lived there several years, his wife died, and in 1811 he married Miss Elizabeth Yantz, the mother of the subject of this memoir. She presented her husband with four children (two sons and two daughters), of whom Samuel was the youngest. Levi Hopkins was educated, like his renowned father, for the ministry, but decided not to follow that profession; although a pious, devout man, he chose to follow the vocation of farming. Living in so rural a district, he had poor facilities for educating his family. Mr. Samuel Hopkins married Susannah Loar in 1838. In 1855 he removed with his family and few worldly possessions to where he now lives, in Ogdén Township. He has eleven children, all living. He is now a well-to-do farmer; has given his children opportunities for acquiring an education to the extent of the facilities of the district, so that those who have gone from home to act for themselves now fill useful and respectable places in society, and are successful business managers. Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins are devoted members of the United Brethren Church.

EBENEZER HARMON, MACON.

was born in Phelps, Ontario County, New York, September 6, 1809. At the age of twenty-one he left his parents' roof and went to work for Luther Root, in the village of Phelps, with whom he remained nearly four years. In November, 1832, he married Miss Sally Burges, and in the spring of 1834, with his wife and child, emigrated West, and settled in the town of Macon. Mr. Harmon found his new home to be in the midst of a dense wilderness. He purchased eighty acres of land, and it may be mentioned that after buying his land, and a third interest in a cow, a yoke of cattle, and a wagon, he had but three dollars left. He was the first person to go through on the Ridge Road from Ridgeway to Mooreville with a team and wagon. Mr. Harmon added to his farm until he had three hundred and twenty acres of land, well improved, and which he has divided among his children, retaining eighty acres as a homestead. His farm is one of the best watered in the County, having upon it several flowing wells, one of which throws its clear and crystal-like waters upward of twelve feet in the air. Mr. H. is a respected and honored citizen, a kind husband and loving father,—a man looked up to by all as a kind-hearted, public-spirited townsman.

WILLIAM B. HILL, PALMYRA.

Mr. Hill is one of the many citizens of Lenawee County who trace their nativity to the great "Empire State." Born August 1, 1834, at Leon, Cattaraugus County, he removed with his parents to this County, at twelve years of age. During the year 1849 he paid a visit to Toledo, Ohio, and there engaged as clerk in a mercantile house, for two seasons, reserving the winters to attend the public school. Experience in the employ of others, added to his privileges at school, had now (1851) prepared him to manage for himself; and from this on to 1859, in the same city, he successfully applied his energies in two successive copartnerships. December 1, 1857, he was united in marriage to Miss Exena E. Ingersoll, the fruits of which have been four children and a happy home. Two years later he retired from business to the preferred vocation of farming, in which he is now engaged, being very pleasantly situated in Palmyra Township. He is now serving (unsought) his seventh consecutive term as supervisor, beside having filled other offices of trust in his township. Socially genial, enterprising and industrious in private life, accomplished and faithful as a public servant, he is deservedly honored and esteemed by his fellow-citizens. A view of his residence will be found on another page.

HENRY STODDARD, ROME.

Whitman Stoddard was born in Litchfield, Connecticut, about the year 1790. He served as a soldier in the War of 1812, was taken prisoner by the British and held in close confinement at Halifax during one winter. Upon his release he returned to Litchfield, where he married Rhoda Benham, of Byron, N. Y., by whom he had two children. She died in Sheldon, Wyoming County, N. Y., in 1820. Mr. Stoddard then married Mrs. Esther McClellan, and in 1834 moved to Rome Township, Lenawee County. By his second wife he had six children, the eldest of whom was Henry, the subject of this record, he being born in Sheldon, Wyoming County, N. Y., February 22, 1822. From New York the subject of our biography came to Michigan with his parents, with whom he lived until he was twenty-two years of age. His father died July 7, 1867. On the 21st of March, 1844, Mr. Stoddard married Caroline F. Young. A son and a daughter blessed this union; but the son, named after his father, Henry, was drowned at Round Lake, in Rollin, on the 19th of June, 1869. Mr. Stoddard lived on his farm in Rome Township until 1870, when with Mr. A. P. Kimball and two other companions he took a trip to Arkansas. Finishing his business there, he, with his companions, started for home, taking passage on the steamer "Emma No. 3," but Mr. S. was destined to never reach his earthly home, the steamer being burned at Island 35, in the Mississippi River, on the 19th of February, 1870. Upward of one hundred persons suffered death through this disaster, among whom were Mr. Stoddard and two of his companions, Mr. Kimball saving himself by swimming, but reached the banks of the river only after great exertion.

A. P. KIMBALL

was born November 17, 1841, in Lenawee County, Michigan. He lived with his widowed mother until he was nineteen years of age, when at the commencement of the Rebellion he enlisted as a private for the three months' service, under Captain W. H. Graves, in Company K, 1st Michigan Infantry. He took part with his regiment in the first movements of the Union troops around Washington, and participated in the battle of Bull's Run. On the 9th of August, 1861, he was discharged from the service, and on the 9th of the following September he re-enlisted in the 3d Michigan Cavalry, under Captain Latimer. From Grand Rapids, where that regiment was organized, he went with it to St. Louis, Mo., where they went into winter quarters in "Benton Barracks." From this time Mr. Kimball took part in all the battles in which his regiment participated, which included the battles of New Madrid, Pittsburg Landing, Farmington, Iuka, Corinth, Wyatt's Landing, Jackson (Tenn.), Coffeeville, Ripley, Panola, and many others. Mr. Kimball entered the service as a private, but by promotion became second lieutenant of Company D of his regiment. On the 11th of June, 1865, he was discharged from the service at Baton Rouge, La., and returned home, where, in the latter part of the year, he married Miss Cornelia M. Stoddard, only daughter of Henry Stoddard; the fruits of this union have been two children, viz., Burton S., born May 8, 1868, and Eda Bell, born June 13, 1871. Mr. Kimball and family own two hundred and forty-five acres of land, which is under a fine state of improvement, and which is considered one of the best-watered farms in Rome Township. Mr. Kimball has always taken a lively interest in all matters pertaining to the public welfare; and as a good citizen, honorable man, and enterprising farmer, enjoys the respect of all.

DAVID SMITH, JR., ROME.

Mr. Smith was born in New York, and moved to Rome Township, Lenawee County, in 1832. In 1833 he entered one hundred and twenty acres of government land, which he commenced to clear and get ready for crops, and which farm has been his home to the present time. In 1836 he married Miss Emeline Hawley, of Rome Township, and has since been blessed with a family of six children. Mr. S. was elected school commissioner, and set off the first school district in the townships of Rome and Adrian, it being a fractional district. He has also held various other offices of public trust. He now owns a farm of one hundred and four acres, well watered, and upon which are many of the modern conveniences of a well-arranged farm. Mr. Smith is looked upon by his fellow-townsmen as a good citizen and an honorable man, and as such enjoys the respect of all.

JAMES K. JEFFERY, ROME.

was born in Cheriton, County of Kent, England, in 1803. For several years, while young, he attended school in his native place; he also attended school one year in France. March 8, 1826, he married Harriet Marsh, who was born in Dover, England, August 11, 1800. In 1830, with his family, he sailed for America, where he settled in Oneida County, New York. There he lived until 1836, when he emigrated to Rome Township, Lenawee County, Michigan, where he purchased land and made himself a home. In 1837 he lost his house and his household goods by fire. In 1842 Mr. Jeffery purchased the land upon which he lives at the present time. In 1852 he started with a company for an overland journey to California, with a son and two daughters. His son died on the way and was buried on the plains. After almost incredible hardships the rest reached California, where Mr. J. remained but a short time and then returned to Lenawee County. In 1864 he again suffered the loss of his house and nearly all its contents by fire. Mr. Jeffery's farm now consists of one hundred and twenty acres, nearly all of which are under a fine state of improvement. Mr. Jeffery came to Rome when the settlers were few, has always taken an active part in everything pertaining to the interests of his township, and enjoys the respect and esteem of his fellow-citizens.

U. L. BLANCHARD, MEDINA.

was born June 27, 1835, in Oakland County, Michigan. Being left without a father while young, he, at the age of thirteen, came to Medina Township, in Lenawee County, where he lived with an uncle until he was twenty-one years of age. On attaining his majority he purchased a farm on Section 36, in the township mentioned, where he lived until 1863, when he purchased the farm where he now resides. On the 10th of April, 1855, Mr. Blanchard married Miss Clarissa O. Baldwin, of Medina, and the result of this union has been a family of eight children, viz.: Lura E., born February 7, 1856; Charles E., born March 26, 1858; Ernest W., born November 2, 1860; Cyrus M., born March 3, 1862; Willard A., born December 2, 1865; Ethel N., born October 17, 1866; Walter M., born July 30, 1869; and Effie E., born October 19, 1872. All of the above children are now living, with the exception of Ernest W. and Ethel N. Mr. Blanchard's farm consists of two hundred and eighty acres of land, and such is the high state of cultivation and improvement to which he has brought it, that it has more the appearance of being a well-kept garden than a large farm. An illustration of Mr. B.'s farm may be seen elsewhere in this work. For several years he has given much attention to raising fine blooded stock, and the result is that some of his cattle cannot be surpassed in the County, if in the State. Among his Durhams may be mentioned the "Duke of Hillsdale." The fine residence, long rows of shade-trees, well-kept fences, the pleasant surroundings, all form a home that cannot be described by the pen, but which point out Mr. Blanchard as a man of energy and enterprise.

SUFFRENUS DEWEY, MEDINA.

the subject of this biography, was born in Schoharie County, New York, May 14, 1797. While young he was bound out to a man living in Augusta, Oneida County, with whom he lived two years; at the end of that time he was again bound out to a man by the name of Rice, with whom he lived until 1818, when he left him and went to Leroy, New York, where he worked at the carpenter's trade. In 1824 he married Diana Stevenson, of Leroy, and continued to work at the carpenter's trade until 1832, at which time he went to Brockport, New York. In the fall of 1834 he moved with his family to Lenawee County, and bought land, which he settled upon and cleared. Here Mr. Dewey followed farming until 1846, when, leaving his family comfortably provided for, he went to Wisconsin and worked at his trade. While he was absent death was busy at work among his loved ones at home, and he lost three of his children. In 1860 he returned to Michigan with his wife, she having joined her husband in Wisconsin after the death of her children. In April, 1863, death again crossed Mr. Dewey's threshold and claimed his wife for a victim. In 1865 he married again.

Among the many buildings Mr. Dewey has erected, while working at his trade, may be mentioned the Masonic Temple, in Genesee County, New York, and the Globe Mills, at Tecumseh, Michigan. As an honored and respected citizen Mr. Dewey enjoys the confidence in the highest degree of the community in which he resides.

WILLIAM SUTTON, MEDINA.

was born in the township of Junius, Seneca County, New York, on the 2d day of May, 1808. The grandfather of the above-named gentleman was a soldier during the Revolutionary War, having enlisted when but sixteen years of age. He took part in nearly all of the many prominent battles which took place during the war for our independence in the States of New Jersey and the Carolinas. He received seven severe sword-wounds, but lived to tell in after-years of the battles fought and won by the patriots of 1776. He died at his home in Seneca County, N. Y., in 1825. His wife moved subsequently to Wayne County, where she died in 1837. The subject of our biography lived in Seneca County until he was about sixteen years of age, at which time he went to Lyons, Wayne County, N. Y., and learned the carpenter's trade. On the 16th of June, 1829, he married Miss Rebecca Burnett, of Ontario County, N. Y. Mr. Sutton resided in Lyons until the spring of 1835, when, with his wife and three children, he started for Michigan. Arriving at Toledo, by way of the lakes, in the fall of 1835, he started with his family through the then almost unbroken wilderness, and after a toilsome journey of weeks, he arrived at the spot where Morenci now stands. Here he lived for about two years, and then purchased land in the township of Gorham, Fulton County, Ohio. He lived on this farm (which he still owns) until about three years since, when he moved to his present place of residence in Medina Township, where he owns one hundred and twenty acres of land. Mr. Sutton owns the two farms above mentioned, which aggregate four hundred and sixty acres. Over three hundred acres of this land are under a fair state of cultivation, the remainder consisting of timber- and grazing-land. Mr. Sutton and wife have reared a family of fourteen children, viz., George B., Henry H., Julia Ann, Andrew J., James M., Sarah J., Robert B., Harvey, Mary L., Charles A., William W., Helen L., Oliver C., and Frank,—all of whom are now living with the exception of Henry, Oliver, and Helen. Mr. Sutton has lived an active, energetic life; he has lived to see the former forest-covered country give way to man's industry, and become settled by thousands of prosperous citizens.

E. A. MILLIKEN, MEDINA.

was born on the 13th of June, 1813, in Dublin, New Hampshire. His parents moved to Keene, N. H., when he was three years of age. In 1836 he married Miss Susan E. Town, also of Keene. In 1838 Mr. Milliken and wife moved to Clarendon, Orleans County, N. Y., where they were blessed with three children,—Susan E., born March 11, 1839; E. A. Milliken, Jr., born December 14, 1840; and Emily E., born April 27, 1842. The mother of these children died October 14, 1842. Her infant daughter, Emily, died on the 16th of the same month, and, folded in the arms of her mother, they were committed to the same grave. March 3, 1847, at Wells River, Vt., Mr. Milliken married Miss Christiana Laing, his present wife. They continued to live in Orleans County, where their son, Robert L., was born, April 21, 1848. In the fall of 1853 he moved with his family to Hudson Township, in Lenawee County, and where, on the 18th of March, 1857, James D. Milliken was born. Here the subject of our sketch lived until the spring of 1869, when he moved to his present place of residence in Medina Village, where he is at the present time engaged in keeping a hotel. Mr. Milliken is a genial, kind-hearted man, who has a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

JOHN L. HALL, MEDINA.

On the 14th of December, 1813, the subject of this record was born, in Parma, Monroe County, New York. When he was seven years old his father died, and from that time to near his majority he lived with his relatives, working at farming. In the spring of 1834 he determined to seek a home in the West. During this year he came to Medina Township, in this County, and bought eighty acres of land, where he resides at the present time. After a few months' residence in Michigan he returned to Parma, N. Y., but in the fall of 1835 returned to Lenawee County. Subsequently he worked at farming in Adrian, and at Peoria and Rock Island, in Ill., returning to Adrian, where he worked at various occupations until 1841, when he married Miss Clarissa Crane, of Madison Township, Lenawee County. Mr. Hall erected a log house upon his piece of land, into which he moved on the 17th of December, same year. He has three children, whose names are as follows: Carolina, born November 5, 1842; Harriet J., April 14, 1849; and Phoebe M., November 29, 1858. Mr. Hall has a farm of two hundred and sixty acres, one hundred and twenty of which are under good improvement. He resides in a good brick house, surrounded by outbuildings having conveniences not generally found on a farm. The subject of this sketch is an enterprising citizen, and enjoys the respect of his fellow-townsmen.

BENJAMIN HORNBECK, MEDINA.

This gentleman, whose brief record we now give, was born in the State of New Jersey, in 1808, where he lived until he was about three years of age, at which time his parents moved to Phelps Township, Ontario County, N. Y. He lived at the latter place until 1834, at which time—having married Miss Phebe Reed—he came West with his wife, and bought a piece of land where Morenci is now built; but he only kept it for a short time, and in 1835 he bought the farm where he lives at the present time. Mr. Hornbeck has a family of nine children,—five boys and four girls,—all of whom are living. He has a farm of one hundred and thirty-six acres of land, on which there is a good orchard and a fine residence. Mr. Hornbeck is one of the oldest settlers of Medina Township, and as a good citizen is honored and respected by all.

WILLIAM F. WIRT, MEDINA.

was born in Cattaraugus County, New York, in 1827. Until he was eleven years of age he lived on his father's farm. At the age mentioned William was thrown on his own resources, and he then commenced life for himself. At this time he went to Orleans County, New York, where he lived, working on a farm, until he was twenty-one years of age; he then worked by the month at various occupations during the next two winters and three summers. In the fall of 1851 Mr. Wirt came to Medina Township, where he worked by the month at farming during that winter and the next year, when he bought two hundred acres of land, upon which he resides at the present time. In 1856 he married Miss Amanda Saulsbury, of Medina Township. She died on the 6th of July, 1861, and was the mother of one child, Clara E., born in 1858. Mr. Wirt on the 4th of the following November married Miss Eveline Curtis, of Hudson Township, by whom he has had seven children, of whom three only are living at the present time. Eighty acres of Mr. Wirt's farm are under a good state of cultivation, the rest consists of wood- and grazing-land. A fine orchard of upwards of three hundred trees furnishes a large variety of fruit, while a commodious brick house makes a comfortable home. Being thrown upon his own resources while young, Mr. Wirt had to contend against more than the ordinary discouragements which meet a young man who starts into the world to carve out his own fortune; but having an indomitable will, which could not be put down under any circumstances, he persevered, and his efforts have been crowned with success. Mr. Wirt has always taken an interest in everything pertaining to the public matters of his township, and is a good and enterprising citizen.

SAMUEL HINCKLEY, Esq., FAIRFIELD.

was born July 20, 1808, in Barre, Worcester County, Massachusetts. His father, Judah Hinckley, died when Samuel was sixteen years old. He had eleven children, eight sons and three daughters. Seven of the sons are now living.

Samuel, the subject of this sketch, attended school winters and worked out four summers after his father's death, when he married Miss Sarah Dewitt, of South Hadley, February 1, 1827, and removed to Genesee County, New York, remaining there until he came to the wilderness of Michigan, in 1834.

He moved into a house with Rev. Mr. Carpenter, who entertained four families in a log house eighteen by twenty-four feet. Seven families listened to the elder while he preached upon the holy Sabbath.

Mr. Hinckley cleared thirty acres for another man in order to pay for his own claim, entered for him by Daniel Scott. They have had seven children. Sarah S. and Sophia J. are both dead, while Sophia's orphan children are with Mr. Hinckley, namely, Herma E. and Hervey E. Munger. The remaining five—Samuel, born January 7, 1833; Francis, July 4, 1836; Fanny, December 23, 1840; Charles, July 19, 1842; John, April 9, 1844—are living. Mr. Hinckley, after suffering all the privations of an early settler, finally comes out with a fine farm, well stocked, and is now clearing one hundred dollars per month on his dairy.

JACOB HATHAWAY, SENECA.

the subject of this sketch, one of the early settlers of Lenawee County, and son of Jacob and Elizabeth Hathaway, was born on the 11th day of May, 1814, in the county of Seneca, State of New York. Mr. Hathaway was the seventh of a family of eleven children, of whom only two, beside him of whom we write, are now living. Young Jacob was a farmer's son, and his early years were passed amid pastoral scenes and duties,—and, like most young men in the country, was early initiated into the mysteries of the barn-yard, pasture, and harvest-field. His education was limited,—being obtained in the free schools of his native State.

On the 27th of November, 1833, he joined his lot in life with that of Miss Elizabeth Birdsall, also of Seneca County, New York. But with a family growing up around his hearth-stone, and with a prophetic eye to their future, he saw that the new country of the West offered a better chance of improving their fortune and of securing a comfortable home for their declining years. So, in the spring of 1838, he moved with his family to Dover, Lenawee County, Michigan. Subsequently he removed to the township of Seneca, in the same county, settling on the farm formerly occupied by Ralph Strong. On the 20th of January, 1847, the fell destroyer took away the wife and mother from the family circle; and on the 20th of December following Mr. H. married Isabella Reeder. She is a native of Gloucestershire, England, and since 1842 a resident of Varick, New York, and was born April 23, 1827.

Mr. Hathaway's vocation through life has been that of a tiller of the soil; he has also given much attention to the breeding of blooded stock, in which he takes much pride. In the acquisition of property he has been very successful, the secret of which was close application to business, and a rigid adherence to principles of honorable dealing with all. He is a strong supporter of educational and religious interests, and politically is an advocate of Republican principles. As a result of these sterling qualities, he has always held an influential position in the community where he lives. He has reared a family of nine children, and in his home, after the toil and cares of years, we leave him and his family, enjoying the bright summer of their lives, with hosts of attached friends around them. A fine view of his residence may be seen on another page of this work.

It would be natural to suppose that wealth and a liberal education had assisted in the creation of Mr. Hathaway's prosperity; but the reverse of this is true. His early education was only that of the common schools, and his wealth had to be carved by his own hands in a new, wild, and undeveloped country, where years of toil and hardship were the prerequisites of attaining the otium cum dignitate so much desired by all. He is an example of the self-made man, of which our western country furnishes so many notable illustrations, and is highly esteemed for his integrity by all with whom he is in any way associated.

OLIVER CHURCH, SENECA,

one of Lenawee's early settlers, and of whose life we desire at least to record the landmarks, was born of English parents (being the seventh child of Oliver and Florinda Church) April 27, 1822, in Seneca County, New York. In the fall of 1836 he cast his fortunes among the adventurous ones who had preceded him to the wilds of the Territory of Michigan, and settled in Madison Township, of this County; he afterward removed to Seneca Township, where he now resides, on Section 27. Feeling it was not good to be alone, he chose as the companion of his joys and sorrows Miss Henrietta Stevenson, of the last-named township, who was born in Paris, Oneida County, New York, in the year 1820. The result of this union has been four children, of whom three are living. Mr. Church is an agriculturist, and pays particular attention to blooded stock, in which he is a heavy dealer. By industry and economy he has been successful in acquiring a competence and a comfortable home, a view of which may be seen among the illustrations of Seneca Township. He has always preferred the quiet of home-life to the excitement of the political arena. He is also a strong supporter of school and church interests, a good citizen, and highly honored and esteemed by all who know him.

DR. H. S. WYMAN, SENECA, was born in Watertown, New York, August 6, 1839. His father, Hon. Oliver C. Wyman, was a member of the New York Legislature for several terms. The grandmother of Mrs. Wyman maintained herself and a family of seven children seven years during the Revolution, while the husband and father fought for America's freedom. The Doctor was educated in the common school, became a teacher at an early age, and removed to Indiana in his twenty-first year, where he was teaching when the War of the Rebellion broke out. Closing school, he assisted in raising a company, and went to Indianapolis; but arriving too late, the regiments were full, and the patriotic Hoosiers turned back. In the following August, under the call for "three years or during the war," the Doctor enlisted as a private in the 8th Indiana Infantry, which was assigned to General Fremont's Department, in Missouri; went into winter quarters on the Missouri River, and moved south under Lincoln's order for "all troops to move at once." The 8th was foremost in the battle of Pea Ridge. Marched over the Ozark Mountains to Helena, Ark. In September, 1862, they were employed in harassing Marmaduke, and followed him until the spring of 1863, when they joined the memorable Vicksburg campaign, and were in nearly all the battles and skirmishes that brought about Grant's unprecedented victory at the rebel stronghold.

On the 22d of May, 1863, the Doctor was struck in the left temple by a Minié-ball, which passed through the cheek-bone and tonsils, lodging in the side of the neck, remaining there until the 26th of June following. After being in hospital for nine months he was discharged on account of disability. He immediately turned his attention to the study and practice of medicine, and has now an excellent ride in Morenci and vicinity.

DENNIS WAKEFIELD, SENECA, was born in Thompson, Windham County, Connecticut, in 1810. His father, Moses Wakefield, died when Dennis was six years of age. His mother, Nancy Wakefield, obtained a livelihood for herself and family, consisting of two sons and one daughter, on a small patch of land until Dennis was twenty-one years of age. During this time he received a fair common-school education. He then worked out by the month for two years, after which he came to Fairfield (now Seneca), arriving in June, 1834; after taking a look at the country, he returned to Connecticut, where he gathered together his means and again started West, reaching Seneca in August, 1834. He bought four hundred and twenty acres of government land bordering on Bear Creek. He was married in July, 1839, to Miss Abigail F. Crosby, of Seneca, formerly from Thompson, Conn., by whom he had two sons, one of whom is now living, doing a banking business with his father at Morenci. Mr. Wakefield buried his first wife in 1845, and married Miss Charity Scofield in 1847, by whom he had two children, both of whom are now dead. Mrs. Charity Wakefield died in April, 1851, and Mr. Wakefield married his third wife, Miss Amanda Clover, of Worcester County, Mass., in October, 1853, with whom he now lives.

Having an aversion to public life, he has kept aloof from office. In company with two other gentlemen he built a saw- and grist-mill, and run a small store in connection with them in the village of Morenci for three years. He built and opened a bank in 1869, and has been doing an excellent business since. He owns a farm of one hundred and eighty acres, one hundred of which lie in the village of Morenci, on which is a fine house, in which he resides. The farm is worth about eighty or ninety dollars per acre. Mr. Wakefield's mother came West in 1835, and died in 1870, being eighty-five years of age.

Mr. Wakefield and wife are very pleasantly situated, and although they are wealthy, yet they think of something beside the almighty dollar, and are a benefit to the community in which they live.

PETER CODDINGTON, SENECA, was born in Seneca, Lenawee County, Michigan, in 1846; received his education in the common school and Raisin Valley Institute; was married on the 2d of April, 1865, to Miss Lenora Hooper, of Seneca, by whom he has had three children, two being dead and one now living, Master Earnest, who is six years of age. Little Charley died at the age of three years. Mr. Coddington now owns one hundred and thirty-six acres of land, worth seventy-five dollars per acre, good house and barn, and outbuildings to match. He has a dairy of first-class cows, and other stock, consisting of sheep, young cattle, and colts. His father was born in Tompkins County, N. Y., in 1810; married Annie Demund, of the same county, in 1837; came West in 1838, and took up the land now owned by Peter Coddington, and died in 1852. Peter was six years old when his father died; lived on the farm and worked out until 1865, making his own way in the world.

Mrs. Coddington is now twenty-five, being married at the age of seventeen. Everything about the premises betoken thrift and enterprise.

STEPHEN P. SPEAR, SENECA, was born in Palmyra, Wayne County, New York, in 1808. His father and mother came from Massachusetts to New York in an early day, and, pushing forty miles into the wilderness, they wrung from the dense forest a home, where they lived and died; having in all a family of nine children, the author of our sketch being the fifth. Stephen Spear was educated in the common school, lived with his father until he was twenty-one, and then, with the true spirit of his father, struck out on foot and alone, having twenty shillings in his pocket when he reached Lenawee County. He halted near Adrian, then in its infancy, in 1831. Here he worked out for a year and a half, and then took up one hundred and sixty acres of land. But the West furnished no helpmate, and in 1833, led by instinct as true as needle to the pole, he found himself returning to the source of attraction. It was Miss Lucinda Powell, daughter of the Rev. R. Powell, of Palmyra, N. Y. In the spring of 1834, supported by the presence and love of this excellent lady, he again set out for the new life in the new home. To exchange the culture and refinement of the East for the society of wolves and Indians was no small undertaking, but the tide was swelling, and the great West was to be made to blossom in the presence of civilization. He finally located on Bear Creek, about four miles from Morenci, where he now resides. Mr. and Mrs. Spear have reared a family of five children, viz., Philetus, Cordera, Eliza Jane, Judson, and Clinton L. Three are now living, and well-to-do in the world. Mr. Spear was drafted during the Black Hawk War; went with his company to Coldwater, where they camped a few days, and then marched to Niles, on the Big St. Joseph River, where they again went into camp, faring as soldiers fare, until the news of the capture of the celebrated Black Hawk reached them, when they received their discharge and one hundred and sixty acres of land. Uncle Sam is an excellent paymaster, and the gallant soldier well deserves the credit given.

SIMON D. WILSON, SENECA, was born in Thompson, Connecticut, in 1804. His father, David Wilson, was born in Bellingham, Mass. He went to Connecticut at the age of ten, and at the age of thirty married Miss Lucy Davis, with whom he lived until her death, which took place in her seventieth year.

Mr. Wilson survived her but five years. A family of seven children sprung up around them as flowers in the wilderness, yet not like the tender plants, to wither and die. Inured to hardship, Simon D. Wilson, the subject of our sketch, tried the Green Mountains at the age of ten. Here, among the hills and valleys, was laid the foundation for future life.

At the age of twenty-one he returned to Connecticut, and in his twenty-fifth year married Miss Millicent C. Baldwin, of Windsor, Mass. After a honeymoon of four years, they removed to the wilds of Michigan, and settled in Fairfield (now Seneca), on one hundred and sixty acres of government land, on which they lived and toiled for thirty-four years, when they removed to Morenci, leaving the old homestead, known as Wilson's Grove, in the hands of their son Charles, who was married in his twenty-second year to Miss Rose Hill, of Medina. They still reside on the old farm, which is now worth seventy-five dollars per acre.

When Mr. Wilson came to Fairfield (in 1834) there was but one family on the north within five miles, and on the west none under thirty miles, while on the south it was fifteen miles to the nearest neighbor. The three adjoining townships had no white man within their borders. Wolves made the night hideous with their unearthly howling, while the yell of the savage, mingled with the strange, weird-like music of the winds, were not cheering companions for the pioneer in his log house. Yet there were bright spots and many pleasant hours amid this solitude. The music of birds, the blazing fire in the huge old fireplace, and the occasional deer brought down by the crack of the rifle, together with the frugal meal and the rehearsal of bygone days, made up a chapter full of honest joy.

Mrs. Wilson died in February, 1864, and Mr. Wilson was married to Miss Alcinda Hooper in the November following. Mr. Wilson has been identified with the educational interests of his town, and foremost in the ranks in pushing on the car of progress. He is now sixty-nine years of age, and reads fine print without glasses.

ALVAH HOLT, SENECA,

In the town of Hollis, Hillsborough County, New Hampshire, on the 17th day of March, 1803, while the furious wind-storm was drifting the white snow against the fences and piling it to the window-sill of the house of Nathan Holt and his good wife Sybil, a faint cry came from within,—it was the first effort of Alvah Holt, the subject of this sketch. Twenty-one years passed over his head, and the boy of March 17 became a man. He graduated in the old log school-house and the shop of his father. For eleven years he cut stone in Onondaga, New York. In his twenty-fifth year he united his fortunes with Miss Mercy Shapley.

This union was crowned with five children, three of whom only budded to bloom in the garden of flowers beyond the grave.

Helen and Nettie are married, and live in Dundee, Michigan. Mr. Holt came to Seneca in 1834, and took up one hundred and sixty acres of land, two and a half miles north of what is now Morenci. There were then only seven families within twelve miles.

At Maumee Mr. H. took an Indian trail, following it to Bean Creek, bridging his way over logs and swales through the dense forests of Michigan. At nightfall he gathered the family around him, and, taking the chart that guides the traveler through the wilderness of this life, he read, and, kneeling on nature's wild, yet sacred soil, committed to God his earthly interests. Time wore on, the sunlight found its way to an open field of the first ten acres cleared; but in the midst of opening joy came the cold and clammy sweat of death.

The three children, before referred to, were taken in a single week. One of them being his only son, a noble boy of twelve summers.

Now Mr. Holt was left to fell the forests alone. In June, 1864, the silent messenger again entered, and took from him the companion of his manhood. Already gray hairs had intertwined themselves in his locks, and the down-hill side of life was reached.

Miss Nancy Shapley, the youngest sister of his wife, having lost her father, consented to become the partner of his joys and sorrows, and they were married in the October following.

Henry Smith, a grandson of Mr. Holt, was a soldier during the Rebellion, and took part in the battles of the Wilderness and before Petersburg, and was present when General Grant dictated terms to the last rebel army under General Robert E. Lee. Henry was wounded in the hip at Fairfax Court-House.

Miss Linda M. Cooper, a granddaughter, is now living with Mr. and Mrs. Holt, who recognize her as entitled to their tenderest sympathy and love. Mr. and Mrs. Holt are members of the Church of the United Brethren, and esteem a Christian life as pointing to the life to come.

Although Mr. Holt is seventy, yet he handles the organ easily, playing common church-music at sight.

AMOS A. KINNEY, SENECA,

the subject of this sketch, was born in Johnsonsburg, Sussex County, New York, April 28, 1812. His father, Elias Kinney, born in the same town, married Miss Margaret Anderson, of Philadelphia, and reared a family of seven children: Amos, James, Samuel, Richard, William, Elizabeth, and John. The children are all located in Lenawee County, excepting Elizabeth, who resides at Hillsdale, Mich., and John, who lives in Atchison, Kan., having been there nineteen years. He is a life insurance agent and one of the best business men in Kansas.

The father remained in Sussex County until 1824, when he removed to Canandaigua, New York, where he purchased a farm of fifty acres of land. Amos lived on the farm with his father, using the old-fashioned Bull plow, which was then supposed to be the greatest invention of the age. With pride he now looks back upon those days of primitive simplicity, when the hard-working farmer ate his frugal meal with a clear conscience, and wiped the sweat from his brow with the silk handkerchief of the past. Amos was scarcely twenty-one years of age when he had a longing for more congenial companionship. He told his secret to Miss Mary Ann Hayward, and all know the result. They bade farewell to friends, and, packing their few earthly goods into a wagon, they started for the far West. For eighteen days they jogged along through the wilderness, and on the 18th day of February, 1835, reached Seneca and took up eighty acres of land. He has since purchased three hundred and twenty, and has now the premium farm of Lenawee County, with excellent buildings. On the 15th day of September, 1846, the sun passed under a cloud, and the shadow of death mantled the doorway. Mrs. Kinney, once the bright and beautiful Miss Hayward, whom none knew but to love, passed through the midnight of death to the noonday of life beyond the river. Charles, their only son, is now in St. Charles County, Mo. In 1849 Mr. Kinney was married to Miss Lucinda M. Stuck, with whom he now lives and by whom he has had three children: Margaret,—who married Colman Youngs, in December, 1868, and whose farm joins her father's,—Frank, and John, aged respectively eleven and six, who are at home. Mr. Amos Kinney never allows a hungry stranger to go from his door, and is wide-awake to all the improvements of the day. His money is not his god. Such men are of real value to a community.

RICHARD H. KINNEY, SENECA, was born December 3, 1820, married Miss Wealthy Ann Buck June 12, 1845, who died June 21, 1866, leaving five children, namely, Sarah, Elias Odell, Ida, Ira, and Clarence. All are now living. Mr. Kinney married his second wife, Miss Mary Waggoner, June 15, 1869. They now live on the old homestead, a good farm of one hundred and sixty acres, worth about seventy dollars per acre. Mr. Kinney is fifty-two years of age, and his wife forty-six. With others, they have caused the wilderness of Michigan to blossom as the rose. As "faith without works is dead," so has this life of a luxuriant vegetation been brought about by toil and care.

WILLIAM JIBB, SENECA, opened his eyes for the first time in that wonderful land of Englishmen, on the 21st day of October, 1843. In 1852 he came to America, halting one year in Geneva, N. Y., and then, hearing the ominous words, "Go West, young man," he found himself in Hudson, Mich., in 1853.

In 1861 he enlisted in Company F, 11th Michigan Volunteer Infantry, Colonel Wm. L. Stoughton. Accompanied his regiment to Louisville, thence to Bargetown, where they went into winter quarters. In 1862 the regiment went to Nashville, Tenn., and were employed in following the notorious Morgan during the summer.

In December and January following they were engaged in the battle of Stone River. They followed General Bragg to Tullahoma, fought four days in the battle of Chicamauga, where Mr. Jibb lost a brother, but came out himself unscathed. The regiment were engaged in that memorable fight among the clouds at Chattanooga, where, according to Miss Anna Dickinson, the privates left their generals and plunged into that terrible cloudy sea, wringing victory from the astonished rebels. The regiment were in numberless skirmishes, and were mustered out at Atlanta, their time having expired. Mr. Jibb received two gunshot wounds, from which he recovered, only to receive a wound near the heart by Miss Pauline Hewitt, of Medina, to whom he surrendered November 24, 1864. They have two children, Wm. F., aged three years, and Robert B., four months. Mr. Jibb is engaged in blacksmithing at Morenci, where he is doing a good business.

S. B. TREADWELL, SENECA, was born in Monroe County, New York, in 1821. He worked on the farm summers and attended school in winters, and at the age of thirteen came with his father to Adrian, Mich. He was married in September, 1848, to Miss Lydia Stephenson, by whom he had two children, Mary L. and Carrie E. Carrie died in infancy. Mrs. Treadwell died in December, 1870, and Mr. Treadwell was married to Mrs. Margaret A. Burleigh, August 24, 1871.

Mr. Treadwell enlisted, in December, 1863, in the 6th Michigan Heavy Artillery, and served with that regiment till the War of the Rebellion closed. In 1868 he came to Seneca, and bought eighty acres of land on Section 28, on which he now lives. Nellie M. Burleigh, a daughter of Mrs. Treadwell, lives with them.

MRS. ROSE ANN GOULD, SENECA, formerly Miss Hayward, was born in Farmington, New York, in 1811. She was married to Mr. John Gould February 21, 1836. Mr. Gould was born October 16, 1809. Two years after marriage Mr. Gould removed with his family to Michigan, and settled on Section 23, in the town of Seneca.

They had two sons, Roswell James, who enlisted in the 11th Michigan, and died at Belmont Hospital April 25, 1862, and David Henry, who was married to Miss Sarah A. Brower in 1865. They have two children, John, seven, and Inez, five, years of age. John Gould died May 27, 1862, having contracted a disease while caring for his son in the hospital. David Henry is on the farm with his mother, who is sixty-two years of age. They have a fine farm of one hundred and sixty acres, worth seventy to seventy-five dollars per acre.

MOSES VAILE, SENECA, was born on the 25th day of January, 1801, in Dover, New York. His father and mother, John and Hannah Vaile, came to Dutchess County at the close of the eighteenth century.

When Moses was fourteen years of age the family moved to Onondaga County. His early education was confined to the common schools. He was married March 23, 1826, to Miss Amanda Blowers. They commenced life, in this blustering month, on the farm, and in addition to this Mr. Vaile made fourteen hundred cradles, not for babies, but for men, during his stay in New York.

In 1836 all hands came to Seneca, and purchased two hundred and forty acres of land on Section 5, on which Moses now resides. Eight children have blessed their home: Hiram, born March 21, 1827; Delia M., in 1828; Henry N., in 1831; Helen, in 1833; Moses W., in 1835; Hannah, in 1838; Hervey, in 1840; and Celestia, in 1843; which last, as the name implies, was the crowning delight of all. Here we see first a son and then a daughter until the number is complete. This needs no comment, the arrangement being perfect. Henry died at Victoria, Vancouver's Island, in 1868. Hervey enlisted in the 18th Michigan Infantry, and died near Covington, Kentucky, in 1862, and Moses died in infancy. Mrs. Vaile died December 17, 1858, and Mr. Vaile married Mrs. Susan Moore, of New Jersey, in November, 1854, with whom he now lives. On the 25th of January of each year the entire family meet at the old house. Their first gathering was celebrated by a poem, composed by Hiram and read by Mr. Baker, of Baker's Corners. These gatherings are looked to by all as the choicest hours of the year.

ALBERT CAMBURN, FRANKLIN, was born August 12, 1823, in Wayne County, New York. His father moved to Michigan when Albert was eight years old, and bought one hundred and sixty acres in Raisin Township, but finally sold out and purchased one hundred and sixty acres in Franklin.

By energy Albert obtained an education so as to teach school, which he followed four terms. On March 22, 1848, he united his fortunes with Miss Elvira German, and settled on Section 30 in 1851, where he now resides.

In August, 1862, he enlisted in the 18th Michigan Volunteer Infantry, and served with his regiment for three years; first in the Army of the Ohio, then in that of the Cumberland, and finally in the Division of the Mississippi. This regiment made some of the most severe marches, and was kept constantly scouting. Surprised Patterson at Pond Springs, Alabama, capturing many prisoners and camps; was in the advance at Courtland, where Patterson was again put to flight; headed off General Roddy at Athens, marched to Florence, skirmishing with Wheeler; two hundred and thirty of them were attacked by General Forrest, with four thousand men, whom they bravely held back for five hours, when but few were left to tell the tale. They were in the fight against General Hood, at Decatur, and in skirmishes without number, never showing the white feather. In 1865 this regiment was mustered out, and Mr. Camburn returned to home and family, and with energy and care has made home beautiful, gathering around him not only the necessities, but many of the luxuries of life.

HENRY TRIPP, FRANKLIN, was born in 1784, in Bristol, England. When a young man he served in the American navy, under Commodore Preble, also in the English navy, under the great admiral, Lord Nelson; remaining until the battle of Trafalgar. In 1810 he was married to Miss Hannah Stoneham, and went to Jamaica as a Baptist missionary, where Henry Tripp, who now resides in Franklin, was born, June 28, 1819.

Mrs. Tripp died in 1822, and Rev. Mr. Tripp returned to England, where he was married to Miss Elizabeth Stoneham, and was engaged in building; taking a prominent part in the agitation of the "Reform Bill" and the abolition of West India slavery, by means of which he became unpopular and lost his business, thus suffering financial martyrdom while upholding the right. In 1829 he came to America. In Cleveland he fell in with a number of Baptists, with whom he came to Michigan. His comrades, however, failed to settle in the wilderness, but turned back. This did not discourage the man of iron will, but empty-handed he shouldered his axe, and struck the bark that was to make his dwelling-place. For months the face of the dusky warrior alone was seen,—no white man passed his "log mansion in the West." It took him seven days to go to mill, but the man who had received a medal for services in the war against Napoleon feared no danger, and readily underwent all hardships.

He cast the first vote in Franklin for the Liberty party, and when the strife against slavery came, he was lost to all else but the triumph of truth and right. When Lincoln's proclamation was read to him, he expressed a desire to live till the war closed; but the shadows of death stole over him, and he awoke beyond the roar of battle. On the 19th day of July, 1863, this man of almost undying energy bade farewell to his family and friends. The neighborhood was in mourning,—a father had been taken from them. A family of four sons and three daughters recount the incidents of early life in Michigan, when even the days of the week were lost, and the reverend gentleman went to his appointment on Monday only to find that he had been burning brush on the Sabbath. Joseph, John, and Henry Tripp, his sons, are still living, and have enterprise enough to perpetuate the memory of the father.

CAPTAIN JAMES R. CAIRNES, FRANKLIN, was born at Seneca Falls, in Seneca County, New York, on the 28th day of August, 1832. His father moved to Michigan when James was four years old, and died in 1840. After his father's death James worked with and for his brother, attending school during the winter season, until he was twelve years of age, when he hired out to his brother for four years. At the age of sixteen he commenced to work at the carpenter and joiner business, which, with the exception of a short experience in milling, he has followed all his life. He now owns a fine farm, and lives more easily than by the use of the jack-plane.

In his twenty-third year he married Miss Emily A. Greenleaf, by whom he has had four children: Jennie A., born June 15, 1858; Ellsworth, February 28, 1862; Nora Delle and Dora Belle, born September 24, 1871. The twins are the pride of the family, although very mischievous.

In August, 1862, Governor Blair sent a recruiting commission to the Captain. He assisted in raising a company, took the position of first lieutenant, and joined the 9th Michigan Cavalry at Coldwater. This regiment was assigned to General Coleman, Department of the Ohio. In the spring of 1863 they fought Everett's guerrillas, totally routing them at Triplet Bridge, Ky.; followed Morgan from Stanford to Buffington's Island, where the most of his forces were captured. At this point Lieutenant Cairnes, assisted by Sergeants Doke and Burnett, created a wonderful excitement by marching Colonel Basil Duke and Colonel Dewitt Howard Smith, and about one hundred men, into camp, they having surrendered to the Lieutenant in the presence of the sergeants.

In August, 1863, this regiment crossed the Cumberland Mountains with Burnside, where they surprised the garrison and took Knoxville, then marched to Cumberland Gap, where General Frazier, with sixteen hundred men, surrendered. During this winter they were almost constantly skirmishing with the Rebel cavalry. March 15, 1864, Lieutenant Cairnes received a captain's commission.

In April, the regiment mustering only one hundred and eighty men for duty, they were sent to Nicholasville to recruit. The winter previous had been one of severest hardship; hardly a tent was pitched during the entire season. Horses died from starvation, and officers and men suffered disease, which followed exposure to the dews, fogs, frosts, and sleet of a winter in this locality. Captain Cairnes was one of the sufferers; a rheumatic fever closed in on him, and although he put spurs to his horse, yet there was no escape.

He was discharged on account of physical disability January 26, 1865. He is now town clerk of the town of Franklin, and deputy sheriff of Lenawee County.

GIDEON D. PERRY, FRANKLIN,

a sketch of whose residence is in this Atlas, was born in Palmyra, Wayne County, New York, October 25, 1811. His early education was obtained in the common schools and Cazenova Seminary. At the age of twenty-two he entered the work of the ministry in the M. E. Church, and for some eleven years was a member of the Genesee Conference, receiving his appointments at Brockport, Lima, Canandaigua, and elsewhere, after the order of his church.

His health gradually failing, he was finally induced to leave the active duties of the ministry, and give himself to some pursuit better suited to his physical condition.

In 1843 he came to Michigan, and settled upon the farm where he now resides, in the township of Franklin. He has been married twice,—June 26, 1839, to Miss Rebecca Buckley, of Milo, Yates County, N. Y., who died December 27, 1841, leaving no issue; January 26, 1843, he was married to Mary Osborn, of Ovid, Seneca County, N. Y., who is still living, and by whom he has five children: M. Alice, born November 13, 1844; Thomas O., born February 28, 1847; Maggie R., born June 16, 1850; Jennie M., born February 27, 1856; Eva A., born November 23, 1857. An object of chief concern for several years past has been to give to his children a good education. His only son has received from the Michigan University four degrees, A.B., A.M., C.E., and M.E. Mr. Perry has never been known to ask or express desire for place or preferment, but has several times received favor and evidence of esteem from the citizens of his locality. He has been justice of the peace, supervisor, Chairman of the Board of Supervisors, member of the Michigan House of Representatives, and also a member of the Michigan State Senate.

CHARLES DEWEY, CAMBRIDGE, was born in Concord, New Hampshire, July 25, 1823. From Concord his father moved to Hanover N. H.; in 1830, with his family, emigrated to Tecumseh, Lenawee County, and from thence to Cambridge, in 1840. In 1843 Mr. Charles Dewey, the subject of this sketch, married Miss Elvira Moulton, of Cambridge, who has blessed him with three sons and two daughters. For fourteen years Mr. Dewey was supervisor of his township; he has also been school inspector for twenty-one years, and during the years 1864-5 was President of the Lenawee County Agricultural Society. At the breaking out of the Rebellion Mr. Dewey entered the enlisting service, and put in the field one hundred and nineteen men. In 1869 he, with his oldest son, commenced a mercantile business in Cambridge, in which they are still engaged.

ROBERT WOODEN.

The grandfather of the gentleman named above was one of four brothers who served throughout the Revolutionary War. After peace had been declared he settled in the town of Newburg, Orange County, New York, where the father of the subject of this record was born, in the year 1780. From Monroe County he moved to the town of Phelps, Ontario County, N. Y., where, in the year 1800, he married Miss Sarah Widner, of the same place, who was born in New Jersey, in the year 1782. The fruits of this marriage were fourteen children, all of whom lived to mature years, and among whom was Robert Wooden, the subject of this biography, who was born in 1812. He lived with his parents in the town of Chili, Monroe County, N. Y. (where they had moved in 1811), until 1830, at which time he married Miss Lydia A. Sickner, and moved from Chili to the town of Gates, in Monroe, where he lived until 1845. He then moved with his wife and four children to Lenawee County, Michigan, purchased two hundred acres of land, and commenced farming. Mr. W. had no advantages while young to gain an education, but being naturally of an inquiring mind and quick to learn, he has overcome those deficiencies, and also gained a useful practical education. Before Mr. Wooden came from New York he had commenced to preach the Universalist faith, and since his home has been in Lenawee County he has done much for the church to which he belongs. He has a farm of one hundred and sixty acres of land, well watered, and under a good state of improvement. Mr. W. and wife have a large circle of friends, and are esteemed for their warm-heartedness and benevolence by all of their many acquaintances.

GEORGE SHEELER, CAMBRIDGE, is one of the oldest settlers of Cambridge Township, he having moved to this township in 1835. He was born in Sussex County, Newton Township, New Jersey, in 1806. While young Mr. Sheeler never had an opportunity to gain an education, the nearest school-house being several miles from his father's house. Although Mr. Sheeler's advantages were very limited for gaining an education while young, he has, by application and observation, since gained a good education. In the fall of 1828 Mr. Sheeler married Jane Onstead, of Sussex County, New Jersey, and she accompanied her husband to his new home at the time mentioned. Upon his arrival in Cambridge Township he located eighty acres of government land, on which he built a rude log house that he and his family lived in for nearly three years, when they moved into a large and better house, built of hewn logs. Mr. Sheeler at the present time has a farm of five hundred and twenty acres of land, upon which are raised excellent crops of all kinds. Mr. Sheeler is an industrious man, a good and worthy citizen.

FRANCIS A. DEWEY, CAMBRIDGE, was born February 25, 1811, and resided in New Hampshire until sixteen years of age; he then attended for three years Captain McKay's military school, at Buffalo, New York. In 1829 he moved to Tecumseh, Michigan, but three years later bought government land in Cambridge Township, where he made his home. In 1836 he married Mary A. Smith, of Woodstock, Michigan. Of their six children, the eldest is dead, four have good farms in Cambridge, while the remaining son, having a taste for learning, graduated at Michigan State University, and now receives a yearly salary of two thousand dollars in the northern part of the State. Mr. Dewey has been drum-major of the 8th Regiment Michigan State militia for ten years, road commissioner and justice of the peace for seven years, and supervisor for three years. He has followed the avocation of a farmer for forty years in Lenawee County, of which he is an honored pioneer. He has a pleasant home, and has raised a family of five sons, in whom he takes commendable pride, and who are truly an honor to their parents.

EDWIN W. LAIR, Woodstock.

The ancestors of the subject of our sketch came from Germany during the War of the Revolution, and settled in Pennsylvania, where Jacob J. Lair, the father of Edwin W., was born. Jacob married Jane Uptergrove, in Livingston County, New York. The result of this marriage was ten children, one of whom was Edwin W., he being born in Livingston County, N. Y., June 18, 1831. In 1834 Jacob with his family emigrated to Lenawee County, Woodstock Township. The County, when Mr. Lair moved here, was thinly settled, and at times the people were sorely pressed for the common wants of life. Sickness, at certain seasons of the year, was to be found in nearly every family in those early days. Many were their privations and sufferings, but with brave and willing hearts they worked, and are now reaping their reward, in enjoying the comforts of their hard-earned and comfortable homes. In 1852 Edwin, the subject of our sketch, went to Allegan County, where he married Miss Cornelia Clark. He remained in Allegan County about six years, when, with his family, he returned to Woodstock Township. Mr. Lair has a farm of one hundred and sixty acres of land, nearly all of which is under a good state of cultivation.

JESSE OSBURN, Woodstock.

the subject of our present sketch, was born in Newburg, Orange County, New York, in the year 1784, where he lived until he became a young man, when, with his parents, he moved to Cayuga County, New York. Here this family remained several years, and then they removed to Tompkins County, New York, where the subject of our sketch, at about the age of twenty-four, married Rachel Chase, of the county named. The subject of our biography in 1824, with his family, started for the West, coming to Detroit by the way of the lakes. From Detroit he came to Monroe, and was the first person to drive a team through from Detroit to Monroe after the War of 1812. At this time Mr. Osburn's family consisted of his wife and six children.

After resting a short time at Monroe, they moved to where Tecumseh now stands. Here Mr. Osburn bought eighty acres of land and commenced farming; and it may safely be said, without fear of contradiction, that he raised the first wheat that was grown in Lenawee County. Mr. Osburn continued to live on his first purchase until the spring of 1833, when, with his family, he moved to Woodstock Township, and took up one hundred and twenty acres of government land. Here he put up the first saw-mill that was erected in Woodstock Township; and he also planted the first orchard in this township. In 1851 his wife died, and after remaining a widower several years, he married Mrs. McDermid. Mr. Osburn continued to live in Woodstock Township until 1857, when he moved to Coffee County, Kansas, where he carried on farming and the fruit-tree business until his death, which took place in 1865. Mr. Osburn was one of the very earliest settlers of Lenawee County, and had a large circle of friends. He was esteemed as a good citizen both in Lenawee County, Michigan, and in Coffee County, Kansas. Alva Osburn, son of Jesse named above, was born in Tompkins County, New York, October 18, 1818. He came to Michigan with his parents, and with them to Woodstock Township. He married Miss A. Every, of Columbia Township, in Jackson County, Michigan, and by her has been blessed with two children: Francilia, born January 8, 1842, and Nathaniel, September 7, 1844. Mr. Osburn owns a farm of two hundred and twenty-six acres, which is one of the finest farms in his township. Mr. Osburn has one of the finest residences in this township, which is also used as a hotel; and as there are several large lakes near by, it proves to be a great resort for pleasure-parties during the summer months.

EZEKIEL MORGAN SANFORD, Woodstock.

Ezekiel, grandfather of the subject of the following sketch, was born in New York, where he died, in Erie County, in 1830. His widow, whose maiden name was Susanna Badger, moved to Lenawee County, Michigan, where she died in 1844. This couple had nine children, of whom Malachi, father of the subject of our memoir, was one, he being born in New York, in 1799. When he was twenty-three Malachi married Mrs. Balsora Scott, whose maiden name was Holmes. She was born in Saratoga County, New York, in 1793. In 1837 they moved to Lenawee County with their family. They had four children, of whom Ezekiel M., the subject of our record, was the oldest. Malachi's wife died April 3, 1866, and he on March 2, 1870. On the 14th of April, 1844, Ezekiel married Miss Margaret J. Beck, who was born in Washington County, Penna., August 23, 1824. They have had a family of six children, viz.: Alice S., born November 7, 1846; James M., September 19, 1847; Catharine A., October 29, 1851; Lewis K., March 4, 1854; Leonard A., September 24, 1857; and Mary A., born May 8, 1860. Catharine died July 15, 1853, and James, September 20, 1850.

Mr. Sanford has a farm of one hundred and seventy-three acres, of which forty are timber, and the remainder under cultivation, upon which the best of crops are raised. He is a thorough farmer, and by his industry has gained a competence, from which he gives to all worthy objects. He is well known as a good citizen,—one who always takes an interest in the advancement of his town; has never been a political office-seeker, but is contented to live as his ancestors did before him,—a farmer.

LEWIS SANFORD, Woodstock.

The grandfather of the person whose name heads this biography was a member of the Society of Shaking Quakers, who were established at Lebanon, Connecticut, about the year 1780. Here the father of the subject of this sketch lived until about 1795, when he went to Phelpsstown, Connecticut, where he married Miss Susanna Badger. The result of this union was a family of nine children, of whom Lewis was the youngest, being born in Erie County, New York, April 14, 1820. He lived in Erie County until 1835, then his mother (whose husband died about the year 1830) moved to Woodstock Township, Lenawee County, where they arrived September 20, 1835. Here the subject of our sketch hired out by the day, and the first land he bought was half an acre, near what is now called Walker's Junction, giving in payment for the same an old flint-lock shot-gun. In 1839 he traded sixty acres of land for a farm in Cass County, Michigan, and in March of that year moved there with his mother and brother, W. W. Sanford. Mr. S. only remained in Cass County until the next October; then, with his brother and mother, he returned to Woodstock Township, where he purchased one hundred and sixty acres of land, upon which they erected a rough log house, where they lived for many years. December 29, 1842, he married Delilah Wheaton, of Raisin Township, who was born in Cayuga County, New York. Nine children have blessed this marriage, viz.: Adelaide, Lewis, Horace, Adaline, Charles W., Elsie, Ella A., Leroy S., and Ida M. Lewis died August 12, 1850; Horace died September 22, 1850; Leroy S. died March 25, 1870.

Mr. Sanford has held various offices of public trust. In 1849 he became a member of the M. E. Church; in 1853 he was licensed to exhort, and in 1857, licensed to preach. In 1872 Mr. Sanford and others in his vicinity formed a Union Church, built a place of worship costing about three thousand dollars, and he was ordained pastor of the same by the Congregational Church. Mr. S. has for many years taken a deep interest in everything pertaining to the advancement of his fellow-citizens, has been at the head of those who have sought to create an interest in regard to religious matters among his fellow-townsmen, and has always given freely of his means for benevolent objects. Mr. S. at the present time owns six hundred and five acres of land, upon which there are six orchards, four large barns, and many other improvements. He is a man of much enterprise, and enjoys the confidence of his fellow-citizens and the esteem of a large circle of friends.

JOHN PENNINGTON, Macon.

was born in the township of Stafford, Monmouth County, New Jersey, August 25, 1778, being the second child of Israel and Abigail Pennington. From New Jersey Israel and his family, about the year 1804, moved to Perinton, Monroe County, New York, where John married Hannah Willets, of the same county, in 1806. The result of this union was six children, named, respectively, Israel, John, Abigail, Joseph, Isaac, and Mary, all of whom lived to mature years. In the spring of 1829 John emigrated, with his family, to Lenawee County, Michigan, and settled in what is now known as Raisin Township. Here he remained until the fall of 1829, when he purchased land in the town of Macon,—the first in that township, and at what is known as "Pennington's Corners." He cleared his farm, and, with the aid of his sons, made many improvements. He always took a great interest in the affairs of his township, and was held in the highest estimation by all of his many acquaintances. His death took place on the 29th of December, 1860. His widow died on the 26th of March, 1864. She was an affectionate and tender wife, a kind and most indulgent mother, ever willing to sacrifice for the welfare and happiness of her family, an earnest Christian woman, universally loved and respected. Both Mr. and Mrs. Pennington were members of the Society of Friends, and as such were held in veneration. Numerous descendants of this worthy couple still reside where their parents were pioneers, at "Pennington's," and, like their sires, are noted for those virtues which constitute true manhood and womanhood.

This is the firm that sells Lumber, Lath, and Shingles for less than any other firm in Lenawee County.

We can afford to sell for less than our neighbors on account of the advantages we have in having a side track of the L. S. and M. S. R. R., and having our Planing Mill near the centre of our yard, thereby saving the expense of hauling our lumber. Orders filled for buildings, complete. Call and see us before purchasing elsewhere.

HOW FORTUNATE

THAT I TRIED

The Light Running Domestic!

Says the happy possessor

OF THE

FAMOUS DOMESTIC SEWING-MACHINE.

To the Ladies of Lenawee County I would say:

Be sure and examine the Domestic before purchasing any other Machine. For beauty and variety of work it cannot be surpassed. For ease of operation and quietness I challenge all competitors.

With proper care the Domestic will last a lifetime. Be wise in time.

The purchase of a Sewing-Machine should not be an idle one; much of your future comfort depends upon it; and with the Light Running Domestic you are sure of a Machine that will never fail you.

No Sewing-Machine Company in the world can show as great a ratio of increase in sales as the FAMOUS DOMESTIC.

A. & W. A. RICHARD.

This enterprising firm opened a large and spacious Dry Goods House April 1, 1873, using our National Ensign to mark their place of business; and since the above date have continued their trade under the most auspicious circumstances, with a business which is now large and daily increasing. Their secret of success is found in their motto, LARGE SALES AND SMALL PROFITS.

They keep a well selected stock of goods, taking the lead in the novelties of the trade.

DEALERS IN

General Merchandise and Produce,
MORENCI, MICH.

Established in 1852. Merchandise sales $100,000. Engaged in Clothing and Furnishing Goods and Merchant Tailoring. Also general Hardware business. Dealers in all kinds of Produce, such as Wool, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Pork, Clover-Seed, Butter, Eggs, etc. Shipping about 10,000 lbs. per week. Business for year aggregating $250,000. The business of 1852, $10,000. Business of 1872, $250,000.

THE MORENCI CHEESE FACTORY.

Mr. D. C. Gillis, the proprietor of the above establishment, formerly lived at Chesterfield, Ohio, at which place he followed the vocation of a farmer, but gave much attention to cheese and butter-making. He came to Morenci in 1872, and purchased the property just west of the corporation limits of the village, where the Morenci Cheese Factory now stands. The building for the factory was commenced the first day of January, 1873; it was finished by the first of the succeeding April, and is a substantial wooden structure 30 by 50 feet in size, and two stories in height. Cheese was first made at this establishment on the 7th of April, 1873, and since that time upwards of seven hundred pounds have been made in one day. The most experienced hands are employed in this factory, and the cheese made here has gained a reputation for excellence which has been fairly won. This establishment contains the modern improvements for cheese-making, and is a model of neatness in all of its various departments.

ESTABLISHED IN 1843.
